SHIRTS.

35 cases just opened. Particular attention has been paid to the cutting and fitting, especially in the neckbands, and we feel confident that they will meet with general favour, for in wellnigh every respect will they be found equal to any goods made to order. Our various numbers are now far famed, and as they bear our brand with name by which the garment is known to us, no difficulty need be experienced in repeating orders.

In WHITE SHIRTS. The most fashionable fronts and wristbands, suitable for ordinary or for dress wear, with or without collars, with or without stud holes, to button behind or in front. All sizes in stock, at the most economical price. We commence them at 3s 6d, and on as 4s 6d, 5s, 5s 6d, 6s 6d, 7s 6d.

COLOURED SHIRTS. Specially selected patterns, registered and produced for our trade.

We are offering in this department an exceedingly useful Shirt for working men, at from 2s or 2s 6d, whilst our better qualities are cheaper than ever, and embrace a range of patterns to suit every imaginable taste. We respectfully invite a trial of these goods from any gentleman who may not as yet have so favoured us, feeling assured of perfect satisfaction being given. Every make as in our White Shirts. Our prices are 3s 6d, 4s 6d, 5s, and upwards.

CRIMEAN SHIRTS, made from a particular material, less liable to shrink than that often supplied; in neat colourings and splendid range of patterns, 5s 6d, 6s 6d, 8s 6d; and a superior quality, 11s 6d.

White and coloured Lambswool, Ribbed Cashmeres, in light and heavy makes.

FARMER and COMPANY.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.

In inviting the inspection of goods displayed in this room, we confidently beg to say that our stock stands unrivalled in the colonies. Our reputation as importers of floor coverings is not the creation of a day, but has been gained and maintained by years of unremitting attention. That this has resulted in placing our buyers in the first rank as purchasers, and the department here unequalled for extent and novelty, is not a matter for great surprise. Indeed, the most fastidious connoisseur could find, we feel sure, something to meet his approval. In the manufacture the best houses of Europe and America will be found well represented, whilst for designs it might be said that art has been allowed to run random, so quaint, curious, and withal fascinating, are the exquisite patterns woven.

EXTRA WILTONS, just now opened, truly the acme of elegance, palatial in design and colouring. We are already placing large orders for these new goods in our making-up room, and solicit inspection of our unprecedented display. Hearthrugs and borders to match.

BRUSSELS.—These favourite Carpets are now produced in styles new and charming. The peculiarities in designs, such as the Arabesque, Moorish, Landscape, Gobelin, and Moresque in particular, are displayed to advantage in the productions now to hand. Hearthrugs and Borders to match.

TAPESTRIES in endless variety, and in point of quality and design we may truthfully observe we were never better prepared for a large output. In these, as in our Wilton and Brussels stock, we have Hearthrugs to match. Some hundreds of patterns to select from, new and fresh, and at prices defying competition.

FLOORCLOTHS and LINOLEUMS.—Suffice it to say we have unsurpassed variety in these. All widths kept, and the pick of the best makers' productions.

PLANNING, MAKING, AND LAYING.—Satisfaction guaranteed. Experienced assistants, promptness in execution of any commands, with best attention assured.

FURNITURE.

Our Showrooms contain the largest stock of well-constructed and artistically designed Furniture in the colonies. In order to bring under the notice of our constituents the class of goods we are now selling, we publish a most comprehensive catalogue, supplemented by one of Austrian furniture only. These catalogues (the best published) can be obtained on application, and to buyers residing at a distance from Sydney they are valuable as showing the first designs of the day, and affording an opportunity of making selections as easily as in a showroom. To complete arrangements in favour of our customers, in order that the most reliable, guaranteed, and well-constructed articles may reach their hands, we have to add that the best makers' goods only are kept. Our enormous output alone is evidence that we buy direct from the best makers, and is the secret of our ability to sell at the prices we do.

PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION.

We are submitting samples of fully fifty suites, in leather, at prices varying from £25 to £75. We direct attention to our suites marked £30, £32 10s, and £35, far better value than any we have hitherto had the pleasure of offering. We have more than a dozen suites of different patterns at £28 10s.

Drawings of these Suites can be had on application, and any orders per post will receive every attention.

AUSTRIAN FURNITURE.

THONET'S MAKE.—We have landed a large shipment of this furniture of the above manufacturer's, which is unquestionably the best in the world. It is our intention to offer these goods at prices which will defy competition; the public will therefore have the opportunity of purchasing at lower prices than that asked for inferior makes. We anticipate an early clearance, and to those of our patrons who have been waiting this intimation we would solicit an early call, as we feel sure we cannot repeat, for the present, a shipment so desirable in point of quality and price. Austrian chairs commencing at 5s 9d each. Prices range from this and on to 6s, 7s, 8s 6d, 8s 9d, 9s 6d, and upwards.

Our Austrian catalogue, the most comprehensive and perfect published out of Europe, post free on application.

KNAPP'S LAND SURVEY OFFICE.
Established 1830.
Wentworth-court, Elizabeth-street, Sydney.
At the request of numerous clients I have, in connection with my land survey business, opened registers for the entry, for private sale, of city, suburban, and country lands. A long experience in the survey and valuation of real estate will enable me to advise those who may favour me with instructions to dispose of their properties with a close approximation of the value thereof. To my clients I make no charge for valuation. Commission will be nominal. Only such actual expenses as may be incurred for advertisements will be charged. No charge will be made unless a sale be effected.

TENDERS.
ATTENTION is directed to Gazette notice inviting fresh tenders for undermentioned work, viz.:—
The Construction of Main Bondi Intercepting Sewer.
Time for receipt of tenders, 17th April.
HENRY COPELAND.

Public Works Department,
Roads Branch.

TENDERS are invited up to the 14th instant for Forming and Gravelling on Road to Shane's Park. Specification at Post-office, St. Mary's.
Also, for the Construction of a Stone and Iron Bridge at Tea Tree Creek, main west road, at Granville. Specification to be seen at Road Superintendent's residence, Parramatta.
Tenders to be delivered to Clerk of Petty Sessions, Parramatta.

The Treasury, New South Wales,
9th April, 1883.

ANNUAL CONTRACTS.
CONTRACTS FOR THE PUBLIC SERVICE.
TENDERS will be received at this Office until noon of THURSDAY, the 26th instant, for the following supplies for the Public Service during the year 1884, namely:—
1. WRITING PAPERS, BOTH HAND AND MACHINE MADE.
2. PRINTING PAPERS
3. PRINTING MATERIALS
4. BOOKBINDING MATERIALS
5. PHOTOGRAPHIC AND PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHIC MATERIALS.
Printed forms of tender and any information respecting the contracts may be obtained at the Treasury.
No tender will be entertained unless accompanied by a certificate from two responsible persons, stating that they are willing to become bound as sureties in the sum specified in the conditions of the particular contract for the due fulfilment thereof.
The necessary stamp duty (i.e., one shilling upon accepted tenders and one pound upon bonds) must in every instance be borne by the contractor.
In the case of the accepted tenders, the contractors and their sureties must severally call at the Treasury to execute and deliver the bonds within fourteen days after date of acceptance, failing which the contracts may either be advised anew or other tenders accepted.
The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
Tenders to be addressed to the Under-Secretary for Finance and Trade, and endorsed "Tender for , 1884," as the case may require.

BRINSMEAD PIANOS
These Pianos are too well and favourably known throughout the world to require puffing.
At every International Exhibition they have taken the highest and special awards above all competitors, noticeably at the Paris International Exhibition, 1878, where they were awarded the CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOR, for their undoubted superiority.
At the SYDNEY INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION also, the judges on musical instruments accorded the BRINSMEAD PIANOS
A SPECIAL DIPLOMA ABOVE ALL COMPETITORS, for their great superiority over all others, together with the 6 valuable patented improvements introduced.
Amongst other Brinsmead Improvements, the following will always stand prominent in the history of the pianoforte:—
The Brinsmead patent sostenente sounding board.
The Brinsmead patent consolidated metal frame.
The Brinsmead patent check-repeating action.
The Brinsmead patent tone compensator and renovator.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Messrs. SANDERS and HORNE beg respectfully to tender sincere thanks to the general public for the liberal support accorded to them in the past, and beg to assure that they will not lax in their efforts to forward all goods and parcels safely and promptly in all parts of the city and suburbs. Our Mr. SANDERS' long experience in the business, since 1859, when he commenced the first General Parcel Delivery in Sydney, and we can appeal confidently, as we cannot remember any occasion when our customers have suffered loss on our account, and our own losses for parcels actually lost does not exceed £50, neither have we or any of our employees been prosecuted either civilly or criminally, except on three occasions, when we deemed it necessary to do so in our own and the public interest. We beg further to state that we have made additions to our plant, and are now supplying large four-wheeled vans for the removal of furniture, estimates for which is given for packing and removals to all parts. We publish a few of many testimonials we have received, and appealing to our own character, we rely confidently on a continuance of those favours that have enabled us so long and so successfully to carry on the SYDNEY EXPRESS PARCEL DELIVERY.

P. M'CARROLL.

IMPORTANT PUBLIC NOTICE.

GRAND OPENING NIGHT OF THE SEASON.

P. M'CARROLL will open his Magnificent BUTCHER'S SHOP on NEXT FRIDAY EVENING, April 13, at 6 o'clock, with a ponderous supply of Meat, to commence the Winter Season, and will put before the public such a display in quantity, quality, and price as the world cannot equal. In making this assertion, he earnestly invites all ranks of people, from the highest to the humblest in the city and suburbs, to come and witness its truth. The rare and beautiful quality of everything exhibited, the enormous quantity, comprising hundreds upon hundreds of carcases of the grandest meat, and last, but not least, at prices only one-half the figure of all the other butchers in the city, will simply astound the beholder, while the clean and beautiful appearance of the shop, with all its expensive accommodation, will add a charm of delight to visitors.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"—Medical Times, January 12, 1866.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is a certain cure cholera, dysentery, diarrhœa, colic, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—Caution: None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle. M. PAUL DU CHAILLU, in his interesting book, "The Land of the Midnight Sun," says:—"My object in coming to Stamsund was to visit Herr M—— (Peter Möller), a celebrated manufacturer of Cod-liver Oil, which enjoys such great and well-deserved reputation in the United States . . . . . Several men were engaged in separating the good livers from the bad. All were fresh from fish caught that day. The fat and healthy livers were whitish, while the diseased ones were greenish, and the lean ones red. I was surprised to see the number of diseased and lean livers. The season for the best ones would soon be over, and it happens that the Cod arrive at Lofoten when their livers are in the finest condition. The men are very particular in selecting the choicest kinds. After they had been assorted, they were put into a large tank, washed thoroughly in warm water, and then placed over an open wire net to let the water drip away. I noticed that extreme care was taken in all stages of the preparation of the Oil. . . . . The process has nothing of the repulsiveness of the method by which brown oil is usually made—namely, by letting the livers rot, skimming the oil, and afterwards boiling it."—Vol. II., p. 150.

PETER MOLLER'S COD-LIVER OIL is sold by all Chemists and Storekeepers throughout the colonies, in capsuled bottles only.

CUT THIS OUT—IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.—There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds, or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 3s 6d for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderous cures astonish every one that tries it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your druggist, and get a sample bottle for 6d, and try it, or a regular size for 3s 6d. All chemists. Wholesale by ELLIOTT BROTHERS, Sydney and Brisbane.

OUR ROME LETTER.

ROME, FEB. 21.

The great subject of interest is the new departure from long-established pontifical usage. Leo XIII. is undoubtedly a 19th century pontiff, able and ready to employ the sharp weapons of modern political warfare, in place of the "rusty tools" of the past. Every newspaper editor is accustomed to receive, even from cabinet ministers and leading political men, copies, for publication, of correspondence that may have passed between themselves and others on some subject of public interest concerning which they are desirous that no misconception should take root in the public mind as to what their action in the matter has been. Kings and princes have very rarely indeed, and then generally through their ministers, condescended to anything of the kind, and popes never. It is not yet 10 years since the then Pontifical Secretary of State, Cardinal Antonelli, declined to know anything about the Fourth Estate, and refused any communication whatever with newspaper men; and the Vatican organs kept pace with events by publishing telegrams several days after the details of the news they announced had been received by post. Vatican papers have, indeed, within the last few years come well abreast with their Liberal contemporaries, but after what I have said you can easily imagine the surprise of the readers of the Osservatore Romano and the Moniteur de Rome when, on opening those papers on Monday evening last, the 19th, they beheld in them the full text of two autograph letters his Holiness Leo XIII. has recently written to his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, sent to the editors for publication like those of any ordinary mortal. They were not preceded by exactly the customary formula of introduction:—"We have received the following letters from — to — for publication," but by something very much like it. I must mention that on the 26th of last month, January, the Berlin papers published a letter the Emperor of Germany had written to the Pope on the 22nd of December, in reply to one from his Holiness, dated the 3rd of that month; and the editor of the Osservatore Romano, in printing the pontifical part of the correspondence sent to him for publication, introduced it to the public as follows:—"Our readers, who are already acquainted with the reply addressed by his Majesty the Emperor to the Holy Father on the 22nd of December of last year, will have great pleasure in reading the text of the two letters of his Holiness, which preceded and followed the Imperial reply. They will furnish a new proof of the sentiments with which the Holy See and the Holy Father have always been animated in order to attain the desired religious peace in Germany."

A brief retrospective glance is necessary to understand the full purport of this innovation in established Vatican usage. You are well acquainted with the circumstances—now historical—through which the fierce warfare between Prince Bismarck and the Curia arose, and what followed. How the May laws, as they are called, were passed to prevent the Roman Catholic clergy from using their great influence in antagonism to the interests of the State, and for rigorously punishing them when they did: how bishops were imprisoned and exiled, and how sees remained vacant and parishes were left without priests, until, as time went on, and even the quiet-minded clergy who had remained in possession of their cures were diminished in number by death, the Roman Catholic inhabitants in districts many miles in extent were left without spiritual aid of any kind their consciences could accept. Bismarck's repressive measures had told effectually on the one side, but they gradually and increasingly produced serious inconveniences to the State on the other. But so long as Pius IX. lived there was no possibility of a better state of things. He was determined that the clergy should continue to resist until the equally determined Prince should repent, and, as it was figuratively expressed, come as the Emperor Henry the Second did to Canossa. Leo XIII., however, on ascending the pontifical throne, took a somewhat different view of things. He never contemplated yielding to Prince Bismarck, but, like an acute man of the world, he well understood the absurdity of expecting the Prince to yield to him. He fully recognised that however many might be the inconveniences the working of the May laws created for the German Chancellor, the existing state of things was not less detrimental to the interests the Roman Pontiff has to protect. He saw that it was a difficulty that could only be solved by give and take; and although no doubt he determined to take as much and give as little as he could, he let his inclination to come to terms be known. Consequent on this, Prince Bismarck determined to make the first move for re-establishing a direct means of communication between himself and the Vatican. About two years and a-half ago Dr. Schloezer who was at that time the German Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington, received instructions to visit Rome en touriste to test the ground. He was well and favourably known in the Vatican world, for he had filled the post of first secretary to the Prussian Legation anterior to 1870. The result of his visit was, that in the autumn of 1881 he returned, and diplomatic relations between Germany and the Holy See were re-established. Vatican fanatics declared that Bismarck had gone to Canossa, but in reality he forced the Pope's hand. Leo XIII. hesitating in accepting Bismarck's offer—doubtless in the expectation of getting some positive concession to begin with—Bismarck cut the matter short by letting one of his official organs state plainly what was the business Schloezer had gone to Rome about, and the Pope was placed in the position of either accepting at once or of coming to a more decided rupture with Germany than before. In due course Dr. Schloezer was received by the Pope, to present his credentials as Minister Plenipotentiary, without any change being made in the position either on the one side or the other. His mission was understood to be the prevention of other difficulties cropping up, by being on the spot to communicate directly to and fro between Prince Bismarck and Cardinal Jacobini. Misconceptions, the result of misrepresentations, had been continually arising on small matters. These of course formed additional obstacles against the possibility of any understanding, and it was thought it would be a gain to at least put a stop to such obstacles increasing. If, at the same time, Schloezer's presence in Rome should lead to negotiations for a permanent settlement, so much the better. Of course, it was desired on both sides that it should—though that did not form a part of the basis on which the re-opening of diplomatic relations was established, for the evident reason that, if a way was not found for such negotiations, Schloezer's mission would then necessarily have come to an end. A first step was found practicable, almost immediately on the path desired. Both Bismarck and the Pope were anxious that some of the vacant bishoprics should be provided for. The question was as to the men; but the Pope and the Prince being inclined towards conciliation, met each other half way. Men acceptable to both were found, and several important sees were filled. This was a good beginning; but alas one of the new bishops, and of all others Dr. Herzog, Prince Bishop of Breslaun, who had been named by Bismarck himself, soon interrupted the negotiations by adopting imprudent measures, distasteful to his patron, on the subject of mixed marriages. This vexed question had been allowed to become dormant in Germany, and the Pope, anything but pleased that the Bishop Herzog by reviving it should have interfered with the arrangement he hoped to carry out, threw cold water on his doings. They brought the negotiations to a standstill, and so things remained for some time, until, on the 3rd of December last, Leo XIII., finding an opportunity in the words of the Emperor of Germany, at the opening of the Prussian Landtag, took this time the initiative by writing the first of the two letters now published as follows:—

"Your Majesty,—At the recent inauguration of the Prussian Landtag, your Imperial and Royal Majesty was pleased to manifest to your people the joy you felt at heart at the consolidation of your friendly relations with the Head of the Catholic Church through the re-establishment of diplomatic relations. These courteous expressions with regard to us have been beyond measure grateful to us, and induce us to render special thanks to your Majesty, which we do with vivid satisfaction. From the first days of our Pontificate we have placed in the noble and generous sentiments of your Majesty the faith of seeing tranquillity of conscience and religious peace given to the peoples who obey your potent sceptre, and now the very fact of the re-established diplomatic relations, and the interest your Majesty places in the accomplishment of so high and advantageous an aim, has come to strengthen our faith. Your Majesty, in the height of your wisdom and your long experience, feels how great is the need for leading the people back through the observance of their religious duties to the fulfilment of what is due from them as citizens and as subjects; and now especially when society is shaken to its very foundations. We can assure your Majesty that the Catholic Church is fully animated by the same spirit, and possesses, when she does not encounter obstacles, the precious power of expanding it everywhere. Wherefore, it has always been our ardent desire to see the Church freely employ her strength on all sides for the advantage of the peoples and the governments, and for that end to strengthen our relations of friendship and peace with the latter. If the imperious duties of the Apostolic Ministry, full of responsibility before God and to men, obliges us to demand that the new ecclesiastical legislation in Prussia should, in a definite manner, be softened and amended, at least in those points essential to the existence and the life of the Catholic religion, your Majesty, far from ascribing it to any want of a good and conciliatory disposition on our part, will, instead, recognise that we ask it in the interests of that peace which cannot be true and desirable if it is not established on a solid foundation. This pacification, while it will accomplish one of the most ardent desires of our heart, and attach by still stronger ties to your Majesty's throne the souls of all your Catholic subjects, will form without fail also the most beautiful and precious Crown to your Majesty's long and glorious reign. With this hope we raise to heaven the most fervid prayers for the prosperity of your Majesty and of your Imperial and Royal family. From the Vatican, Dec. 3, 1882.—LEO P. P. XIII."

To this letter the Emperor replied as follows:—

"Berlin, December 22, 1882.—I beg to thank your Holiness for the letter which you addressed to me under date the 3rd current, and I heartily return the good wishes to which you therein gave expression. It strengthens me in the hope that the satisfaction felt with me by your Holiness at the establishment and activity of my mission (at the Vatican) will furnish you with a fresh reason for seeking by a corresponding advance to reply to the conciliatory steps hitherto taken by my Government, which have made it possible for most of the (Prussian) episcopates to be reoccupied. I am of opinion that such an advance, were it to be made in the matter of the pre-intimation of clerical appointments (to the State), would be much more to the interest of the Catholic Church than to that of the State, as rendering it possible for the vacancies which have occurred in the service of the Church to be filled up. If by an advance of the clergy in this respect I could arrive at the conviction that the readiness to effect a rapprochement were mutual, I would thus be able to countenance the reconsideration by the Landtag of my Monarchy of such laws as in the course of the struggle for the protection of contested rights of the State became requisite, without being permanently necessary, to secure peaceful relations (between Church and State). I gladly avail myself of this opportunity to assure your Holiness anew of my personal reverence and devotion.—(Signed) WILHELM. (Countersigned) VON BISMARCK.—To his Holiness Pope Leo XIII."

The publication of the Emperor's letter naturally called forth many conjectures as to what were the exact contents of that written by the Pope, and still more, assertions regarding it little calculated to further the views either of the Vatican or Prince Bismarck. Special telegrams from Rome appeared in those German clerical papers which are antagonistic to the success of the negotiations, stating on authority that the Pope had said he would make no concessions until he received notification of the contemporaneous repeal of the May laws. In such circumstances, and the Emperor's letter having been published, the Pope determined to depart from the customary usage of the Holy See, and publish his letters to the Emperor in order to disarm the insinuations of the Prussian Centre, to dispel the doubts artfully spread by them, and to show that the command does not lie in the hands of the political clerical party, but in those of the Pope himself, as supreme earthly judge of what is best for the welfare of the Church he rules. His first letter I have given above; his second reads as follows:—

"Your Majesty,—The letter which your Imperial Royal Majesty sent us in December last by the hands of Signor Schloezer, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of Prussia at the Holy See, has confirmed in us the hope we have long nourished of seeing the religious difficulties in the kingdom of Prussia solved by a complete accord. The august word of your Majesty in showing yourself disposed to take in hand the revision of the actual ecclesiastical legislation enables us to discern that the conclusion of an accord is not far off, and for such a favourable disposition we express to your Majesty our gratitude and satisfaction. In consequence of this we instructed our Cardinal Secretary of State to write a note to Signor Schloezer, which, we believe, has already been brought to the cognisance of your Majesty's Government. In it we have willed that the Imperial Royal Government should be newly assured of the firmness of our intention, already manifested before, of permitting the bishops to give notification of the titulars to be named to the parochial benefices. And to approach as near as possible to the views and desires of your Majesty we have made known also the disposition in which we are, not to wait for the complete revision of the laws in force before providing by the required notification for the parishes actually vacant. We have, however, asked that the measures which fetter the exercise of the ecclesiastical power and ministry, and the education of the clergy, may be contemporaneously modified, inasmuch as we believe such modification indispensable for the life itself of the Catholic Church. It (the note) requires that the bishops have the faculty to instruct and to form the sacred ministers under their own vigilance, and in conformity with the spirit of the Church. The State could not require less than this for its functionaries. Equally an essential element of life is a reasonable liberty in the exercise of the ecclesiastical power and ministry for the good of souls. It would be in vain to name new titulars to the parishes if they are to find themselves impeded in acting in conformity with the duties their pastoral office imposes. An accord established on these points, it will be easy, through the exercise of reciprocal goodwill, to come to, also to an understanding regarding other conditions necessary for assuring a true and durable peace—the final aim of our common desires. In the meantime, we pray your Majesty to receive the reiterated expression of the fervid prayers we do not cease to make for the full prosperity of your Majesty and your Imperial Royal family.—From the Vatican, 30th January, 1883. LEO, P. P. XIII."

In this second letter, therefore, Leo XIII. promptly meets the Emperor on the ground he proposed, but, at the same time, he requires that the concessions he is ready to make at once shall be compensated simultaneously by partial concessions on the other side, instead of what he considers vain promises the Landtag may, perhaps, not approve. He does not ask for the immediate repeal of the whole of the May laws, but that value should be paid down in return for value given.

On Thursday, the 22nd, the birthday of Washington, Mr. Astor, new Minister of the United States at the Italian Court, opened his magnificent salons in Palazzo Rospigliosi for a grand reception. It was an afternoon tea on a splendid scale; only instead of a tea-table there was a buffet heaped with all the delicacies of the season, and instead of tea, champagne flowed freely. The company were invited from 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock, and during that space of time between six and seven hundred guests thronged the beautiful apartments now presided over by the young Mrs. Astor, the fame of whose beauty had already preceded her coming here. The Court of Queen Margherita was represented by the Marchesa Villamarina, lady of honour to her Majesty, by the Countess Panissera, and other ladies of the Royal Household, as well as their repsetive husbands. The Corps Dramatique was in full force; the ambassadors of Austria, Germany, France, Russia, Turkey, Great Britain, Japan, and all the other chiefs of Ministries and Legations accredited to the Italian Government. None of the embassies can rival the British for the beauty and elegance of the ambassadress, Lady Paget, and her daughter, and the pretty wives of the secretaries, Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Beauclerk. Signor Depretis, Prime Minister of Italy, was also there, with Signora Depretis, and Signor Mancini, Minister for Foreign Affairs. The Italian Conservative Opposition was also represented by Signor Minghetti and Donna Laura, and Signor Visconti-Venosta, and others. There was, of course, an immense crowd of English and Americans, especially the latter, amongst whom the Astor reception has been the grand subject for gossip all the week. The absence of their High Mightinesses the Roman Princesses was attributed to some neglect of etiquette, although they were all invited. But a season scarcely ever passes without some such assertion of their unapproachable dignity, either by resenting supposed affronts, or affronting the representatives of foreign sovereigns to whom they hold themselves vastly superior.

The Italian press is unanimous in expressions of regret at the approaching removal of Sir Augustus Paget from the post of British ambassador to the Quirinal. His conduct of diplomatic relations between England and Italy has always been most satisfactory to the latter country, and the employment of Italian architects and artists in the building of the British embassy at Pacta Pia gratified the amour propre of the people. The departure of Sir Augustus and Lady Paget will be regretted by many friends, although socially they have failed to be popular.

The approaching marriage of Queen Margherita's brother, the Duke of Genoa, to Princess Isabella of Bavaria occupies public attention. According to report, the welcome of the Royal bride to Italy and attending festivities are to be at Genoa. This does not please the Liberal press, which begins to clamour loudly for the public reception and festal doings at Rome, the capital of Italy. However, none of the Savoy family, except the sovereign, show much willingness for official appearances at Rome, and when they come to see their Majesties the visits are as short and private as possible. In spite of revolution, freedom of conscience, and all the loud talk against even the spiritual authority of the Pope, the difficulty remains the same, and troubles many a Royal as well as humble conscience.

Count Aquila, uncle to the ex-King of Naples, paid a visit to King Humbert recently, with a view to the restoration of some of his possessions, and it is said he has been successful, and accepts the new order of things in Italy, in order to be qualified to live again in his native country. King Humbert recently visited the extensive excavations at the Roman Forum, in company with Signor Baccelli, Minister of Public Instruction, under whose direction they are progressing. The Prince of Naples also visited the Forum and the Palatine lately, taking great interest in all he saw. This promising young scion of royalty is deeply engaged in the study of history at present, especially that of Italy.

Padre Curci, the celebrated ex-Jesuit, has been lecturing on the possibility of reconciling religion and patriotism in Italy. His conferences have been attended by adherents to the Vatican as well as the Liberals. A very renowned Lenten preacher, Padre De Giovanni, summoned all the Italian journalists to hear him preach against the license of the native press, in the Church of San Lorenzo, in Damaso. The Opinione allowed that there was much truth in what he said, and much to be improved in the subject matter of the public prints.

Last Thursday afternoon there was a quaint ceremony in the subterranean church of St. Peter's. The heart and internal portions of Pius the Ninth's body, removed at his embalment, and hitherto kept in one of the Vatican chapels, were carried in procession, accompanied by the whole Chapter of the Vatican, down into the crypt, and passing through the long subterranean nave and aisles, called the grotte vecchie, were placed in a marble urn near the tomb of the Stuarts. It had been the custom, since the time of Sixtus V., to place those remains of the deceased Pontiffs in the vaults of SS. Anastasio and Vincenzo at the fountain of Trevi, the parish church of the Quirinal Palace; but Pope Leo. XIII. deemed it prudent to depart from this custom on the present occasion, to avoid any possible repition of the scenes which took place on the removal of the late Pope's body to San Lorenzo in 1881.

The two belfries in the dome of the Pantheon, erected by Bernini under Pope Urban VIII., and familiarly called the "asses' ears," are in process of removal. Passing across the pizza of the Pantheon yesterday, I remarked that the work of demolition was being watched with much interest, and apparent satisfaction by the surrounding population. At every door and window were faces, some of them open-eyed and open-mouthed, staring at the mighty shrine.

"NO BAD DEBTS."

(From the Pall Mall Gazette.)

A formula is inserted in all bank balance-sheets to the effect that the net profit of the half-year is so much "after providing for all bad and doubtful debts." The inference to be drawn from this statement is that, like other people engaged in business, bankers do at times lose a little money through their over-confiding habits, and have to write the loss off. But as a rule this inference would be found to be quite wrong by a reference to the speeches of bank chairmen at the half-yearly shareholders' meetings. These gentlemen have a counter formula which is nearly as stereotyped, and runs thus:—"During the past six months I am happy to say that our bank has made no bad debts." Careful readers of directors' speeches will find that most of them have used this formula in the meetings lately held, and one would therefore conclude that, this being true, the balance-sheet form of words is a mere relic of the dark ages of banking. Some chairmen, not content at the recent meetings with saying that the banks they spoke for had made no bad debts in the past half-year, declared that none had been made for years. And yet bankruptcies have been frequent in that period as well as heavy. Losses there have been in every branch of trade, and estates in plenty that have been great in the matter of liabilities, but feeble in assets. How these bankruptcies are to be reconciled with the complete, or nearly complete, immunity of banks from bad debts does not at first sight appear to be an easy problem. We cannot be so rude as to imagine that bank chairmen are dealing in mere rhetorical flourishes, nor is it possible to suppose that banks always escape the fate that so often overtakes the confiding trader.

The explanation is probably twofold, or at all events two causes can be assigned. In the first place, the banks owe their apparent immunity from bad debts to the habit of "nursing" weak accounts—a habit upon which we had occasion lately to make some remarks when speaking of the bankruptcy laws. In other words, when a bank manager discovers that a customer is sinking, he buoys him up until such time as he can get possession of the man's valuables, and then lets him drop. One of the highest marks of skill in a banker is his success in doing this very thing. He veils his customer's want of substance by a judicious supply of credit until such time as that customer has succeeded in getting together enough security for the bank's protection, and then lets him go. It is fair, therefore, to infer that when bankruptcies—and very bad bankruptcies, too—are plentiful, and the great banks at the same time free or almost free from bad debts, a large amount of this very questionable and most injurious nursing has been resorted to. The banker is "secured;" he has got the substance of the estate, and the other creditors are left with the husks.

But that is only half the source of the "no bad debts" statement. Were it the whole, indeed, we should be driven to the conclusion, after all, that bank chairmen had a faculty for imaginative generalities not easily matched, because the system of "nursing" accounts, with a view to getting out without loss when a weak trader collapses, is, like all dishonest practices, essentially ruinous in the end to those that carry it on. For a time—perhaps even for a generation—banks may thus shift the risks of bad trading from their own shoulders to those of their customers, but the result in the end is that insolvency spreads underground like the roots of weeds. Traders cannot go on losing for ever, and banks for ever come out "secured," because the "security" must be in one sense or another their own—or some bank's—customer's merchandise sold to the insolvent person on the faith that he was "good" for the money the articles represented. In appropriating such security the bankers therefore create weakness in new places, and drive trade after a time to depend increasingly upon the dangerous support of accommodation bills. These bills, we suspect, are the second great source of chairmen's assertions that "we have made no bad debts;" these and "renewals" of old genuine bills of exchange, which become, in virtue of their non-payment, essentially the same thing as the pure "kite" or accommodation bill. A great deal of this latter form of appropriating bankers' credit may come into existence unknown to the banker. The "credit," for example, that exists between a city textile warehouse and a country draper is a thing too mysterious for any banker closely to follow. Regularly month by month the banker discounts so much paper for the warehouse people, and on the bills the names of the same traders are found with equal regularity. But the amounts vary so that it is not always, or indeed often, possible for the discounter to trace how much of the sums embraced in the newest batch of bills is genuine new business, how much old debt carried forward. In a general way, however, it is guessed that at the present time a large amount of the small paper of this kind floating about the city represents obligations of considerable antiquity. But there has been no open failure of the warehouses to take up that paper, no open break in the renewals; so the banker "has made no bad debts," though he may be keeping alive warehousemen and retailer alike. This is a common form of renewing credit, too, in much higher walks of business than that of the poor country draper, and under it bad debts may grow unsuspected for years. Consequently before the statements so often heard about immunity from bad debts could be tested and brought to their true meaning, one would require to know the origin and history of every bill held by every banker at the time the balance-sheet is made up, as well as the nature of every advance upon "security." This, however, is just a side of the business which no auditor can test, and one in which there lie dangers which few bankers themselves suspect till it is too late. The average banker is a man of habit and routine. Once let a firm group of firms get the belief established in his mind that their "paper" is "good," and he will, within a certain amount, go on taking it month after month and year after year without a moment's hesitation, pluming himself that he is doing excellent business free from bad debts. All the while the "renewals" and rediscount wrappings up of old unpaid balances and dregs of bankruptcies where the bank was fully "secured" may be piling up for him a tenfold worse state of things than the honest dealing with all the insolvent estates that passed through his hands in a generation would have produced. This is a consideration which might be followed far.

If a doctor is also a lover, can he (asks the Pall Mall Gazette), in case of death, charge for visits of affection as professional attendance? Such was the question decided by Mr. Justice Chitty lately. The action was an administrative one, in which the next-of-kin of a maiden lady who left £4000 behind her complained of the charges made by her executor, a medical man, for executor's expenses and professional services. It appeared that the defendant had been engaged to be married to the lady, and though the match had been broken off he continued to attend her for an internal complaint of which she eventually died. The Judge had to decide upon a charge of nearly £600 for medical services, of which £92 was for two visits a day for 377 days at 2s. 6d. each. The plaintiff contended that the visits were made as a lover, and not as a doctor. But Mr. Justice Chitty thought that as the charge per visit was very moderate, though the number of visits was perhaps excessive, he might allow him one visit a day as a doctor, and, regarding the second visit as that of the lover, knocked off half of the charge. As, however, a charge of three guineas a day for taking the lady for drives was allowed to remain, the doctor's pocket has not suffered severely for his devotion.

EPPS'S COCOA—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

BRISBANE, April 5.

On Tuesday night the Premier arrived safely at home, after his three weeks' tour overland to Bundaberg. On Thursday night last there was a banquet at Maryborough. Several members of Parliament were present. The Premier gave forth another manifesto on the transcontinental railway. It was a repetition of the oft-told declaration of purpose to carry this culminating effort of statesmanship, or perish in the attempt. He touched on the salient features of the provisional agreement between the Government and Mr. Henry Kimber, but emphasised the twelfth clause. This 12th clause is a veritable puzzle. The Premier says it means one thing, the leader of the Opposition says it means the same thing in a different form, and a score of others—professional and unprofessional politicians—say that it means something quite different. Seeing that Sir Thomas M'Ilwraith was one of the parties to the agreement, he surely ought to know what he meant by it; seeing that Mr. S. W. Griffith is the foremost lawyer in the colony, in practice, he ought to be able to perceive what the Premier and Mr. Kimber meant by it. Already the skirmishing over it is frequent and fierce; what the actual fight will be when Parliament meets it is impossible to foretell. The prospect is all the darker because of the dense obscurity in which this crucial 12th clause seems to be purposely buried. If the meaning be what the Premier says it is it might have been expressed in explicit English. Being a bit of a curiosity in its way, I will transcribe it for the study of the curious in such matters:—

"The Governor in Council shall, if required at any time by the contractors, and may, if at any time he thinks fit, manage, work, and maintain the railway or any part or parts thereof in connection with the Government railways, and with or without rolling stock of the Government, and at its cost in all things on the terms of retaining such percentage of the gross earnings as the working expenses (including maintenance and renewals of the Government railways and rolling stock, and a reasonable allowance for the use of Government rolling stock, if used, and all other disbursements in conducting the traffic) bear to the gross earnings thereof, and rendering and paying to the contractors half-yearly the remainder of the gross earnings, and holding the contractors harmless against any loss on such management, working, and maintenance, but with power for the said Governor-in-Council to recoup such loss (if any) out of any sums subsequently accruing to the contractors under this clause."

The Premier says that according to this clause, "as soon as the railway is finished he could say to the company, 'You are bound to hand it over to us, and all I need give you is not the profit that the railway may make, but the same amount as the profit we make on our Government lines, which is 3 per cent.'" Mr. Griffith puts it this way—"The Government shall, if required, work the line at their own expense; if they do they must pay over to the contractors the same proportion of the gross earnings as the profits on Government railways bear to the working expenses thereof. The working expense on the Government lines at the present time are 55 per cent., and the net profits are therefore 45 per cent. The arrangement then amounts to this, that if the company worked the railway and found it did not pay they would say to the Government, 'You work this line and give us 45 per cent. of the gross earnings,' which would have to be paid whether the railway paid or not." To a non-legal and non-interested mind the meaning of the clause seems to be that the Government may "manage, work, and maintain the railway, or any part or parts thereof, on the terms of retaining such percentage of the gross earnings as the working expenses bear to the gross earnings thereof, and rendering and paying to the contractors half-yearly the remainder of the gross earnings." This non-legal mind cannot see what the earnings or profits of Government railways have to do with the case at all. The Government may work the railway it takes over from the syndicate; it must hold the syndicate harmless against loss; it may retain just as much of the gross earnings as the working expenses of that particular railway amount to; and it must pay to the contractors half-yearly the remainder of the gross earnings. It is a most excellent provision—for the syndicate.

The counter-demonstration at Roma came off last Friday night. Mr. Griffith was accompanied by Messrs. Miles, Groom, and Brooks, Ms.L.A. There was a grand feast in a decorated banquet hall. Considering that Roma has long been regarded as a stronghold of the pro-squatting party, an attendance of over two score gentlemen was deemed satisfactory. Mr. Griffith contented himself with criticisms of the Ministerial policy, he enunciated none of his own. Indeed, he said, alluding to the coolie question: "Sometimes it had been said, 'You object to coolies—what do you propose?' Well, he proposed nothing. Some people had an idea that politics was a game of poker, that if one man in politics made an astounding proposition, another must meet it by making another astounding proposal equally absurd. He did not believe in any such thing. If a man made an astounding proposition it was enough to say, 'You shall not carry it.'" So, we have a Government with a progressive policy of two items, coloured labour and a transcontinental railway; and an Opposition with a policy of masterly negativism.

As might have been expected, Mr. Griffiths had a little to say about the aggressive policy of our progressive Government with regard to New Guinea. Here we are all so overpowered by the audacity of the act that we are struck dumb. Mr. H. M. Chester, the police magistrate at Thursday Island, has actually gone to take formal possession in the Queen's name, and on behalf of the Queensland Government, of an island possessing an area nearly as large as France and Italy together! I hope the Papuans will not understand the nature of Mr. Chester's commission, or they will be likely to eat him—commission and all. The labour question is at the bottom of this movement. The ever-increasing number of sugar-planters are at their wits' end for labour supplies. Many of them have turned their eyes to New Guinea, but they are more than a little fearful of the likely consequences of a raid in that quarter. The old sources of supply are drying up. No new source has yet opened. If the Government can first annex the populous island to the north, and make British subjects of the Papuans, then the recruiting agents can go there and hire the natives—by force or fraud—for the Queensland plantations. By a noticeable coincidence, just about the time that the Premier's amiable intention towards New Guinea was mooted, a letter from the Rev. W. G. Lawes, of Port Moresby, appeared in the Brisbane Courier, in which he dealt firmly with this labour-recruiting business. He said he had been often asked in Queensland whether the northern districts could not obtain labour from New Guinea. His reply was, "Yes, if you are prepared to take them by force or deceit, not otherwise." He adds: "It will save loss, disappointment, and endless trouble, if that be clearly understood from the first. Those who are desirous of getting labourers fairly, treating them honestly, and returning them faithfully will certainly be disappointed if they come to this part of New Guinea." That is one aspect of this annexation policy. What sort of an aspect will it have in the eyes of the Earl of Derby? Has the Colonial Office given any sanction to this proceeding? If not, I think the noble Secretary will start from his official seat when the despatch conveying the information is laid before him. To the deputation which waited on him a few weeks ago regarding the New Hebrides he said, "I need not tell you that annexations are not looked on with great favour in this country, especially in so distant and remote a region of the world."

The Treasury returns for the quarter ended March 31, have been published. The revenue is very buoyant. Nearly every source shows an increase. Customs gives an increase on the quarter over the corresponding period of last year, amounting to £31,213, and on nine months £96,873. Nothing else approaches this increase. Stamp duty gives £5,788 for nine months. The total increase in taxation receipts is, for three months £34,357, for nine months £106,727. The land revenue has remained almost stationary. The total increase from all land sources is only £16,246 for nine months. Railway receipts show better. The Southern and Western lines have improved to the extent of £16,397 for three months, and £35,034 for nine months. The central line gives £10,031 increase for the shorter period, but only £14,456 for the longer; while the Northern line, much shorter than the central, shows increases for the respective periods of £5274 and £16,246. The total increase in railway receipts is for the quarter £32,681, for the three quarters £71,899. Postage shows an increase of £9814 for nine months; telegraphs, £12,284. The escort fees show a falling-off to the extent of £9463. The total increase of revenue proper for the quarter was £68,206, and for the nine months £221,300. On the other side, expenditure shows an increase in every department except one. The heaviest is in the public works—£69,769 for nine months, the next is schedules with £27,128, then comes the postal department with £12,459 for the same period; the Colonial Secretary's and the Lands Department are about £11,000 each in advance of the corresponding period of last year. For the nine months the expenditure shows an increase of £381,470, but this includes the special appropriation of last year's surplus, £245,040. The credit balance on March 31st was £318,399. But the payment of nearly £300,000 for interest during the next half-year will reduce that surplus to small compass.

The Governor, Sir Arthur E. Kennedy, has received cablegrammic permission from Lord Derby to leave for the old country as soon as he may be pleased to do so. He left his summer quarters at Toowoomba yesterday. A day or two previously he and Miss Kennedy were banquetted by their admirers and wellwishers in the city of the Downs. In replying to the toast of his health Sir Arthur gave one of those terse, brief speeches for which he is remarkable. He said he was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He had always had to earn his bread before he ate it. He had spent 52 years in Her Majesty's service, but he was not a rich man yet. He had no fear, however, but that those for whom he had worked so long would take care of his old age. It is not unlikely that he will say good-bye to us all before the present month runs out.

The annual meeting of the Acclimatisation Society was held on Tuesday. The afternoon was showery, and the wet both diminished the attendance, and spoiled the enjoyment of those who were present. A meeting in a bush plant-house may be pleasant enough on a fine day, but in showery weather the roof is insufficiently opaque to ensure either pleasure or comfort. The society is progressing satisfactorily; 65 new members joined last year, many of whom live in distant parts of the colony. A large amount of money is being spent on improvements and extensions. The gardens are in beautiful order, and, as the fine season we have had has accelerated the growth of all sorts of vegetation, the gardens were never before seen to such advantage as now. A run out to Bowen Park would well repay any visitor to Brisbane who may have a taste for horticulture. Not less than 8000 plants, exclusive of cuttings, were distributed last year.

The prolific crop of maize this year forced the price down to a non-paying point. As a natural consequence the maize growers are almost as much dissatisfied as if a drought instead of a "dropping season" were prevailing. Those who occupy scrub lands are asking one another if they cannot try an alternative crop. Of course, in this sacchariferous age, every man who has scrub lands turns his thoughts to sugar; it is sugar in the north and sugar in the south along a full thousand miles of coast-line. The Rosewood farmers, who lie off the coast 20 miles at least, are now endeavouring to arrange with a Mr. Vincent for the establishment, in their midst, of crushing machinery and a refinery. They seem likely to come to terms; a joint stock company is being formed to erect the buildings, and purchase machinery for working a new process which Mr. Vincent has discovered. Those who help themselves under favourable conditions are sure to succeed.

DEPUTATION.

RAILWAY FROM MURRUMBURRAH TO YOUNG.

Yesterday, a deputation, consisting of residents of the districts of Grenfell and Forbes, was introduced to the Acting-Minister for Works by Messrs. Vaughn, M.L.A.; Coonan, M.L.A.; Stokes, M.L.A.; and A. G. Jones, M.L.A., in reference to the proposed extension of the railway from Murrumburrah to Blayney.

The objects of the deputation were explained by Messrs. Green, Dunn, Halls, Reymond, and Donkin. They objected that the extension as originally proposed would not answer the end which had been anticipated, of relieving the traffic of the Western railway, inasmuch as the distance that goods would have to travel by taking that route and going along the Southern line, would be so much increased that it would not pay producers to send on that line, unless the Government carried the goods almost free. Further, they contended that the route in question would go through a very difficult country, in which very little settlement could possibly take place, while the cost of construction would be enormous. On the other hand, they maintained that by taking the line by way of Grenfell to Forbes, a fine country would be opened up, capable of a very large amount of settlement, while the cost of construction would be so much less than that of the other route that the difference would go a long way towards constructing the extension of the line from Forbes to Wilcannia.

Mr. Stuart, in reply, expressed his surprise that the people interested had allowed the matter to slumber so long, as it would have saved very much delay and expense if they had brought the matter forward before, instead of leaving it until the very last stage had been reached. He was sorry the Engineer-in-Chief was unable, through illness, to be present, but he would consult with that officer, and would communicate with the deputation before any further steps were taken.

GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following notifications appear in yesterday's Gazette:—

Public Holiday.—Thursday, 12th April, is declared a public holiday in the districts of Berrima and Forbes.

Nuisances.—The provisions of the Nuisances Prevention Act of 1873 will come into operation in the district of Wickham on 1st June next.

Resumption of Land.—The following portions of land have been resumed by proclamation for Public school purposes: Four acres, situated at Boco, parish of Boco, county of Wellesley, being portion 215; land at the Upper M'Donald, parish of Auburn, county of Northumberland, containing by admeasurement 2 acres 0 roods 11 perches, more or less, forming part of William Sternbeck's 50 acres, portion 20; land in the town of Penrith, parish of Castlereagh, county of Cumberland, containing by admeasurement 0 acres 1 rood, 15½ perches, more or less; land situate at Clarendon, parish of Eurongilly, county of Clarendon (part of portion 16, A. J. A. Beveridge's conditional purchase of 40 acres), being portion 209; land containing 2 acres or thereabouts, situated in the parish of Willoughby, county of Cumberland, and colony of New South Wales, being part of 60 acres originally granted to J. M'Millan; land held in trust for the Church of England, and containing 24 perches in the city of Newcastle, parish of Newcastle, county of Northumberland; land situated at Berry Jerry North, in the parish of Murrulebale, county of Bourke, containing 6 acres, portion 153.

Appointments.—Mr. Montagu Yeats Brown, her Majesty's Consul at Genoa; and Mr. Henry Grant, her Majesty's Consul at Naples, to be the officers, at their respective places of residence, in whose presence contracts or agreements made under the provisions of the Agreements Validating Act, 39 Victoria, No. 29, between any persons for any personal services to be rendered or performed in the colony of New South Wales, shall be made and subscribed. The Major of Brigade to be the officer commanding the Head-Quarters Band of the Volunteer Force. Mr. William Andrew Tobin, of Lila Springs station, Warrego, to be a magistrate of the colony.

Electric Telegraph Department.—Mr. Richard H. Mills to be stationmaster at Gulargambone; Mr. L. S. M'Kay, operator at Orange, to be stationmaster at Girilambone; Mr. Edward G. Stewart, messenger at Wentworth, to be operator at Menindie.

Post Offices.—Post offices will be established on the 16th instant at the following places, viz.:—Captain's Flat, between Whinstone Valley and Foxlow; Clarevaulx, between Glen Innes and Wellingrove; Ferrier's, between The Rock and Urana; Oakwood, between Inverell and Warialda; Piper's Flat, on the Mudgee railway line, between Wallerawang and Capertee.

Telegraph Office.—A telegraph office was opened on the 5th February last at Ivanhoe.

Trustees.—The undermentioned gentlemen to be trustees of the land in the county of Cumberland, parish of Castle Hill, area 1 acre 2 roods 3 perches, set apart for Presbyterian burial-ground, viz.:—Rev. James Daniel Murray, Messrs. David Drysdale Henderson, Alexander Forsyth, Donald Kell, William Finlayson, to be trustees of the land at West Kempsey, dedicated on the 12th March, 1869, for Wesleyan Church and minister's residence, being allotments Nos. 20 and 19 of section 12a, respectively, viz.:—Revs. George Hurst, William Clarke, William Kelynack, George Woolnough, and George Lane: to be trustees of the land in the county of Clarence, parish of Woodford, area 2 roods, being allotment 1 of section 10, dedicated on the 24th October last as a site for School of Arts at Brushgrove, viz.:—Messrs. William Archer, sen., Alexander Campbell, William John Lobb Kyle, Thomas Hunter Toggo, and Hector Campbell; land in the county of Wynyard, dedicated on the 12th January last, for public recreation at Wagga Wagga South, being an area of 3 acres and 39 perches, is vested in the Wagga Borough Council; the Right Rev. Mesac Thomas, Bishop of Goulburn (and his successors), to be trustee of the land in the county of Dampier, parish of Congo, being allotments 11, 12, and 13, of section 5, in the town of Coila, dedicated on the 15th August, 1871, for Church of England church and parsonage.

Something about Skin Diseases.—What cures of blood and skin diseases, and scalp affections with loss of hair, can compare with those of the Hon. William Taylor, Boston, State Senator of Massachusetts; H. E. Carpenter, Henderson, N. Y.; Alderman Tucker, Boston; Will M'Donald, 2542, Dearborn-street, Chicago; F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit; and many others from infancy to old age, details of which may be found in future editions of this paper, and all of which were promptly and permanently cured by the Cuticura Remedies? Cures sworn to before the British Consul of Boston.—[Advt.]

A TRIP DOWN SOUTH.—III. BOMBALA AND ITS RESOURCES.

By Agricola.

If the Land Act of 1861 had fulfilled the high hopes that were entertained of it by the people of New South Wales when it passed the Legislature, a visitor to the Bombala district would, after he had crossed the Tantawanglo Range, on the road from Bega, and entered upon the fine, lightly-timbered flats formed from the detritus of the surrounding basaltic hills in the neighbourhood of Cathcart and the Dragon's Swamp, and thence along both sides of the road, as far as the eye could reach, to Crank's Creek, and on into the town itself—flats and gentle uplands capable of growing from 30 to 40 bushels of wheat to the acre—he would prepare himself for little bursts of enthusiasm as he drove past the "smiling homesteads" and golden fields of waving corn, which would line the road on either side in one continuous scene of unrivalled and prosperous beauty.

Or, coming in from the other side—from Delegate way—as the road leads him over the rich undulating downs, clothed here and there with open belts of timber, and as he looks up the rich valleys of Ashton Creek and Saucy Creek, and then goes on and sees to the right and to the left of him the same wealth of soil, in its magnificent stretches, he cannot repress the feeling, "What a happy home must this be for its thrifty and industrious population of thousands."

Or, leaving Bombala and taking a circuit away out westward, and looking from the top of the ridge far across the open undulations of the valley of Brugalong Creek to the watershed of the Cambalong, and riding northerly to Brugalong Station; thence following the track to the right, up over the well-wooded hill, emerging from the timber on the opposite slope in his descent towards Bibbenluke, the same magnificent panorama greets his view in the long valleys of the Undowah and Bombala Rivers. On, across the Bombala River at Bibbenluke, and back to the town by the Cooma road, as he passes the many glades smiling in their fertility a happy welcome to the husbandman, he involuntarily exclaims, "Yes, this is the place where families crowd in, in their desire to share its natural wealth. This is the scene of prosperity and thrift. This must be the granary of the South."

But where is the teeming population? Where the waving fields of golden beauty? Where the smiling homesteads?

Here and there an iron hut stands lonely and deserted. The roof, partially stripped by the wind, tells that the service of the "dummy" is no longer required, that the residence is completed, or that the improvement clause is satisfied, while the bleaching rafters and empty sashes grin defiance of the law for the settlement of the people on the soil.

Here a blackened chimney, gaunt and lonely, serves as a beacon that this is an improvement purchase, long since secured; perchance the hut, which was once attached, is even now elsewhere, repeating the curse which has already kept one family from settling on the land.

There, the moss-grown, broken enclosure, the few sickly fruit trees struggling with the half wild pigs and rank weeds for an existence; the grizzly skeleton of the hut, and the fallen in outhouses, tell that that was once the home of a bona-fide yeoman, who has perhaps been starved out under a law which surrounded him with Volunteer land orders or dummy selections, and that his land has added to the broad acres of the large adjacent estates.

Go where we will the same signs mark the Bombala district, which prevail in most other districts of the colony—that the bulk of the land has fallen into the hands of a few of the people.

Yet, withal, Bombala is a fairly prosperous district. There are some smiling homesteads there—some homes of sunshine and happiness—standing in the midst of their broad domains, which year by year have gone on extending their limits, till now they are little principalities of freehold land, secured in defiance of the law's limitation. Some homes, too—homes of selectors, snatched like brands from the fire of monopoly which raged around them, and consumed all save themselves—homes secured in spite of the law's operation. There are some cultivated fields, in their plethoric luxuriance, waving the harvesters to come on and reap their golden yield. But these are few and far between, and stand like oases in the vast desert of undeveloped riches which lie round on every side, waiting to welcome the large population which the land is so well able to support.

Bombala itself, having a population of some 700 or 800 persons, is a neat little town, situated on the Bombala River, which divides it into parts—East and West Bombala. The eastern portion of the town is devoted almost entirely to trade and commerce—the leading hotels, stores, banks, newspaper offices, flour mills, tannery. The School of Arts and the Public school are situated on this side, while a substantial wooden bridge communicates with the west. In a commanding position on the brow of the hill is the new, commodious, and substantial-looking courthouse, built, so the presiding magistrate informed me, with so little regard to acoustic principles that it is almost impossible to hear and weigh the arguments of the learned gentlemen who appear on either side of the cases tried, so that the Bench is left pretty much to its own discretion in determining the severity of the sentence to be passed on the delinquent. Perhaps the interest of justice is better served that way after all. Close by are the lockup and police barracks. Away to the right stand two places of worship—the Catholic and the Presbyterian—in a somewhat harmonious proximity. Off to the left, on a gentle eminence on the east side of the river, but some distance beyond the busy portion of the town, the English Church, ivy grown and picturesque in its retirement, overlooks the whole scene, which is dotted here and there with the gardens and orchards surrounding the private residences.

On the east, and about a mile from the town, a comparatively high hill rises, capped with a bare and somewhat precipitous bed of conglomerated rocks, spurs from which ramify close down into the town itself. These conglomerates tell something of the long past history of the district, that that high hill was once the pebbly beach of the ocean. But they tell more than that. The waterworn and well-rounded fragments of conglomerate of one period showing the abraded surfaces of the particles of which they are composed—embedded in the mass of the next—reveal how in the slow and mighty heavings of nature's great bosom, after the land had once been separated from the waters and the first rocks were formed, it had again become submerged, when those were broken up and washed by the rolling tide into rounded pebbles of conglomerate, to become mixed with the fresh stones in course of preparation by the waves for the formation of the new rocky mass. This, again, has been upheaved to its present position, and now stands a monument recording two distinct periods of depression and upheaval which have visited this portion of the colony.

Although a very fair hard silicious sandstone, suitable for building purposes, is moderately abundant in the neighbourhood, advantage has been taken of the plentiful supply of brick-earth, and most of the houses are built of bright red brick, which imparts a light cheerful appearance to the town. But the aggregation of large estates in the vicinity appears to have deprived the people of that energy and spirit of enterprise which is always found in towns where small landholders are numerous in the surrounding district. Small landholders, whether agriculturalists or graziers, always have some common interest to serve for the benefit of the district—they want a railway, or a road, or a telegraph line or something; and every time they have to go into town they are forcibly reminded of the requirement, so that it becomes the burden of their conversation when in there. This awakens an interest in the townspeople, because whatever will benefit the outlying population must also benefit them, and assist in making trade more brisk. No matter how the townspeople become split up into little cliques and sections, which they always do in small towns, they have a common interest in helping the country residents, and this brings all classes of the community together on some common platform for the benefit of the district. The small landholders thus act as a sort of cement, uniting the broken fragments of town society on some great point; and whatever may be the differences of the townsmen among themselves generally, on this point at least they work "cheek by jowl" in the attainment of their object, or go hand in hand to "bust up the Government" if they can't get it.

Bombala exhibits all the signs of a want of country population. It is not incorporated, and on asking some of the leading residents why the town was not under municipal government, they said the people would not help them in their previous efforts to make it so; and when I asked some of the others the reason, they replied that efforts had been made to incorporate the town, but they had petitioned against it because the "Toffs," as they described them, wanted to have everything all their own way. The same with everthing else. Some years ago they erected a handsome school of arts, with a commodious lecture hall attached; but owing to the want of unity amongst the people they have not now even got a committee formed to look after it. On two or three evenings I went there to see the papers, and was the only occupant of the reading-room. The building is quite deserted, and I understand an attempt is being made to sell it, so as to pay off a debt still hanging over it. Even the show, in the almost total neglect of a committee, is left entirely on the shoulders of some half-dozen of the more energetic of the townsmen, with but scant sympathy or response from the people. In such a cattle-breeding district as this is, the fact of there being only 20 exhibits of cattle tells its own tale. There are so few country residents surrounding the town that no emulation exists between them. There was not a single farmer's exhibit shown in the cattle sections, while there were only some half-dozen exhibitors altogether in those sections.

These remarks about the people do not apply exclusively to Bombala, but to every town similarly situated, where the whole of the surrounding land has passed into the hands of a few persons. They apply unfortunately to the majority of towns throughout the colony, and nothing can so clearly exhibit the evil operation of our land laws as the character of the exhibits at the annual shows held in most of our country towns.

The show of vegetables and grain, although by no means so numerically large as might have been expected, at once pronounces the soil to be unsurpassed in its suitability for agriculture. The potatoes, beets, mangolds, and wheat were really magnificent samples of local production; so also were the fruits, particularly the apples, for which the soil appears to be specially adapted.

Situated as Bombala is within 50 or 60 miles of the seaboard at Eden, from which there is regular steam communication with Sydney, that district alone ought to be able to supply the metropolitan market with potatoes, grain, and pulse, instead of allowing the other colonies to supply us with nearly a quarter of a million pounds worth per annum.

The county of Wellesley, in which Bombala is situated, contains an estimated area of about 2,000,000 acres, of which fully one-fifth is suitable for agriculture; but 50,000 or 60,000 acres would furnish all the produce imported to the colony, and place Bombala as one of our most prosperous districts, vieing in its prosperity with the highly favoured and fertile dairying district of Bega, which it adjoins.

At present Mr. A. Morris is conducting a trial survey to Cooma—51 miles—to join the branch of the Great Southern Railway, which is now in course of construction from Goulburn. This will give a railway carriage of something over 300 miles to the metropolis, and will make Sydney the shipping port for any surplus produce, even if it will pay to send it such a distance by rail from Bombala. It will certainly never pay to grow wheat for export if it has to go by rail to Sydney; but with rail communication to Eden, where there is a fine harbour at Twofold Bay, in which ships of any tonnage can load, nothing could prevent Bombala from becoming our greatest wheat-growing district, and Eden the point of export to Sydney and the neighbouring colonies.

A railway there—even if only a narrow gauge line—would yield a handsome return, and while fostering the industries to which the country is naturally adapted, it would open up a large tract of undeveloped land.

The culture of tobacco has been commenced in the district, and it was exhibited for the first time at the recent show. The specimens shown appeared to be well-grown and vigorous plants, auguring well for the future growth of the industry. I notice, too, from the Sydney Mail, that the culture of this plant has also been commenced at Inverell, and that the show there also had for the first time native-grown tobacco exhibits. With the long railway freights both towns must labour under, probably such an article of production will prove more remunerative than any other.

Considering all circumstances, the local manufacturing industries are well represented. Some remarkably good leather from the local tannery was exhibited at the show, also some very good buggies of local make. There are also two flour mills, one of which has recently been taken over by a joint stock company. This company has set an example which might well be followed in other country towns. Commencing on a paid-up capital of only £601, it went into business, and during the first year had dealings in wheat to the extent of over £3300. It has already paid one dividend of 10 per cent., and its next year's operations are looked forward to with confidence that they will be still more remunerative.

The country is all more or less auriferous, although nothing has been discovered, so far, in highly payable quantities. Copper also exists a few miles out of the town, but not of sufficient richness to work at the present time. Lead and graphite also exist in the neighbourhood, and the discovery of tin has been reported. But I think it improbable that any of those minerals are to be found in sufficient quantity to warrant the expenditure of much money in searching for or working them. The great industries for which the district is specially adapted are agriculture and wool and beef growing. Situated at an elevation of some 2000 feet above the sea, the climate is temperate, but with rather severe winters. In this, as in physical features and many other respects, Monaro resembles New England very much, but there are fewer of those extensive beds of granite which yield the rotten spewy soil found in many portions of the latter district. Silurian slates and schists appear to be the primary rocks here, and where basalts and other tertiary deposits exist they immediately overlie the palæozoic formations, and yield a sound and healthy pasturage for both cattle and sheep. Fluke is an almost unknown disease there, and footrot is rare in its occurrence, both of which are somewhat common on New England if the stock are not well looked after.

The visitor to Bombala may spend a few weeks very pleasantly and profitably. He will find the people throughout the district exceedingly kind and hospitable, as well as desirous of affording him all information respecting the district and its resources; and those who know anything of sheep and cattle will see animals on some of the stations well worth looking at—animals that can boast as good blood and quality as anything to be found elsewhere in the colony.

Twenty-one Duels in a Day.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily News writes:—"The University of Jena, and indeed the whole city, have passed through a week of intense alarm and anxiety, which are far from being at an end even now. On one day 21 serious duels took place among the students, and, the arms used not having been properly cleaned, all those who were wounded had their blood poisoned. About 40 young men are lying in the hospital in a serious condition. One great favourite, the only son of wealthy parents, had his mind upset by an intense attack of fever and committed suicide by taking strychnine. He died after a terrible agony that lasted many hours. Two more have died already, and there is little hope of saving more than one-half of those who are still in a pitiable condition. This dreadful calamity will no doubt serve to make university duelling very unpopular in Germany, if not with the young men themselves, certainly with their relations." The correspondent adds that it is difficult for an Englishman to believe on what pretence a duel will sometimes take place, and relates at some length an incident which once occurred in Heidelberg. An Englishman, noticing at table-d'hôte how awkwardly a young German student was using his knife, said, "You will cut your mouth open if you don't leave off eating gravy with your knife." The student looked up, and answered, "What is that to you? I can cut my mouth open to my ears, for all you have a right to interfere." "Oh, nonsense," said the Englishman, coolly; "you can't expect a decent person to let you butcher yourself at dinner!" "Oh, but I can though, and you shall see! Dummer Junge!" With that the student rose and left the room. Dummer Junge! (stupid fellow!) signifies as much as a challenge. The Englishman was terribly surprised at the serious consequences of what he deemed a most natural remark, offered to apologise, and did all in his power to have the matter arranged, but without effect. He intended firing in the air if he had the second shot, but chance was averse to him. He had the right to shoot first—the aim was deadly, and the young Teuton fell without a groan. Next day the Englishman travelled to the town where his victim's widowed mother lived, and at the end of a two hours' conversation he convinced her of his sincere regret and his wish to serve her. She admitted that her son had not died through his fault, but through the mistaken notions of honour current among the youth of Germany.

EUROPEAN NEWS.

We have received files of London papers to the 2nd March per the Orient Company's steamer Potosi, from which the following extracts are taken:—

IRELAND.

A parcel containing 6oz. dynamite, with fuse attached, addressed to Earl Spencer, has been dropped into the Ballydehob post-office. The address was written in a large hand:—"On Her Majesty's Service. To the Right Hon. Earl Spencer, Dublin Castle." The parcel bore no postage stamp, and to this omission the postmaster probably owes his life, as, had it been stamped, he would certainly have impressed the official die in the usual way, and the stroke must have caused an explosion. In the centre of the package was a portion of a fuse with a percussion cap on the top. Dynamite was placed to support the central fuse, and a further coil of fuse was bound round the dynamite, the outer covering being of calico, on which the label bearing the address was pasted. The postmaster, recognising the nature of the contents of the parcel, communicated with the police immediately, but there is very little likelihood of tracking the culprit, as before he was aware of what the package consisted, the postmaster destroyed the label and outer covering by throwing it into the fire.

Carey and all the prisoners are kept under the strictest surveillance, and are not allowed to communicate with each other, or, in fact, with any person. Even their wives or other nearest relatives are not permitted to see them unless in the presence of a warder. With respect to Mrs. Byrne, it should be remembered that Carey distinctly stated in his evidence that he did not know the name of the woman who brought the arms to him, but was afterwards told that it was Mrs. Byrne. There is not the slightest reason to suppose that he meant to deceive the police, and the value of his information is not impaired by this mistake.

With reference to the disclosures made by the approver Carey during his examination at Kilmainham, the Irish World has published an outrageous leading article, which contains the following sentence wholly printed in italics:—"We desire to see England struck by a more telling blow than any contemplated by the men who were the actors in the Phœnix Park tragedy." In another part it says:—"When the sentence of Judge Lynch was executed in Phœnix Park there was no such universal approval by Irishmen the world over as there will be when English skies are reddened by fires kindled for the purpose of teaching the English Government that injustice to Ireland means danger to England." After vague hints as to terrible possibilities in store, it proceeds:—"We know the vulnerable part of England. We feel certain, if that is exposed to attack, the days of English oppression in Ireland are numbered."

A correspondent of the Times states that recently an assault took place in a public-house on the Maamtrasna Crown witnesses which originated through some observations made by a young Irish-American named Mulrow, who is a near relative of Myles Joyce, one of the men executed for the Maamtrasna murders. It seems that one of the Joyces struck Mulrow with a loaded whip, inflicting a severe wound on his head. A general fight then ensued, and the police interfered with drawn swords. They were, however, soon disarmed, and the weapons were freely used both upon the police and the Joyces. Mulrow is dangerously wounded, and is under arrest in his father's house, being in an unfit state to be brought up for trial. Anthony Joyce, one of the Crown witnesses, is seriously wounded, having received a sword thrust in the face. None of the police are seriously wounded, but some of the combatants were badly beaten.

MR. PARNELL'S REPLY TO MR. FORSTER.

In the House of Commons on the 23rd February, a large number of members were present to hear Mr. Parnell's reply to the speech of Mr. Forster on the previous evening. After a long and severe personal attack upon Mr. Forster, in which he spoke of him as a man who might be called an informer, Mr. Parnell declared that, with regard to his supposed connection with Sheridan, he charged Mr. Forster, not only with suggesting an untruth, but with suppressing the fact that in Mr. O'Shea's interview with him the names not only of Sheridan, but of Davitt, Redpath, Boyton, and Egan were mentioned. [Here Mr. Forster interposed, and said they never had been mentioned to him, and Mr. O'Shea retorted, "They were mentioned."] As to the use of the funds of the Land League, there was no doubt that cheques had been sent by the sustentation fund to the families of suspects. Mr. Parnell next made some acrimonious reflections on Mr. Forster, and advised the Government to take him back as better fitted to administer the Crimes Act up to the hilt than his successor.

The Home News observes:—"On Friday, February 23, an unusual throng of members and distinguished visitors, including the Prince and Princess of Wales, were present in the House to hear Mr. Parnell on his defence. But he almost ostentatiously omitted to reply to Mr. Forster's accusations. He was, he declared, indifferent to English public opinion, and he only cared for the approval of those for whose good he worked—the Irish themselves. He took some notice of Mr. Forster's specific allegations with respect to his connection with the American Land League organ, the Irish World, but he failed, or rather did not seriously attempt, to clear himself of the imputed responsibility. The only point on which he showed any dexterity was in dealing with Mr. Forster's taunt that he had lost influence in Ireland since the Kilmainham Treaty. This fact Mr. Parnell did not deny, but he attributed it to the operation of the Crimes Act, which he had foretold would leave no place for the 'constitutional agitation' in Irish politics between the Government on the one hand and the secret societies on the other."

On Monday, February 26, Mr. Parnell again appeared before the House as the mover of an amendment to the address condemning the administration of the Crimes Act by Earl Spencer and Mr. Trevelyan. Originally the resolution contained the positive assertion that the policy of the Irish Executive had resulted in "the hanging of innocent persons;" and although this accusation was afterwards qualified, the essential extravagance of its terms remained. It embodied serious charges against the Irish Judges which Mr. Parnell did not even attempt to justify, and which were amply refuted by several speakers on both sides of the House. He succeeded in establishing a slight grievance in relation to the working of the Curfew clause, and he showed that the Crown in selecting the juries had exercised a wise discretion in partially excluding Roman Catholics. But his failure to impugn the conduct of the Irish Executive was more disastrously signal than his failure to rebut Mr. Forster's charge, and he only induced 15 of the Home Rule members to follow him into the lobby. The inevitable result of these events has been seriously to diminish the authority and prestige of Mr. Parnell in Ireland. The debates in Parliament have proved him to be without a case; the discussion makes it doubtful how far he can be said to have a following. The overwhelming defeat of his candidate for the county of Dublin was the first practical evidence of his waning influence in his own country. Seven years ago, when Mr. Parnell himself, then an unknown man, contested the county on the same principles, he was only beaten by a majority of 800; his nominee is now beaten by more than 1000. The difficulties of his position have become so acute that speculation is busying itself with the course he proposes to adopt in order to extricate himself from them. It is suggested that he meditates an early retirement from political life.

FRANCE.

The Official Gazette of February 25 publishes decrees placing the Duc d'Aumale, the Duc de Chartres, and the Duc d'Alençon on the retired list by retrait d'emploi. These decrees are preceded by a report signed by General Thibaudin, the Minister of War, which demands the adoption of the measure, on the ground that public opinion has become alive to the inconvenience caused by the presence in the army of officers belonging to former reigning families, inasmuch as the great principles of military subordination and common discipline might be found to be weakened by the presence at the head of the troops of men whose birth gives them an exceptional position.

The decree expelling the princes from the army was communicated to the Duc de Chartres on February 25, just as he was going to bed. General Cornat, chief of the staff, was instructed to inform him that the general had returned from Paris at midnight, and desired to see him. The Duc de Chartres put on his uniform and proceeded to General Cornat, who appeared rather embarrassed when he stated that General Thibaudin had given orders for his immediate departure from Rouen. The Duc de Chartres observed that nothing authorised him to quit his regiment unless he received a written order. This General Cornat had got ready. The prince arrived early the next morning at the cavalry barracks to give the order to the officer on duty.

After receiving the decree, the Duc de Chartres issued the following order of the day:—"Officers, sub-officers, brigadiers, and chasseurs,—During five years we have worked together we had but two aims—to prepare for France devoted and well-trained soldiers, and to maintain the 12th Regiment of Chasseurs at the height of its old reputation acquired on the battlefields. I never had the honour of leading you in battle. It will be regretted all my life. I was at your side at Solferino and with the army of the Loire. I will be there again next time. Meanwhile obey my successor. Prove by your zeal, your devotion, by an absolute obedience to the laws of the country and to military regulations, that the lessons I have taught you were inspired by nothing else but honour and the love of our country."

A ROYAL SILVER WEDDING.

The Berlin Court has just been the scene of a splendid pageant. The silver wedding of the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany, the festivities arranged for which were, in consequence of the death of the Kaiser's only brother, postponed for a month, was celebrated on Wednesday, February 28, upon a very brilliant scale. All the members of the House of Hohenzollern came to the German capital to do honour to the hero and heroine of the occasion. The Court of England was represented by the Prince of Wales. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh had come from St. Petersburg, nor is there a single European Government which failed to send a special representative. The rejoicings opened with the general reception. A state banquet was followed by a procession, the grand dukes, princes, and other Royal or illustrious personages taking part in which wore the most magnificent costumes of the Court of Frederick III. The procession was itself ushered in by an English quadrille in which the Crown Prince of Austria had as his partner Lady Ampthill. The whole scene recalled the splendours of the mediæval German Court, and constituted, in the opinion of those who witnessed it, the most superb spectacle of the century.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION IN BELGIUM.

An explosion of dynamite occurred on February 28 at a village in the neighbourhood of Brussels, in consequence of which two men, one of whom was mortally wounded, have been arrested. From their preliminary examination before the Juge d'Instruction, it has been ascertained that their names are Cyvoct and Metayer, both of whom were recently sentenced for taking part in the Socialist disturbances at Montceau-les-Mines. Both the prisoners belong to a committee of Anarchists. On being first questioned as to the cause of the explosion, they stated that they were about to make a trial of some new substance for pyrotechnic displays, a portion of which accidentally exploded in the pocket of one of them. The police have seized a large number of documents showing the existence of a conspiracy affecting Belgium and several other European States, and telegrams in cypher have been sent to Vienna, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg. Several arrests are expected to be made in Brussels, and three houses in the city are closely watched by the police. The greater part of the letters and documents seized by the police in connection with the explosion are in the Russian or Italian language, and have reference to a vast international plot organised by Anarchists. Later accounts state that Metayer has died of the injuries he then received. His companion, Cyvoct, will, it is believed, be shortly handed over to the French authorities, his extradition having been demanded. Another arrest, that of a man named Siambochi, has been made in connection with this plot.

CONTINENTAL SOCIALISM.

The Madrid correspondent of the Standard writes on March 1:—"The Socialist agitation in Andalusia has assumed a very serious aspect. The arrest of the chief of the Jerez Anarchists has led to the discovery of a society styled the 'Band of the Black Hand.' It comprised 49,910 Socialists of all ranks, from peasants and operatives to shopkeepers, farmers, and small landowners. The organisation was divided into 109 district federations and 800 local sections. In many villages and small towns almost every householder was a Socialist. In the investigation they have made the Judges have discovered that the supreme inspiration and instructions, with a code of organisation and rules, have come from an Anarchist named Ceter, in Geneva, and the correspondence which has been seized confirms the confession of the ringleaders, that the society was in active communication with the International and other revolutionary groups abroad and in the principal towns of Spain. Letters, threatening Judges, have been received from Madrid, Barcelona, and other places, to which accomplices have been traced. The documents and proclamations seized are headed with the words 'Association of Working Men, Section of Agriculture,' or 'Section of the Labourers,' and so on. One document congratulates the leaders on the fact that the Spanish Federation was the largest and best organised by the International in Europe. The trial of the accused will be delayed by the discovery of the widespread character of the secret societies. The magistrates as well as the police are embarrassed by the number of prisoners and the revelations leading daily to further arrests in places far apart. The prisons at Jerez, Arcos, and Cadiz are so crowded that the authorities have decided to send minor offenders to Seville. Telegrams from the seat of the agitation describe the population as much excited by the daily sight of the arrival of large detachments of prisoners, brought in, mostly from rural districts, by gendarmes and cavalry escorts. In the gaols of Jerez alone there are 380 prisoners, and in those of Arcos 250. To-night arrests have been made at Madrid, Barcelona, and other towns, in consequence of the information given by several Anarchist agitators. Arms and dynamite have also been seized to-day in Andalusia. The suspects arrested to-day belong to the middle class. The secret societies are reported to have prepared a general strike of the peasantry, to take place at the opening of the spring season, which begins early in Andalusia. This would aggravate the situation by endangering the crops. The terror of the landlords and the insolence of the agricultural labourers are increasing."

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Prince of Wales has been created a general in the Prussian army, and the Emperor has presented him with a sword from the Hohenzollern Museum.

The Messageries Maritimes Company have just completed another new steamer intended for the Australian trade. She is named Sydney, and her gross tonnage is 4008 tons and her nominal horse-power 600. On her trial trip from Marseilles to Spezzia, she attained a speed of 15·20 knots. She was built in the company's dockyard, and she will leave that port for Australia via Mauritius on the 15th instant.

Mr. Arthur Hodgson, one of the "pioneer" squatters of Queensland, but for many years resident in England at Stratford-on-Avon, has been selected as the Conservative candidate for Frome at the next general election.

An application having been made in the Court of Queen's Bench for leave to file a criminal information against Mr. E. Yates, the proprietor of the World newspaper, for libel, the case came on for argument on March 1. The libel complained of was contained in a paragraph which it was now admitted contained an untrue statement reflecting seriously on the conduct of the Earl of Lonsdale. It was urged in extenuation that at the time of publication the proprietor of the World did not know to whom the paragraph referred, and that steps had since been taken to remedy any mischief which might have been done. Their Lordships, however, made the rule absolute for a criminal information.

Says a correspondent of St. James's Gazette:—"I can endorse the view taken by 'Gerontius' of the connection between 'Home Rule and the Catholic Church,' for I have a letter from a Jesuit rector, dated January 31, 1874 (during the general election), advising a candidate to try for a seat in Ireland by going in for the following platform:—'Home Rule, Catholic education, amnesty (of the Fenian prisoners), I think you may fairly commit yourself to.'"

The German newspapers blame Mr. Parnell for not having openly condemned the Phœnix Park murders, and say that his omission to do so will be regarded as an encouragement to criminal agitators.

The State of California has brought an action against the Central Pacific Railway, claiming damages to the extent of 2,000,000 dollars, on the ground that the company have ignored the provisions of the contract by which they received aid from the State during the construction of a line.

The Moniteur de Rome, commenting on the discussion in the English Parliament on Irish affairs, says:—"The Irish people must now perceive how true it is that a straightforward and Christian policy is always the best. Revolutionists who ransack and murder are Ireland's worst foes. The Pope, the bishops, and the clergy, who entreat the Irish to use in their struggle nothing but loyal arms, are Ireland's best friends, and do more to help Ireland's emancipation. This appears clearer and clearer every day. We likewise trust that Mr. Gladstone will find the means to separate the cause of Ireland from that of the partisans of 'No, One,' and will not allow all to expiate the crimes of a few miserable sectarians."

PRESBYTERY OF SYDNEY.

A meeting of the Presbytery of Sydney was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last evening, when the Moderator (Rev. Andrew Gardiner, M.A.), the clerk (Rev. J. Auld, M.A.), and a number of other ministers and elders were present. A letter from the Rev. P. F. Mackenzie was read with respect to his relationship to the Church. After some discussion it was resolved to amend a certificate which had been granted to Mr. Mackenzie, by making a portion of it read that he leaves the Presbytery in the full status of a minister of the Presbyterian Church of New South Wales. The Rev. J. M. Ross then introduced the Rev. J. J. Thorp, who had, he said, recently arrived from the Presbyterian Church of England, and had been accepted by the Church Extension Committee. The Rev. Mr. Thorp was welcomed by the Moderator. The Rev. J. Auld said that the next business was the consideration of the question of the desirableness of sending in a petition to the Legislature with respect to the Licensing Act Amendment Bill now before Parliament. He had read the remarks of the Premier when moving the second reading of that bill, and he must express his surprise at finding that Mr. Stuart stated Sunday dram drinking and the number of sly-grog-sellers had very much increased in Scotland since the passing of the Forbes-Mackenzie Act. He (Mr. Auld) considered that that measure was a very good one. Rev. J. M. Ross said that the effect of the operation of the Forbes-Mackenzie Act was that in one day there was a diminution in the number of persons confined in Edinburgh prison of 208. Before the passing of that Act the magistrates were not allowed to imprison any person for drunkenness for a period exceeding 60 days. Well, in order to test what effect the passing of the Act had, 60 days were allowed to elapse from the time of the measure coming into operation, and it was then found that there was a diminution in one day of 208 in the number of prisoners. It was not a fact that the Act caused an increase of drunkenness in Scotland, as had been alleged. Rev. J. C. Patterson said that before the passing of the Forbes-Mackenzie Act he saw some fearful scenes, even at mid-day, in the principal streets of Glasgow; but after the passing of the Act such scenes were not witnessed. In regard to the question of sending in a petition to the Legislature, it was well known that the General Assembly had already sent in a petition with respect to the licensing question; but our legislators were not very discriminating, and therefore the more petitions the Presbyterians sent in the better it would be. After further discussion, the question of sending in a petition to the Legislature dropped, the Presbytery evidently considering that the petition from the General Assembly was representative of the views of the whole Church. Mr. Hugh Hossack, a catechist, who has been labouring at Port Macquarie, wrote intimating that he desired to visit his native land, and wished to be supplied with a certificate. The Rev. J. M. Ross spoke in eulogistic terms of the services rendered to the Church by Mr. Hossack, and moved that a certificate be granted to him. The motion was seconded by the Rev. J. Auld, and carried. A letter was read from the Church Extension Committee indicating centres which were considered to be eligible for the work of Church extension. It was resolved to remit the letter to Kirk Sessions. A letter was read from the Rev. J. Auld, tendering his resignation of the office of clerk. Rev. J. M. Ross gave notice that he would, at the next meeting of the Presbytery, move motions having reference to the acceptance of the resignation; to the ability and zeal with which Mr. Auld had performed the duties of clerk, and the regret which was felt at his retirement; and to the appointment of the Rev. George Mac Innes, B.D., to fill the vacancy.

It is useful to know the derivation of words. Both "Cocoa" and "Chocolate" are of Mexican origin. The word "Chocolate" is derived from "chocolatl," the sound produced by the primitive stones used to bruise and mix the cocoa with sugar; whereas "cocoa" is the name under which the unadulterated beans of the "theobroma cacao" of Linnæus are imported into England. Those who wish for cocoa absolutely pure should ask for the Cocoa Essence originally prepared by Cadbury Brothers.—[Advt.]

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10.

The PRESIDENT took the chair at half-past 4, and there not being a quorum of members present, the House stood adjourned until 4 o'clock p.m. the following day (Wednesday).

The following members were present:—Mr. Dalley, Mr. Hill, Mr. Darley, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Alderson, Mr. Macintosh, Mr. Brodribb, Mr. Cadell, Mr. Marks, Mr. King, Mr. Grahame, Mr. Macleay, Mr. Docker, Mr. A. Campbell, Mr. Terry, Mr. White, and Mr. C. Campbell.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10.

Mr. SPEAKER took the chair at 4.30 p.m.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Abigail, said that if he possibly could he would during the recess frame a Friendly Societies Bill to mitigate some of the evils complained of.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Dalton, said the survey of the Orange to Forbes railway line was in progress, and would be completed as early as possible.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Garrard for Mr. Wm. Clarke, gave particulars respecting William Marr.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Garrard for Mr. William Clarke, said that tenders for the erection of the passengers' foot bridge facing Kite-street, Orange, would be called within two months.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. M'Elhone, said that ironbark or any other approved hardwood would be used on the Mudgee railway for sleepers, bridges, and other sorts of work; white gum was not to be used for any purpose.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Trickett, read the following letter from the Commissioner of Railways as to free passes:—"Department of Public Works, Railway Branch, Sydney, 8th July, 1881. Sir,—In forwarding the enclosed information respecting the issue of free passes, called for by the order of the Legislative Assembly, I would mention, with reference to the wording of paragraph 1 of the resolution, that no pass has been issued by me except under Ministerial authority. In the case of the passes issued to Judges on circuit, this course was approved of by the Governor and Executive Council, and has been in force for some years. With regard to the issue of passes to the officers of H.M. ships, competitors in intercolonial contests, commissioners at exhibitions, representatives of the press, and visitors to the colony, passes have been granted in accordance with the rules which have been in force for many years under the sanction of the various Secretaries for Public Works. In reference to the free passes issued to visitors I may state that in no instance have passes been issued without careful inquiry, and in strict accordance with precedent. I have, &c., CHAS. A. GOODCHAP, Commissioner for Railways."

Mr. DIBBS, in reply to Mr. Hugh Taylor, said that the steamer Pacific had been removed from the ferry at the instance of one of the Marine Board inspectors because she was unfit for service. The Marine Board held an inquiry into the circumstances connected with the casualty to this vessel, and ordered prosecutions in every case wherein the law had been broken. It was stated by one of the surveyors during the inquiry that it was almost impossible to get 2nd class engineers to go into vessels of the Pacific class.

Mr. WRIGHT, in reply to Mr. Lynch, for Dr. Ross, said that in the Postal Department the number of postmistresses, official and non-official female postal assistants was 280. The number of female receiving office-keepers was 38. One female office-keeper and eight female servants were employed in the General Post Office. In the Electric Telegraph Department the number of females employed as operators was 30. None were employed as probationers or otherwise.

Mr. FARNELL, in reply to Mr. Stokes, for Mr. Coonan, said that a design only for the survey of the gold reserve near Parkes had been prepared. The survey would be made and the land thrown open for sale if not required for mining purposes.

Mr. STUART, in reply to Mr. Lyne, said that no steps had yet been taken to make inquiry in the matter of the expenditure of the £2000 on the Estimates for the conservation and distribution of water over the dry regions of this colony.

PAPERS.

Ministers laid on the table the following documents:—Two reports upon the representation of the colony at the Bordeaux Wine Exhibition; Statement as to the amount expended in remodelling the Real Property Index; Return with regard to the land in connection with the railway near Eveleigh platform; Register of wrecks which have occurred during the year 1882 on the coast of New South Wales; Return of claims on account of smallpox; Return showing the quantity of white spirits imported into the colony during the years 1880, 1881, and 1882 respectively, the names of the parties and quantities imported by each for the same years.

It was ordered that the documents be printed.

PETITIONS.

Mr. HEYDON presented a petition from the inhabitants of Yass, praying that the distance in the travellers' clause of the Licensing Act should be amended to 15 miles.

Mr. NINIAN MELVILLE presented a similar petition from residents of Greta.

Mr. STOKES also presented a similar petition from residents at Parkes.

The petitions were received.

RESUMPTION OF LAND FOR TRAM PURPOSES NEAR CIRCULAR QUAY.

Mr. GARRARD moved,—"That there be laid upon the table of this House copies of all letters, papers, memorandums, and valuations in connection with the resumption for tram or railway purposes of certain land and buildings in George and Pitt streets, near Circular Quay."

The motion was agreed to.

PYRMONT BRIDGE.

Mr. ABIGAIL moved,—"That there be laid upon the table of this House copies of all letters, minutes, papers, deeds, plans, or other documents having reference to the purchase by the Government of the roads and bridges from the Pyrmont Bridge Company." He would content himself with moving the resolution.

Mr. STUART said that it would be inconvenient to lay the papers on the table of the House at the present time, as the matter of the purchase was still under consideration between the Government and the company, with a view to some settlement. He understood that notice had been given by the Government of the resumption of this bridge, and the question had not yet been settled. It was set down for trial before the Court, and it would be quite impossible to lay the papers on the table at the present time. The case had been set down for consideration on Monday last, but he (Mr. Stuart) being desirous of perusing the papers in order to see whether some determination could not be arrived at between the company and the Government without going through the unpleasantness of a lawsuit, the case was with the consent of both parties postponed.

Mr. MERRIMAN thought that from what he had learned it was very doubtful whether the Government intended to make the bridge free to the people belonging to Balmain. The object, he thought, of Mr. Abigail was to ascertain if the tolls were to be removed from this bridge.

Mr. CAMERON said Mr. Abigail was only at present asking for the production of the papers. The question of the disposal of the tolls would come on at another time.

Mr. ABIGAIL said he had some time before asked that the papers-in-chief should be laid on the table, but that had not yet been done, and a month or five weeks additional would not make the matter any worse.

The motion was agreed to.

PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF GERMAN EMIGRANTS.

Mr. HOLTERMANN moved,—"That, in the opinion of this House, the sum of £25,000 should be apportioned out of the sum of £150,000 voted by this House for immigration generally for the introduction into this colony of German immigrants, to embark direct from Hamburg, under the approval and control of the Agent-General in London. That the above resolution be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor." He would give several reasons to the House in justification of the course he had taken in moving this resolution. For the last 10 or 12 years, or more, he had been asked by many persons if he could not do something to encourage immigration from Germany. He might mention that whilst to the United States there had gone 160,000 German immigrants, but 883 had come to Australia. The reason for this he thought to be that the journey here was so far, and the expense greater. Immigrants could go from Hamburg to the United States for about £5 or less a head, whereas to come out here it cost about £16. Many of them had noted the prosperous ways among the German immigrants, for which, no doubt, they were indebted to the sound education and the careful home training they had received. He himself had waited on the Agent-General, and had asked him how he could get some German immigrants from Hamburg to this colony, and all the answer he received was that he could not allow any sum to German immigrants direct from Hamburg, or to cover the expense of the journey from Hamburg to London, and, of course, many of them could not under these circumstances come here. When he had given notice of this motion he had not been aware that there was a clause in the Immigration Act by which a certain amount of money could be set apart out of the vote for immigration to bring immigrants from other portions of the world than England. We had now in this country some 11,000 persons, whom he might call Germans. They were Germans, Danes, Swedes, and Hollanders, and as they contributed in a very great measure to the different revenues of the colony, that was one reason which, he thought, quite justified him in making this application. Most hon. members were aware that the Germans, Swedes, and Dutch had taken great interest in this country in prospecting for minerals. He was sure that they had supplied a couple of dozen of the greatest prospectors in the Australian colonies, and that but for them we would not have made such progress as we had done. Their mining discoveries had been the cause of opening up the colonies and bringing population here, of a real good stamp—industrious people, because he was sure that anyone who left the home country and went into mining here went in for hard work. He was proud to say for his share that he had gone through all stages during the last 14 years, and had lived under great disadvantages since he came here. When he came to the colony he did not speak a word of English, but he had learned it since, and was proud to do his best at it now. (Hear, hear.) The Germans, as he had said before, contributed a large amount to the revenue, and had been the means of opening a great many goldfields, and he considered that he was justified in asking for £25,000 to go towards immigration of this kind, that the immigrants should embark direct from Hamburg. With these few remarks he begged to bring forward his motion. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. LYNE said that if there was any necessity for this motion he should certainly vote for it, but from what the hon. member had quoted just now as to the power of the Agent-General, he scarcely thought there was occasion for it, as if the Agent-General thought it expedient to appropriate part of the immigration vote towards the introduction of German immigrants he had the power to do so. If he had not that power, he trusted the hon. member at the head of the Government would tell them so. From his experience of German immigrants he was in a position to say that they made the best of colonists—the best of farmers, who produced from a given area of land a larger quantity of grain than others did. They lived contentedly and frugally, and paid their debts. Of our present colonists very few would go into the interior and settle down on a small area of land, but the Germans would do that; they went in communities and formed their own schools and churches, and there was a great failing in that respect over a great part of the country. He was sure that if a larger number of Germans than we had now were introduced we should have a much larger proportion of grain grown, and should have a larger population.

Mr. STUART said that he was quite sure no one could gainsay what had been said of Germans as colonists. In many respects they showed some of the very best qualities that one could desire, and he personally would like to see a portion of our immigration coming from that source. But he did not see that this motion was necessary. The regulations now existing covered so large a portion of this resolution that he thought the hon. member might feel satisfied with having given expression to his opinions in the House, and he thought he would better serve the object he had at heart by withdrawing the motion now, and not going to a division. The present regulations limited the amount of the foreign element of our immigration to 10 per cent., which would give £15,000, instead of the £25,000 asked for, and the carrying of the motion to the full extent would involve the recasting of the regulations as they now existed. He did not think it would be desirable for the House to take any such step as would involve the revision of these regulations until it could be done with a view to all the points which would have to be considered. The hon. member might rest perfectly satisfied with the expansive power of the regulations as they now existed. At present if it were found that a desirable class of immigrants from Germany could be induced to come to these shores it could be done to this extent of £15,000 under the regulations. There did not seem to be any difficulty in making arrangements for this desirable class of immigrants. Not that he would like to say that the whole of our immigrants should consist of Germans or any other nation, but of a due admixture. He himself and the Government generally were favourable to the introduction of Germans as a good class of immigrants, but he did not see the use of this motion.

Mr. M'ELHONE said he would move an amendment that the figures "£25,000" be struck out of the motion, and the figures £15,000 inserted in their place, so that it should be the duty of the Agent-General, whoever he might be, to see that we got a due proportion of German immigrants out here. He felt it his duty to say that, from his experience, the Germans were by far the best class of immigrants that came to this country. (Hear, hear.) They were sober, honest, and industrious, almost too industrious. He had heard it levelled against them that they almost starved themselves to take up homes for themselves; but he held that if a person came from a country where he scarcely knew what it was to have a decent suit of clothes on his back, or to get a good meal for himself and his family, it was his duty to try and get a home for himself. Germans did not take up land from a desire to blackmail, but to make a home for themselves. Hundreds of them had deserted South Australia, and, coming to the Albury district, had taken up the whole of the country before them, and the results were that wherever the Germans settled down they became cultivators, growing wheat and corn, and making wine. He knew of two German families which were a credit to the country. There were the Bretts, who commenced by selecting 40 acres of land on the Goulburn, and who now had a comfortable holding of several hundred acres. They not only cultivated wheat, but had a large vineyard and made wine; and he was sure that their land yielded them £2000 a year from wine and everything else. It would be a good thing for the people of this colony if, instead of drinking "blue ruin" and "soldier's joy"—(laughter)—they took to drinking the good wine of the country. Another family which had got on equally well were the Harttwells. German immigrants were sober, industrious, and honest, and did not select land to sell it again. If other people had done the same instead of selling out, as they had done, we should not have this bitter class feeling and the animosity between selector and squatter. He thought it safer to carry this amendment than to leave it to the Government to write home to the Agent-General to carry it out. He believed that all agents-general were alike, and would not go out of their way to get German immigrants to come here. He hoped the House would carry the amendment, and that the Agent-General would see that he got the right class of people from Germany—the country people, the cultivators, and wheatgrowers—and not those from the towns.

Mr. LYNE was very glad the hon. member had moved this amendment, because it would not clash with the present regulations, which left it optional on the part of the Agent-General to spend a portion of the immigration vote in this way. It would, however, be an advantage if the House would pass a resolution compelling the Agent-General to appropriate a certain sum of money to bring immigrants from Germany, and for that reason he would support the amendment.

Mr. BURNS thought the Government might very well accept the amendment. The amendment was quite in keeping with the present regulations. It would be an advantage if the immigrants came direct from Hamburg, and it was not likely that the Agent-General would make any attempt to establish an agency in Hamburg unless some resolution of this kind was accepted by the House. What Mr. Holtermann desired was that we should have immigrants of the very best kind, and German immigrants were known to be a most useful class of colonists, engaging themselves with farmers, engaging in wine-growing and similar pursuits, and in a variety of ways proving themselves to be amongst the very best colonists we could obtain. If we once commenced obtaining immigrants direct from Hamburg it was possible that a portion of that stream of immigration which had in past years been flowing to America might be turned towards Australia.

Sir HENRY PARKES had no objection whatever to immigrants from Germany, and be fully subscribed to what had been said in their favour, but be very much doubted the soundness of the policy of passing any resolution in favour of one nationality. It would have a very invidious appearance among other nations of the world—Swedes, Danes, Dutch, and others. (Hear, hear.) Independently of that, it would be more wise and prudent for the Colonial Secretary to first put himself in communication with the Agent-General to see how far a system of this kind could be carried out. He doubted whether the necessary amount of supervision could be exercised, and the necessary provision be made, with such a small sum of money. The little delay that would occur in making the necessary inquiries would not be a very serious consideration. Mr. Holtermann might withdraw, upon an assurance that the question would be fully inquired into in the way in which he suggested. Inquiry could be made in the recess, and if the hon. member were not then satisfied he could move this motion again next session.

Mr. YOUNG had no objection to German immigrants. Generally speaking, they were hard-working people and good colonists, but he could not see the advantage of passing this resolution, even in its amended form. The cost of travelling between Hamburg and London would not warrant them in setting up a separate establishment in Hamburg, and it would be impossible for the Agent-General to have a proper oversight of the German immigration from Hamburg without a separate establishment. The expense of such a system would be almost as much as if they obliged the German immigrants to travel via London. He would vote against both the resolution and the amendment.

Mr. VAUGHN thought it very desirable to encourage an influx of German immigrants. If they adopted the suggestion to withdraw the resolution it would probably be shelved, and they might hear no more about it. There could be no question that the class of people which this resolution sought to introduce would be of great benefit to the colony. It appeared that it would cost £1 10s. per head more to introduce these immigrants by way of London than direct from Hamburgh, and he could not see what there was to be gained by bringing them by way of London. It would not require an expensive establishment in Hamburg, for he believed that an agent there would do all that was necessary. He would support the amendment.

Mr. MITCHELL did not pretend to dispute the arguments of Mr. Holtermann and Mr. M'Elhone in favour of German immigration, but they forgot this one fact, that we wanted to keep the Australian colonies English-speaking communities, and if we introduced such a large amount of the German element what possible objection could be raised to appropriating part of this vote for introducing immigrants from other nations, such as Swedes and Poles? One part of the regulations stipulated that only 10 per cent. of the vote should be applied to introducing foreign immigrants, but if such motions as this were carried we would by and bye be introducing nobody else but foreigners. That was one of the reasons why he would vote against the motion. He had no objection to German immigrants, but he did object to apportioning out this vote for any particular nation.

Mr. TARGETT said there could be no doubt that the German element in this country was one of the best colonising elements we had, and in no way could money be better expended than in the importation of men who would develop the wine-growing interests of this colony, and that could be better done by the importation of German colonists. Mr. Mitchell eulogised the German colonists, and yet inconsistently said he would vote against this motion. They were a class of people who became loyal colonists, and attached to the soil of their adopted country, and he believed the money spent in assisting that kind of immigration would be well spent.

Mr. H. H. BROWN said the mover of this resolution deserved very great credit for having taken this course. He would vote for the amendment moved by Mr. M'Elhone, because he believed that this kind of expenditure would be largely for the benefit of the colony. In his electorate they had many German settlers who had became valuable members of the free-selecting class, and he believed that they were amongst the most useful of our colonists. They could very often, by their industry and thrifty habits, make a living where other colonists would fail. The wine-growing industry was becoming one of the most important in the colony, and it was very desirable that we should have a class of immigrants who would help that industry forward, and many of the German immigrants were of that class.

Mr. GARRARD said that one would think, from some of the speeches that had been delivered, that this colony was one vast vineyard, and that we should have only wine-growers as immigrants. He agreed with those hon. members who had eulogised the thrifty habits of the German colonists, but he considered that the adoption of a motion of this kind would be likely to embarrass the Agents-General at home. In the opinion of some hon. members it was just possible that Chinamen might be a desirable class of immigrants, and there would be nothing to prevent any member bringing down a resolution saying that a portion of the money should be devoted to the introduction of that particular class. But putting on one side that extreme view of the question, there were other nations besides Germany from whom they could secure desirable immigrants—(hear, hear)—and why should they not also be encouraged to come here? It seemed to him, too, that if the resolution were carried, and that the immigrants should embark direct from Hamburg, there would be a very great increase in our Immigration Office, necessitating, at any rate, some permanent office being established at Hamburg, and he did not think it had been shown that they were justified in going against the whole tenor and spirit of the immigration regulations, which provided that 10 per cent. only of the immigrants brought here should be of foreign nationalities. He thought therefore that it would be injudicious to carry the resolution, as it would embarrass the Government and the Agent-General. It might be that the Germans were a desirable class of immigrants, and he would like to see them come out here in larger numbers, but until the regulations were altered with the consent of the House, it was undesirable that the resolution should pass. He hoped the hon. member for St. Leonards, after having heard the expression of opinion by the House, would withdraw the resolution and leave the Government to deal with the matter.

Mr. FREMLIN hoped the hon. member, Mr. Holtermann, would not withdraw his motion; or, if he did, that it would only be for the purpose of accepting the amendment, for hon. members knew very well that when a matter was shunted for Government inquiry very little ever came of it. As to what the hon. member who had last spoken had stated about Chinese, the House had most emphatically expressed its opinion that it did not want Chinese immigrants—(hear, hear)—but they had a right to say that they should have more German immigrants—who were a law-abiding, frugal, and industrious race, and who went heart and soul into whatever they had to do. He should certainly vote for the amendment, believing that the House had a right to vote money for whatever purpose it pleased.

Mr. DAY said he was perfectly satisfied from his own experience that they could not have a better class of immigrants than the Germans, but as England had generously given us this country free of all conditions, they should first think of their own people in Great Britain, many of whom were on the point of starvation. If he came to speak of the German population of this colony, he must certainly say that as colonists they could not be excelled. In the district he represented there were some thousands of them who had taken up land. Many of them had only got small holdings, and out of that they not only made a living for themselves, but for large families. Many of our own people were not content unless they had several hundred acres of land, and even then they complained that they could not live; yet they found that the Germans lived upon small holdings very comfortably. If they had any surplus fund to devote to foreign immigration, he thought it should be used in introducing Germans; but it was their duty first of all to consider their own race.

Mr. HEYDON concurred with the last speaker in the respect he entertained for the strength and frugality of the Germans, and their very many other good qualities, but he had the same respect for the Swiss, French, and other nationalities. He did not know of any other country that paid to bring foreigners to its shores. America made no distinction in regard to foreign immigrants, and if they were to spend money in immigration there were plenty of our own people who could be brought here. If there were no more English immigrants to be obtained, they they might bring foreign immigrants; but while they could get the former they should use the money for that purpose. He could not see anything in the argument that they should bring foreigners here before their own people, especially in this country, which had been so generously given to them by the English Government. There was an implied condition, too, in the gift, that we should do what we could to relieve the overpressure of population in the old country.

Mr. GRIFFITHS could bear testimony to the frugality, industry, and other good qualities possessed by the Germans, not only in this but in other colonies. There appeared to be a general consensus of opinion in the House in this respect, and he would not have risen had it not been for a mistake made by an hon. gentleman opposite, in saying that it would cost 30s. per head more to bring out German immigrants than English immigrants. As a matter of fact, there was a line of steamers running every six weeks from Hamburg to this port, and he did not see why immigrants could not be carried by that line at the same cost as immigrants from England. Hamburg was the great port of export from Germany at the present time, and if the motion were carried, and they had to establish an office there, he did not see why it should not be done at once, so as to have two streams of immigrants coming to this colony.

Mr. CAMERON agreed with other hon. gentlemen as to the appreciation they all must feel as to the character of our German fellow-colonists, and they were a class of immigrants they could well bear an addition to. He was inclined when he first read the resolution to give it his support, but on further consideration, he felt it to be his duty to vote against it, because it seemed to him to create a national distinction which the House had no right to entertain. (Hear, hear.) He was perfectly well aware that if they could get a large number of German people here, the colony would be greatly benefited; but hon. members would recollect that in our immigration regulations at the present time provision was made for the importation of ten per cent. of natives of countries other than Great Britain and Ireland, and if the proposition of the hon. member for St. Leonards were carried, the whole of that amount would be devoted to German immigration. (Hear, hear.) With a due regard to the German people, and with the high appreciation he had of their character, he could not close his eyes to the fact that there were people of other nationalities who would make excellent colonists in their way, and they had as much right to our assistance in coming here as the people of Germany. If they passed that resolution, where was this going to stop? Any hon. member who could get a majority, might propose a special vote to bring French, Italians, or even Turks, and it was a very bad precedent. He would advise the hon. mover, now that he had brought the question forward and had it ventilated, to withdraw the resolution, and trust to the Government to bring out a proper proportion of these people to the colony.

Mr. SLATTERY said the last speaker said that this resolution would be making some invidious distinction; but they had made the distinction already in their own regulations in regard to their own people, for they limited the number who were to receive assistance to come here. He should have great pleasure in voting for the resolution—not for the purpose of praising up the German people, nor for the purpose of relieving Germany, but to bring here a grand race of people to colonise this country. They found German people were more amenable to discipline than any other people, and in every way they occupied the most respectable positions, even in the mercantile world, in art, in music, and in everything they attempted. This resolution would not prevent the people of Great Britain from coming here; for there would be still £125,000 left to bring people from Great Britain and Ireland. The Germans would make excellent colonists, and they would soon mix with the people, and become a part of them.

Mr. POOLE was quite ready to admit the qualifications of the Germans as colonists, but he did not think a parallel to this motion could be found in any other English-speaking people in the world. The last speaker said the Germans were a grand race; he would ask were not we equally a grand race? This motion, if carried, would place the Government in a very difficult position. There was no reason why the German race should be selected more than any other. It was never intended that a large sum of money should be voted for the importation of a number of any continental people.

Mr. LYNCH supported the amendment. It would be better for the mover to accept the amendment, and withdraw the original motion.

Mr. STUART was sure that this motion would be met in the best way if the hon. member would now withdraw it. (Hear, hear.) The expressions of opinion that had been given by the House were quite sufficient, and whatever Government was in power would take care to settle the matter in such a way as would meet the views of the House. He might mention that he had already been impressed with the value of this class of immigrants, and he had placed himself in communication with the Agent-General in regard to it. At the same time he did not think it would be wise to at once give the Agent-General specific authority to do this until he had satisfied himself that it could be carried out in such a way as would be applicable to our system of immigration. There were now facilities for communication between this colony and Hamburg, but we must have some guarantee for the proper surveillance of the people. (Hear, hear.) He hoped the hon. member would withdraw the motion.

Mr. GARRETT said this motion showed the awkwardness of the country taking upon itself the task of inducing people to come here by the public funds. He could never see why the country should spend any of its money in bringing people to it. It must be admitted that there was no necessity to vote public money to induce the very best class of colonists to come here. We had got a very good class who came here at their own expense. How did we know what class we should get if we paid for them! We might get the scum of their population. We occupied this country on behalf of the grand nation from which we spring. Besides, this resolution was out of keeping with our regulations, and if it was adopted any one might bring forward a motion in favour of voting £10,000 for the importation of Maltese, Italians, Frenchmen, or any other foreign nation.

Mr. HOLTERMANN, in reply, said that when he spoke of Germans, he included Swedes, Danes, Dutchmen, and others who might be considered as Germans. These people would never travel over to England to tranship to Australia; they said "No; we will go to America." That was one of his reasons for bringing forward this resolution. But after the remarks of the Colonial Secretary, and his promise to take this matter into his serious consideration, so that a few more Germans might be obtained direct from German ports, he (Mr. Holtermann) begged to withdraw the resolution.

Mr. COPELAND said it appeared to him that this motion was improperly before the House. It proposed an appropriation of public money, and should have been moved in committee. The money for immigration purposes had been voted in the Estimates, but until the Appropriation Act was passed, this motion could not be moved.

Mr. M'ELHONE, was of opinion that the resolution did not necessarily commit the House to any expenditure of public money.

Mr. BURNS submitted that the motion was not out of order; it was merely an expression of opinion on the part of the House as to how an appropriation of the House that had been sanctioned should be expended.

Mr. SPEAKER said that both the motion and the amendment were properly before the House. The money—£150,000—for immigration purposes had already been voted. The motion was not merely an expression of opinion, but it in no sense had a tendency to increase public expenditure.

The amendment was put and passed, and the motion, as amended, was then negatived on the following division:—

PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE COLONY.

Mr. HOLTERMANN moved,—"That this House will, on Friday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider an address to the Governor, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be placed on a Supplementary Estimate for the present year a sum not exceeding £2,000 for the purpose of procuring photographs of Sydney (in panorama), its public buildings, street and other architecture, also of the most important public buildings and public works throughout the colony, and distributing the same amongst the various art galleries, mechanics' institutes, and institutions of a like character throughout Europe, with the view of thereby exciting the attention of the most desirable class of immigrants and others to the advantages offered for the introduction of skilled labour into this colony." He said that as the previous resolution had been debated at length, he hardly thought it was necessary for him to say much on this one. [An Hon. Member: Withdraw it.] He, himself, had produced the largest photographs in the world, and it had been acknowledged in the countries through which he had travelled with them that they represented the prettiest views in the world. During his travels through Europe he had with him canvas 80 feet long and 5 feet wide, full of panoramic views representing streets and buildings in this colony, and he had thousands of people to see them. Eighty per cent. of the people in general had never dreamt that Australia was so far ahead as was shown by these photographs. In America, when he exhibited them, everyone came to ask information, and he was quite sure that his efforts in this direction were the cause of many people coming out here. He had taken this step in order that it might lead to direct independent immigration. One of the men who had come here in consequence of his efforts was now a painter at Hudson's establishment, where he was engaged in decorating sleeping-cars, and it was a fact that he had decorated the car which took the first prize at the Melbourne Exhibition. Such a man ought to have a Government situation. [An Hon. Member: No; he would get too lazy.] He was proud to say that he had never seen a German who was lazy. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) It was skilled labour of the best kind that the Government ought to have. He had endeavoured to get a certain article introduced into the railway works that might be applied in connection with sliding valves. It was equal to half a dozen of the ordinary kind, and he had tried to get one to send to the Melbourne Exhibition. He was proud to say that Mr. Middleton, of the Railway Department, had sent to Newcastle for the man who invented it to try his skill. The man was one of the most skilled extractors of minerals from ore, and this particular article was of a metal called phosphor-bronze. It did not become heated, and it was thought that its introduction here would save the colony several thousands of pounds a year. These were only two of the parties who had come out, but he ventured to say that there were hundreds besides. He did not think they could advertise the colony too much—(hear, hear)—especially by means of photographs representing its progress and the most striking features of its development.

Mr. M'ELHONE thought that the hon. member would do well to withdraw the motion, or accept an amendment to it. The two Germans the hon. member had referred to were great hands at inventing, but the hon. member himself was the greatest benefactor the human race ever had, for he had invented the elixir of life, "Holtermann's Life Drops." He would suggest that to this motion there be an amendment to the effect that the amount mentioned should be equally divided, and that one moiety should be devoted to supplying photographs for art galleries, and to providing poor persons in delicate health with life drops. This would immortalise the hon. member and the colony too.

Mr. DIBBS explained that perhaps Mr. Holtermann had overlooked the fact that a sum had been voted, portion of which could be applied to an object similar to that which the hon. gentleman had in view.

Mr. HOLTERMANN said that he had not noticed the vote, but as it had been mentioned he would withdraw his motion.

The motion was thereupon withdrawn.

OCEAN MAIL SUBSIDIES.

Mr. YOUNG moved,—"1. That, in view of the large number of fast and powerful unsubsidised steamers now trading between the Australasian colonies and the various European ports, this House is of opinion that no new contracts should be entered into, or existing contracts extended, whereby subsidies are granted for the conveyance of mails. 2. That the above resolution be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor." He said that he would not feel justified in going any great length into this matter. Up to a late period the Government were justified in establishing fast and regular communication with the mother country and the outer world generally by a system of mail subsidies; but he thought he would be able to prove that the period had gone by, and that such a system was not justifiable now. In 1852, when the first subsidised steamer, the Chusan, came here, the merchants of the day, and in fact the whole community, had to put up with the very uncertain communication with the outside world which was afforded to them by the sailing vessels which then carried on the trade of the country. The sailing vessels of that day were much inferior to those of the present day, and it was seldom that they made the voyage from England under a hundred days. The effect was serious, not only to merchants, but to the whole community. Also, at this time they had nothing in the shape of telegraphic news, and no one could deny that in these circumstances it was necessary for the Government to establish as fast and regular a system of communication as it was possible for the colony to get. Also, at a later period the subsidies were justifiable, and the Government were justified in entering into a contract with the Pacific Mail Company. At that time, apparently with the view of putting itself forward as the foremost colony of the Australian group, Victoria entered into a contract with the P. and O. Company; and as a matter of self-defence, New South Wales, in conjunction with New Zealand, availed itself of an opportunity for having the Pacific mail service. To New Zealand this was extremely valuable, as it enabled her to obtain her mails quicker than by any other service. He need scarcely point out in how many different ways the circumstances of the colony had altered since that time. When the Pacific mail service was entered into there were no steamers running to Sydney other than those which were subsidised, and at that time it was quite justifiable that some steamers should be subsidised to carry mails at certain intervals. Now it was very different; we have powerful steamers running to the colonies irrespective of subsidies and running in as good time, or very nearly so, as any of the subsidised steamers, and leaving and returning at fixed intervals. Also the trade of the colony was now so important that the merchants of the world were competing against each other to obtain it, and the shipowners competing to give the greatest accommodation to passengers, and thus gain a greater share of the public support. In his opinion, if all the subsidies were stopped at the end of this year, or even next month, we would still have steamers leaving this port for England four times a month. The trade was likely to increase every day, and not only the trade, but the facilities for carrying it on. He had seen a notice the other day in the Herald as follows:—"Although the import trade of these colonies had been altogether in excess of requirements, there is apparently a disposition to promote it still further. English papers state that the prospectus has been issued of the Anglo-Australasian Steam Navigation Company, Limited. The capital is £600,000 in 60,000 shares of £10 each, to be called up, £1 per share on application, £1 per share on allotment, and the remainder at intervals as required. The company is formed to develop the outward Australasian goods trade in connection with the direct home trade when available, and with the Asiatic and American trades when such direct home freights are not available. It is stated that it has for some time past been apparent that the goods traffic with the Australasian colonies is rapidly increasing—assuming, indeed, a development far beyond the growth of the passenger traffic, thus presenting an excellent opening for a line of cargo steamers of good speed and small working expenses, which class of steamers, being fitted with all the newest and most practical appliances for economy of fuel and labour, must, it is urged, in the future not only displace the sailing vessel, but also compete successfully with the steamers engaged in the trade. So that to the present number of vessels trading to our colony we would probably in a few months add many more, so that we would be running no risk whatever by giving up subsidising steamers. He had no wish to be considered as aiming directly at the Pacific mail service, because he admitted that the contract had been well carried out and time had been kept fairly well, and if the service had not been as productive as had been anticipated, or as useful a mail service as had been hoped, it was not the fault of the proprietors; but still, so far as the general public were concerned, it had been a source of positive injury to a large number of those who carried on a correspondence to or from this colony. Then it had not increased trade as expected. It had been anticipated that it would lead to an enormous trade between this country and America; but on account of the large protective duties in America, everything which naturally should go from here to that country was heavily taxed, and the service in that respect had failed in a large degree to realise what had been hoped. It had lately been said in the press that it would be a pity to put an end to this service, because it brought us into direct communication with a country where manufactures, such as agricultural implements and new inventions, were speedily and constantly developed; but he pointed out this did not apply to the western side of the States. Nearly all such inventions and manufactures were developed in the eastern States, and these, if asked to send merchandise by the most expeditious route, they usually sent it across the Atlantic to England, to be reshipped hither. Sometimes this service was useful to us when our market for breadstuffs was immoderately high, as it acted as a check; but at the same time, that it should be so, appeared to be hard on our producers. It was not a right thing to take money from the taxpayers of this country to subsidise a line of steamers in order to bring breadstuffs to compete against the produce of our growers. He had no objection to fair competition, and if these steamers were running without a subsidy our producers would have no reason to find fault. But there would be some excuse for even this if there were anything like a reciprocal trade. We took from America almost anything it liked to send to us, and took it without charging duty on it; but what did America take from us in return? Very little indeed. They took a small quantity of tin and coal, and a larger quantity of gold—in the form of sovereigns. We might say they really took nothing from us but our hard specie. Then, with reference to the time this Pacific Mail Company had kept in the delivery of mails, although well kept, it did not compare favourably with the other subsidised mail steamers, or on one line with the unsubsidised. For instance, the Pacific Company averaged, from 1879 to 1882 inclusive, 45 days inwards and 44¼ days outwards; the Peninsular and Oriental Company, 41½ days inwards and 44½ days outwards; and the Orient Company, 48¼ days inwards and 45¾ days outwards, the shortest average on that line of passage. It ought of course be urged that shorter time would be made in the future. The shortest time the Pacific Company had delivered its mails in this colony from London had been 41 days. That was only once; against which the Peninsular and Oriental Company had delivered mails in 39 days 11 times, and the Orient Company in 43 days three times, and, outwards, the Pacific Company had delivered mails in 42 days six times, and the Peninsular and Oriental Company in 41 days 11 times, and the Orient Company in 37 days seven times. The cost of the Pacific Company to the colony was from £20,000 to £25,000 per annum; of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, from £2760 to £4757; against which the Orient Company cost the colony nothing—or rather, instead of saying it cost nothing, it could be shown that a large profit resulted to the colony from it. Referring to what he had said with reference to the Pacific Company being an actual injury to persons corresponding with the home country, it had always been a regulation that any letters posted in this colony for England, unless specially endorsed to go by the other lines, would be kept back to be sent by the Pacific line. Of course all the mercantile community would know of this regulation, and would be particular in endorsing their letters; but a great number of persons up country had no knowledge of the regulation, and the consequence was that letters were kept back until the Pacific mail was despatched. By these means no doubt the cost of that mail service to the colony was reduced. He found that this system of mail service was fast losing favour in the home country and elsewhere. In the news from home it was stated that "amongst commercial circles in Liverpool the opinion is prevalent (says a home paper) that Mr. Fawcett, acting upon some suggestions made during a debate on the ocean mail subsidies last year, will during the forthcoming session propose several very important alterations in the Government mail contracts for the colonies and elsewhere, and it is not improbable (says the North British Mail) that some, if not all, of the foreign mail subsidies will be abolished on the termination of the existing contracts. In connection with the Government mail contracts, there is very little doubt that the services to the East and West Indies, Australia, New Zealand, China, and the Straits Settlements will undergo a thorough revision. There is no doubt that many of the new steamers engaged in the merchant service between Great Britain and the countries above mentioned are, as far as speed is concerned, much better entitled to carry the mails than the ships belonging to the contract companies." America had set her back against anything like mail subsidy. If this Pacific mail service were kept up to encourage trade between this part of the world and America, the American Government ought to pay a larger share of the cost than it now does; and if they had treated us in the liberal way they should have, considering it more to their interest than to ours, and have paid a fair share of the subsidy, then perhaps there might not have been any objection to continuing the subsidy. But the American Government had only paid £8000 out of the £80,000, the amount of the subsidy, leaving £72,000 to be paid in this colony. He had no doubt that, if mail subsidies were done away with, the steamers running between this country and Europe would make greater speed than now. Generally, in taking a contract the term was fixed at seven years, and the steamers were then tied down to a particular rate of speed; but we all knew that, with the rapidity of improvements being made both in the building of steamers and engineering appliances a period of seven years was too long to be tied down to. He felt sure that within the next seven years very large improvements would be made in these vessels, and a greater rate of speed be attained, and he thought it would be a mistake to bind the company to a particular rate of speed. There was one matter with reference to this question which should not be overlooked, and that was how this question would bear on the necessity or advisability of our going into the Postal Union. He did not think it would be much to our advantage to enter into this union; but if we did, it would be easier for us if we gave up entering into expensive contracts like this one. The statements made recently to a deputation by the Postmaster-General showed that we could not receive any benefit so far as money was concerned, by joining the Postal Union, except the uniform charge for letters to almost all parts of the world; but he thought we should get over this fact by the fact that we should have now a large continental company, the Messageries Maritimes, running here. He thought the Postal Union would soon break down of itself, for while Germany got many advantages from it, Great Britain and other countries received nothing. He might say that he put this motion on the paper because he thought this an opportune time for it, as the Pacific mail service contract ran out at the end of this year. The Government intended to close the session soon, and he was quite justified in forcing discussion on now. He was not interested in any particular mail service, but he thought it was not a good thing for the taxpayers of this country to pay £25,000 a year for nothing. He had shown that the Pacific mail service was of no use as a postal route, and that it was not what was expected of it as a commercial route, and that while it was not of much use for us to join the Postal Union, if we should think it advisable to do so, it would be easy for us if we had no expensive contracts on hand. He moved the resolution standing in his name.

Mr. WRIGHT said that, as the Government had already intimated their intention of submitting a resolution this session dealing with this question of the Pacific mail service, he did not think this was the time to discuss it. He suggested that the hon. member should adjourn his resolution, and he moved that the debate be adjourned until Wednesday, 25th instant.

Sir HENRY PARKES suggested that the hon. the Postmaster-General should tell the House definitely when the Government would deal with the question.

Mr. WRIGHT said that the Government were prepared to submit a resolution to the House some day next week.

The motion for the adjournment of the debate was agreed to.

INCREASED ROAD GRANTS.

Mr. GARRETT moved,—"That this House will, on Tuesday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider the following resolution, viz.:—That an address be presented to the Governor, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause provision to be made on Additional Surplus Revenue Estimate for 1883 to add to the grants set apart for the repair and maintenance of the main and minor roads of the colony for the present year, at the following rate, viz.:—Main and 1st and 2nd class minor roads, 25 per cent.; 3rd and 4th class minor roads, 50 per cent.; 5th and 6th class minor roads, 100 per cent.; and the sum of £8000 for unclassified roads." He said that in bringing forward this resolution he would ask hon. members to consider that he was only taking the course that was adopted a year or two ago under similar circumstances. He thought he need scarcely say in a House like this, composed of representatives of country districts, who had all an intimate knowledge of the value of those grants to different districts, how useful they were, or appeal to them to give the question their attention, if not their support. He supposed there was scarcely any expenditure which so nearly affected every taxpayer in the country as this one did. This was scarcely to be wondered at when we considered to what an extent the prosperity and comfort of people depended upon the roads of the country, and when we considered the inadequate way in which they were maintained. If hon. members would only look at the scale upon which this money was distributed, they would see by the schedule that first-class roads got £50 a mile, and these were roads upon which large sums of money had been expended. To these roads he only proposed to give 25 per cent. Second-class roads got £25 a mile, and he proposed to give them 25 per cent. Third and fourth class roads got £15 and £10 a mile respectively, and he proposed to give them 50 per cent. Fifth and sixth class roads got £7 and £5 a mile respectively, and he proposed to give them 100 per cent. It was a mere farce to talk of giving £5 a mile to keep a road in repair if it were used at all. (Hear, hear.) The effect of this proposal would be this. Of first-class roads there were 2303 miles; the capital expenditure was £115,000, and the increase would be £28,000, making a total of £143,000. Of second-class roads there were 4271 miles; the present expenditure was £106,000, and the proposed increase £26,000, making a total of £132,000. Of third-class roads there were 3938 miles; the present expenditure was £59,000, and the proposed increase £29,000, making a total of £88,000. Of fourth-class roads there were 3400 miles; the present expenditure was £34,000, and the proposed increase £17,000, making a total of £51,000. Of fifth-class roads there were 2052 miles; the present expenditure was £14,000, and the proposed increase £11,000. Of sixth-class roads there were 951 miles, the present expenditure on which was £47,000, and the proposed increase £47,000. So that altogether there were 17,000 miles of road, the total expenditure on which was £334,000, or £19 13s. a mile; and he proposed to increase the expenditure to £455,000. Considering the large number of people who depended for communication upon these roads, and the circumstance that nearly all the surplus revenue was drawn from the sale of the country lands through which these roads passed, the demand was a fair and reasonable one that hon. members could not give a good reason against. The only argument he could understand against this motion was that the money was not available. The Treasurer when he made his statement a few months ago, showed that there was a surplus of £2,400,000. Since then the Government had proposed services estimated to take out of that amount £1,274,000; so that would leave nearly £1,000,000 untouched yet. The whole of this surplus was drawn from the sale of country lands, and to no more legitimate purpose could the money be put than in spending a portion in improving the roads which gave access to those country lands. Of course he admitted that very large provision had been made for this purpose; but when they analysed that expenditure they would find that only a small proportion of land revenue was given back in the shape of improvements. When we had a large revenue it was the best of all policies to spend a large portion of the revenue in enabling the people to utilise the land they had bought, and in improving the land which remained on hand. Whether as substitutes for railroads, or as providing means of access to railroads, these roads were of very great value to the country. Indeed, if the whole of this surplus could be spent in opening up the country by good roads, it would be well spent. He could not understand anybody regarding this motion as being in any way a party motion. It could not embarrass the Government, and would not disturb the Treasurer's calculations. In 1877 a similar motion was passed by the House, although it was then opposed by the Government of the day, and was found to be of great advantage to the people of the country.

Mr. STUART did not for one moment undervalue the object for which this appropriation was asked; but he put it to the House whether this was a fitting time for putting this proposal forward. The hon. member who proposed this resolution seemed to be smitten by a new-born zeal—(hear, hear)—for taking care of the roads of the colony. It was true that he proposed a similar motion in 1877.

Mr. GARRETT: Then it cannot be new-born zeal.

Mr. STUART: That was so long ago that it was now of an ancient character, and the hon. member had allowed six years to pass without moving such a motion until his zeal was now suddenly aroused. The motion was carried in 1877 under circumstances very different from those which existed now. At that time the surplus was daily increasing, but the circumstances now were totally different. The revenue, if it could be called revenue—or, at all events, the source from which the money was incoming, and which rendered it an easy matter to meet this expenditure seven years ago—did not now exist.

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON: Whose fault is that?

Mr. STUART: It was the fault of this Parliament, or rather it was the glory of this Parliament. (Hear, hear.) At all events, from whatever cause, the fact remained that that source of income was cut off for the present.

Mr. GARRETT: The revenue is not falling off.

Mr. STUART: But the hon. member has just been glorying in the argument that this would not be paid out of the revenue, but was the most legitimate expenditure, because it would come out of the proceeds of the sale of Crown lands. No doubt it was a fair object of expenditure seven years ago, and he rather thought that he supported it then.

Sir HENRY PARKES: I have not the slightest doubt that you did.

Mr. STUART: Because there were then clear and distinct reasons for so doing, which reasons did not exist now. The enormous revenue flowing into the Treasury from the sale of Crown lands no longer existed, at all events at present, and the amount expended for these roads was now very much larger than it was then.

Mr. GARRETT: Not compared with the mileage. It is smaller.

Mr. STUART: The amount expended upon roads and bridges—and bridges, he presumed, were part of the roads—

Mr. GARRETT: I am not referring to bridges.

Mr. STUART: The hon. member argued that these roads would be a means of access to railways, and would be avenues for commerce, and bridges surely were all that. He found from the Estimates that they had passed £690,000 for roads and bridges; but apart from bridges they had passed £597,000 for roads.

Mr. GARRETT: You have not done anything of the sort.

Mr. STUART: They had, and it was because the hon. member had lost sight of this large provision for roads that he now urged this expenditure. Very probably the hon. member had only taken a certain number of scheduled roads, and had left the others out of account. This proposal would mean an additional expenditure of £150,000 or £160,000. That would, with the other votes to which he had referred, make a larger expenditure than could reasonably be incurred upon these roads during the remainder of the year. There were some reasons why he did not think this a fitting opportunity for this vote, but another and the most cogent reason of all was that the time had arrived, both from the general aspect of the affairs of the country and the treatment of the Land question in particular, when it had become an absolute necessity to introduce a system of local self-government. (Hear, hear.) In order to initiate a system of local self-government it was extremely desirable that they should retain a large portion of the surplus they at present possessed from a source of supply which was no longer in existence, in order that they might give a fair start to these local bodies. The question had not been lost sight of by the Government in preparing the Estimates, and the sum of £100,000 for increasing the grants to municipalities was chiefly founded upon the ground that the municipalities would have a large portion of these roads to maintain, and by that liberality it appeared to the Government that, so far as these Estimates were concerned, the question of roads was fairly dealt with. The hon. member said he had heard that the money could not be afforded. What the hon. member heard was that inasmuch as the Government had the two classes of roads to consider, they determined to place £100,000 in the hands of municipalities to enable them to deal with the roads this year, and the Government intended to take the question of roads beyond the range of municipalities into consideration next year, when the question of local self-government was dealt with. For these reasons, and not at all disparaging the great value which these roads were, and the necessity of doing all that reasonably could be done for them, he intended to vote against the proposition of the hon. member.

Mr. M'ELHONE said he recollected that some five years ago the hon. member for Camden brought forward a similar motion to the present, and on that occasion he voted for it, believing that it was necessary to have the roads of the colony kept in as good order as possible. Since that time different Governments had proposed to bring in a bill something like that which existed in Victoria, where they had shire councils, compelling people all over the colony to pay certain sums of money towards keeping the roads in repair, the same as in municipalities. Sir Henry Parkes' Government had this matter in hand for some time, and he believed it was their intention to bring in a bill to deal with this matter. He understood that it was the intention of the present Government to bring in a bill of that sort—[Mr. STUART: Hear, hear]—and that altered the aspect of the question. Besides, the hon. member's motion was wrong, because he proposed to double the vote for main roads. [Mr. GARRETT: No, 25 per cent.] Let anyone travel the main Northern road, between Maitland and New England, and he would find that that road was in better order than the roads in Sydney, and that was because the railway had taken most of the traffic off the road. It was the same with the Southern and Western roads. If a bill were passed such as they had in Victoria, the expenditure on the roads would be better looked after than it was at the present time. Although he was as anxious as the hon. member to keep the roads in proper repair, he should prefer to wait until the Local Government Bill was brought in.

Mr. GARRETT, in reply, pointed out that there was a surplus now just as there was some years ago when he first brought this matter forward, and there was just as great a necessity for keeping the roads in order. In this matter he had acted as he had before in bringing forward a motion which would be of general good to the community, at a time when it could be done with great advantage. He did not ask for this money out of current revenue, but out of surplus revenue which was set apart for purposes of this sort; and as to deferring this vote until they got a local government bill, he believed that question would not be dealt with for 10 years to come.

The resolution was put, and negatived on the following division:—

PYRMONT BRIDGE.

Mr. ABIGAIL moved,—"That in the opinion of this House the Government should take immediate steps to complete the resumption of the Pyrmont Bridge, and that the tolls now being collected from foot passengers and vehicles each time they pass through should be abolished." If there was any truth in what the head of the Government had said when the Randwick toll was under consideration, then his duty that night would be a light one. The Colonial Secretary told them that the House had decided to abolish the remnants of the toll system, and he found from inquiry that the Colonial Secretary's remarks were substantially correct. Throughout the colony there was now only one bridge—that at Har—

which tolls were collected. The Pyrmont Bridge was in a somewhat different position; it was at present vested in a private company, which was incorporated in 1855, and was given powers to construct roads and bridges from Market-street to Camperdown. The portion of the road from the other side of the bridge to Camperdown they found to be of an unprofitable character, and they came to an understanding with the Government to take that portion of the road, in 1873, at a cost of £10,000. The works thus purchased by the Government had cost the company £28,000, but when they sold it to the Government they got rid of a white elephant, and they got £10,000 into the bargain. In 1880, seeing the inconvenience that the public were subjected to, he set himself to work to endeavour to get them justice. In October, 1881, the Government were induced to give the company three months' notice for the resumption of the bridge. That period expired in the following January, and he expected that the Government would have completed the resumption of the bridge, and made it free to the public. Delays had, however, arisen, and we were now nearly in the middle of 1883, and the bridge was still in the hands of the company. He did not expect the company to hasten in the matter, for now that the bridges over the Iron Cove River and the Parramatta River were open, this had become a great highway, and at the present time they were receiving £10,000 revenue. The company were, therefore, not disposed to hurry on the matter, but it was the duty of the Government to do so. The Government had a perfect right to resume this bridge, and if the company refused the amount tendered, then they would have a right to go to law. According to the Act, the company were bound to file the account of their expenditure, but it was only after repeated notices and discussions that this account was got. £75,000 was set forth as the cost of the whole of the works of the company, including the whole cost of the roads to Camperdown, the portion that the Government had purchased for £10,000; and the company set up this peculiar position—that, although they had sold these roads, they had no right to sell. It was now for the Government or the law courts to decide what the company was entitled to, and give them the money. The bridge should be resumed and made free for the convenience of the public. The West Maitland bridge cost £18,000, and was free; the Pitnacree bridge cost £16,000, the Dunmore bridge cost £7000, the Wagga bridge cost £8000, the Murray bridge cost £18,000, and they were all free. This was the last remnant of the toll system, and he claimed the votes of hon. members to sweep it away. And on this bridge, unlike all others, you had to pay every time you passed over. It was no wonder that the company was in a position to pay handsome dividends, but it was out of the pockets of the public. He left this question in the hands of hon. members as one of extreme justice that they should vote in favour of.

Mr. M'ELHONE did not say it was not right that this bridge should be resumed for public purposes, but he thought the hon. member had taken the wrong time to force the House to say that the Government should purchase this bridge at any cost. He recollected the same motion being moved some years ago, and he supported it, and he was in favour of the Crown now resuming this bridge. The hon. member at that time withdrew it, on the ground that it was unwise to compel the Government to buy it, because immediately the company knew that the Government were bound to buy it they would increase their demands in the most exorbitant manner. He said the public had been swindled by this company. No company ever got a charter like this that did a more swindling transaction to get the Government to take over roads which while the company had them never paid a dividend at all. Their assets were literally worth nothing, for they could not sell them at any price. What, then, made the shares valuable? It was found in the circumstance that the Government had been induced to take over the road, which had cost the company £3000 or £4000 a year to keep in repair. The company had grown rich by the public having to keep that road in repair—a road which the company could not keep in repair. He believed it was the influence of Sir George Wigram Allen and other rich men that had had this road taken away from the company, and they in that manner enabled the company to pay dividends, which they could not have done if the road had not been taken over by the Government. There was no doubt that the company had broken their charter. If the Government had left the company to look after the road, the bridge could have been bought for a small sum of money. The hon. member had no right to attempt to force this resolution through the House at a time when there was a case in which the company were concerned against the Government pending in the Supreme Court. He trusted the Government would do as the late Government did with the claims of Mr. Lucas and other owners of property at Pyrmont—let the claim of the company go before the Supreme Court, and a jury say what they should receive. The company would then very likely be told that they had no claim, as they had broken their charter. He hoped Mr. Abigail would withdraw the resolution. If the hon. member were honest in his wish to assist the Government, he should let the Government fight the matter out in the Supreme Court. If the Government compromised the matter with the company, and did not go into the Supreme Court in the same way as the last Government did in the Darling Harbour cases, he would vote for a resolution to expel them from office; but if they fought the matter out in the Supreme Court, and let a jury say what the company should receive, he would stick to them.

Mr. MERRIMAN said this resolution had been on the business-paper ever since the session had opened, and it appeared that Mr. Abigail had introduced it two or three years ago. It could not, therefore, be fairly said that he had been playing into the hands of the bridge party. The hon. member for the Upper Hunter said that the motion should not be introduced, because the matter was before the Supreme Court. From the motion, however, it appeared to him that Mr. Abigail's object was to ask the House to affirm the principle which had been affirmed in reference to many roads and bridges, namely, that the tolls on the bridge should be abolished at once. He thought this would meet the approbation of hon. members, especially members of country constituencies who had their roads relieved of tolls. In connection with the tolls on this bridge they looked like a tax on the people of the electorate. To him it appeared that the only question to be decided by the Court was as to the actual amount expended on the bridge and the roads.

Mr. STUART was surprised that the hon. gentleman should put forward the idea that these tolls should be immediately abolished when these were collected by and were the property of the company who owned the bridge. If the Government were to abolish them, they would have a suit filed against them by the company. [Mr. MERRIMAN: You are going to abolish the Randwick tolls.] They were on an entirely different footing. The matter of the bridge was engaging the attention of the Court as to whether the Government had the right to purchase it or not. The position assumed by the company was that, the Government having purchased a portion of the property some time ago, the contract was no longer in existence by which the Government could purchase the whole. They said that the Government had no right to make a demand for the surrender of the bridge for the cost of it, and this question was now before the law Courts. Yesterday the matter was to have come on, but at his request it was postponed for a week in order, to give him an opportunity to look into it. (Mr. M'ELHONE: Have the Government made any offer?) The Government had made no offer. The matter had merely been withdrawn for a time, in order to see if any arrangement could be arrived at. (Mr. ABIGAIL: The late Government offered £41,000, I think.) According to the paper, it was something like that. But this was not the point of contention—the contention of the company being that the Government had not the right to force a sale, and that the company had a right to make a bargain; and until it was settled the bridge remained the property of the company, and therefore a resolution to abolish the tolls would be so much waste paper. There was no doubt that there had been considerable delay over the matter, but this had not been of his seeking. [An hon. Member: You can resume.] Not if the contention of the company were a right one. The only thing now to do was to leave the matter in the hands of the Government. It might be that there were £70,000 on the Supplementary Estimates in connection with this matter; but this was not for the bridge alone, but for the approaches and for putting the structure in repair. When the bridge became the property of the Government, then the time would arrive for considering whether the tolls upon it should be abolished.

Mr. CAMERON agreed that Mr. M'Elhone was right in what he had said in reference to the action taken with regard to this bridge. Some years ago he had a motion for the purchase of the bridge, but on the advice of Mr. Hoskins, who was then Minister for Works, he withdrew it, as he was advised that if he pressed it he might be playing into the hands of the Government. Since then the people of Sydney had agitated in various ways to have the bridge made free, for there was no doubt that the people of Sydney and the people of Pyrmont also suffered a serious hardship in having to pay the tolls. They had nothing to thank the company for, on account of the illiberal manner in which the company had behaved. The Government had purchased a portion of the property, and thus enabled the company to pay a dividend; but now that the structure was required for the public, the company raised the technical point that the Government must purchase instead of resuming it. By the terms of the Act they were not entitled to a fraction of premium, for they had violated their contract. This was not denied, and the Government should take care that no premium was paid. However, as the Premier had made a distinct pledge that the matter would be prosecuted, it would be well that the motion should be withdrawn or postponed. It certainly was strange to him that the Government could not resume the bridge as they did the Darling Harbour property, allowing the proprietors to afterwards sue for their rights. At all events it was absolutely time for the Government to see that it became the property of the people, and was taken out of the hands of this company.

Mr. POOLE stated that the company had not adhered to their charter, and had not filed a bill showing the cost of the bridge. He hoped the Government would see the matter out. It should not allow the public to be fleeced. It would be better to bear with this matter a little longer, and make the company disgorge, and he hoped the Government would not consent to a compromise, but would fight the matter out in the Supreme Court, and if it were proved that the company had broken their charter, then they would give them the whip.

Mr. ABIGAIL replied, also hoping the Government would not compromise. He consented to withdraw the motion, reserving to himself, however, the right of taking the opportunity of reintroducing the matter after the bridge had become the property of the Government if he thought they had not done what he considered right.

The motion was withdrawn.

BRIDGE OVER THE PATERSON.

Mr. H. H. BROWN moved,—"That this House will on Friday next, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole to consider an address to the Governor, praying that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be placed on the Supplementary Estimates for the present year a sum not exceeding £6000 for a bridge over the Paterson River in lieu of the punt at that place." This sum had been placed on the Estimates by the late Government, but had been omitted by the present Government on their Estimates.

Mr. STUART said that the sum had been inadvertently omitted from the Estimates, but he had intimated to the hon gentleman that it would be placed on the Estimates to be submitted next year. It would be impossible to place it on the Supplementary Estimates for this year, as they had been passed.

Mr. BROWN, under these circumstances, consented to withdraw the motion.

The motion was withdrawn.

COHEN'S ESTATE BILL.

Mr. BURNS moved the second reading of the Cohen's Estate Bill. He said that by this bill power would be given for the sale of the property of the late Michael Cohen, in Park and Castlereagh streets, and the investment of the proceeds in a manner which would result in a much larger annual return. The situation of the property was valuable, but the buildings on it were of an inferior description, and there were no funds available in the estate with which suitable buildings could be erected. Mrs. Cohen, the widow, was entitled to receive £4 10s. per week from the estate, which at present returned only £5, and at her request, and with the concurrence of all the parties interested, it had been agreed to sell the property and invest the proceeds otherwise, which it was believed would give fully double the present income. These were the main provisions of the bill.

The motion was agreed to, and the House went into committee to consider the bill in detail.

The preamble was postponed.

Clause 1. "Lands may be sold and conveyed to purchasers, discharged from the trusts of will."

Mr. J. P. ABBOTT said that it would have been more satisfactory if a copy of the will were laid before the House.

Mr. J. F. BURNS explained that all the persons concerned were of age, and all agreed that this bill was necessary.

Mr. M'ELHONE suggested that the matter be postponed, and a copy of the will be laid before the House, that some of the lawyers in the Assembly might consider whether it ought to be set aside, and whether an injustice to the family would not be done by this legislation.

Mr. MELVILLE said that this bill opened up the serious question as to whether the House should undo what a person making a will intended should be done with certain property. He thought the children interested should have been examined before the select committee upon the bill.

Mr. SLATTERY suggested the advisability of postponing the matter that some of the eight persons interested might be examined before the committee. If they were all of age, and concurred in wishing to sell the property, they could have done it without needing this bill.

Mr. J. F. BURNS said that this was a family matter, and that the family had concurred in the agreement to sell the property in question, and invest the proceeds for their joint benefit. The will had been explained before the committee. If it had not been for Mr. Abbott's straining at a gnat there would have been no opposition to the bill. He moved that the chairman leave the chair, and ask leave to sit again.

Mr. ABBOTT said that it would be much better that the House should see the will. In all cases where the House attempted to interfere in a will they should have the fullest inquiry.

Mr. DAY said the committee should have examined some of the children besides the widow, as it might be the case that some of the children, who were grown men and women, did not concur in these proposals.

Mr. OLLIFFE thought it would be better if every person interested in the will were consulted.

The question that the Chairman leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again on Friday week was agreed to.

The House resumed, progress was reported, and leave given.

CONDITIONAL PURCHASES VALIDATION BILL.

Mr. FARNELL moved the third reading of the Conditional Purchases Validation Bill.

The motion was agreed to, and the bill passed and ordered to be transmitted to the Legislative Council for its concurrence.

CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT BILL.

Mr. ABBOTT moved that the Criminal Law Amendment and Consolidation Bill be read the third time.

Mr. A. G. TAYLOR desired to draw the attention of the Speaker to one or two reasons why the bill should have originated in the Legislative Assembly. Clause 420 of the bill provided for the appointment of a trustee in whose hands an offender's property might be placed in trust. This was an appointment involving an expenditure of public money. When the Contagious Diseases Bill was before the House, the point was raised that the bill provided for the appointment of a visiting surgeon, and the point of order was sustained. Clause 419 provided that when a conviction was quashed, or a judgment reversed, every order made for the payment of money out of the property of prisoner, or defendant, should become of no effect, and he should be restored to all that he might have lost thereby. That would involve a claim against the Crown. He also directed attention to clause 416, which provided for payment of what ought to be the revenue of the Crown to aggrieved persons, who were the victims of outrages; and clause 337, in reference to enlarging jury panels, which was an innovation upon the present jury practice, and involved fresh expenditure.

Mr. COHEN said, with regard to the principal objection—namely, in regard to clause 420—he would point out that official assignees were not paid by the Crown at all, but from commission out of realised assets. Should the Court appoint a person other than the official assignee to manage a sequestrated estate, it would in all probability be managed on similar terms to that under which official assignees managed estates. Under such circumstances the person so appointed would not be paid by the Crown at all, nor would the Governor with the advice of the Executive Council have any voice in the appointment of such a person. He also contended that the objections of the hon. member to the other clauses named by him were not tenable.

Mr. SPEAKER said that as to clause 337, it was well known that, under the present practice, the power of summoning a fresh jury panel was not exercised by the Court or the Judge, but the Sheriff had to summon a fresh panel at the instance of the Attorney-General. In the clause under consideration the power simply was placed in the hands of the Court or Judge, and he could not see how the transfer of power could involve any increase of public expenditure. Clause 416 provided,—"That on or at any time after the conviction of a person for a felony so committed, the Court in which he was tried, or any Judge thereof, may direct a sum not exceeding £500, to be paid out of the property of the offender to any aggrieved person by way of compensation for injury or loss sustained through or by reason of such felony." It seemed to him that this could not be regarded as revenue of the Crown in any sense at all. It was something which formerly was in the habit of following upon a conviction, and it was part really of the disability to which an accused person subjected himself by reason of his felony. It was simply enacted by this clause that in future persons should be entitled to these expenses, and it seemed to him that it could not be made to appear that that was a clause providing for the expenditure of public money. Then as to clause 419, that section enacted that any property of the defendant might be ordered under clause 416 to be paid to any aggrieved person by way of compensation; but he did not think that this provided that the Crown should restore it, but merely that restitution should be made at the hands of the person, if he was in a position to do so. Clause 420 seemed to him to be the most troublesome of the objections. It was enacted that the Court or Judge might within six months after conviction for felony, place the offender's estate in the hands of an official assignee, or some other person appointed by the Court or Judge. He did not think that this was such an appointment as was contemplated by the 37th section of the Constitution Act. The official assignees were not paid by the Crown, and the kind of appointment contemplated was one of some permanency, and not a casual appointment made for a specific purpose. He had nothing to guide him in construing that clause but parity of reasoning with what went before, and he did not find that the section gave the Judge power to order any payment from the Crown. He could not infer, therefore, that there would be any payment to a person not being an official assignee, and he could not therefore, hold that the bill was one that should not have originated in the Upper House, and should have been covered by a message. He would again remind the House of the danger of construing these clauses too strictly, for if they had an unscrupulous Ministry all legislation by private members might be put a stop to if they refused to bring down messages. He held that the bill was properly before the House. (Cheers.)

Mr. A. G. TAYLOR said he had no desire to obstruct the bill any further, but he believed it was a measure that they would regret having passed.

The motion was then put that the bill be now read the third time.

Mr. COHEN moved as an amendment that the bill be recommitted for the purpose of amending certain clauses and two of the schedules.

The amendment was agreed to, and the House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole.

Clause 1 was amended to make the bill come into operation in July next, instead of May.

Clause 29. "Not providing wife, child, servant with food, &c."

Mr. COHEN moved an amendment, the effect of which was that a person who wilfully deserts and remains absent from his wife and children for 21 days shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and liable to imprisonment for three years.

Mr. R. B. SMITH suggested that the term should be made 31 days.

Mr. COHEN accepted the suggestion, and the amendment in this form was agreed to.

Clauses 92 and 150 were verbally amended and agreed to.

Clause 165, "Stealing shrubs, &c.," and clause 166, "Stealing, &c., live or dead fence, &c.," were amended, on the motion of Mr. COHEN, by omitting from the last part of each clause the alternative penalty of imprisonment, and then passed.

Clause 170—"Stealing fruit, &c., not growing in gardens"—was also amended, on the motion of Mr. COHEN, by omitting from the end of the clause the alternative punishment of imprisonment, and then passed.

Clause 191—"Setting fire to stacks"—was amended, on the motion of Mr. COHEN, by adding to the offences punishable under the clause, the setting fire to any grain or hay housed in a barn or shed; clause 133—"Destroying hop-bines"—was verbally amended; clause 308—"What defects shall not vitiate an indictment"—was amended by adding the words "nor for stating the time wrongly" to those matters which should not vitiate an indictment; clause 377—"Obstructing railways, verdict of misdemeanor"—was verbally amended; clause 418—"Disabilities of felony"—was amended by making the first line read "after the conviction of an offender for any felony," instead of "after the conviction of an offender." The clauses, as amended, were passed.

Clause 446. "Certain offences by boys and youths."

Mr. COHEN said that this clause, as it stood, was open to objection, because a boy of the age of 16 years making himself amenable to a whipping would be sentenced by a stipendiary magistrate to the nearest Court of Quarter Sessions, and in the default of finding sureties, this would involve the boy's probable detention in gaol for several weeks, and in the country to a period which might extend to four or five months. He proposed, therefore, that the words, "If the magistrate thinks that in any case prosecuted under this or the 449th section the evidence discloses an offence of so aggravated a nature as to deserve whipping, he shall, instead of convicting the accused, hold him to bail with or without sureties to answer the charge at the nearest Court of Quarter Sessions, and upon conviction before such court the accused shall be liable to a penalty or to detention as aforesaid, and, if the Judge thinks fit, to be once privately whipped" should be omitted, and the following words inserted—"and in any case in which, upon conviction, an offender would be liable to whipping under this section or the 449th section of this Act, the Court adjudicating on such case shall consist of two or more magistrates, one, at least, of whom shall be the police or stipendiary magistrate, and such court may, upon conviction of the offender, either unanimously or by a majority, order him to be detained in the place and for the period mentioned and referred to as aforesaid, and be there once privately whipped."

Mr. TAYLOR thought it would be unfair in such a thin House to undo what had been done by a full House. He objected that the amendment would be a dangerous one, as it would place the power to order whipping in the hands of those who had a mania for inflicting such a punishment.

Mr. LYNE also urged that the amendment should be considered by a fuller House than the present one.

Mr. SLATTERY contended that such a power should not be placed in the hands of any authority lower than a District Court Judge.

Mr. COHEN said that he had no objection to the adjournment of the debate.

The CHAIRMAN left the chair, reported progress, and obtained leave to sit again.

The House adjourned at half-past 12 o'clock until 4 o'clock on Wednesday.

NEW NOTICES OF MOTION.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11.

Mr. Dibbs to move,—That leave be given to bring in a bill to correct an erroneous date in the 21st section of the "Sydney Corporation Act of 1879."

FRIDAY, APRIL 13.

Mr. A. G. Taylor to move,—That there be laid upon the table of this House copies of all correspondence in connection with the application to have a police magistrate appointed at Rylstone; also, copies of all applications from, and recommendations of, persons seeking the appointment.

TUESDAY, APRIL 17.

Mr. A. G. Taylor to move,—That there be laid on the table of this House copies of all correspondence, plans, documents, &c., connected with James Carroll's complaint against Surveyor Anderson with respect to alteration of the road near James Carroll's selection at Rotobolar.

TUESDAY, APRIL 24.

Mr. Copeland to move,—1. That, in the opinion of this House, it is expedient and desirable that when amending our land laws provision be made for reservation to the Crown of all metals and metallic ores, as well as coal and kerosene shale, contained in any lands alienated in the future, with the object of a royalty therefrom being obtained for the Public Treasury. 2. That the above resolution be communicated by address to his Excellency the Governor.

LAW REPORT.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—TUESDAY.

(Before the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.)

CERTIFICATE APPLICATIONS.

His Honor directed that upon the payment of Court charges and expenses, certificates of conformity should be issued to Thomas Henry Maberly, William Amos the younger, James Wright, and Edward Archibald Young.

In the matter of the application of Martin Byrne, Mr. Asher applied for a certificate. Mr. Freehill appeared in support of objections filed, and his Honor, after hearing arguments, reserved his decision.

The several applications of Alfred Eccles, Joseph Edward Ephraim, James M'Gregor, and Andrew Paul Lysaught were struck out, applicants not appearing.

The following applications were adjourned, namely, Peter Whitelaw, George Blake, Arthur Charles Jackson, W. H. Hazelton, Frederick W. Wynick, Charles Wesley Lane, Eliza Jane Evans, John Sullivan, Denis Sullivan, and Thomas Hyland.

(In the case of George Law Lincker, it was erroneously stated yesterday that Mr. Godfrey, solicitor, appeared for the official assignee. He appeared merely in his own behalf as petitioning creditor.)

SURRENDERS.

Harrison Waddington, of Waverley, importer and brickmaker, on petition and affidavit. Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

Pierce Dwyer, of Lithgow, labourer. Liabilities, £41 19s. Assets, £3. Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

Michael Cosgrove, of Newtown, baker, on petition and affidavit. Mr. Macnab, official assignee.

RULE NISI.

Slocombe Brothers v. W. J. Dignam, of Goulburn, storekeeper. Returnable 19th April. Mr. Stephen, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

TUESDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

PETTIT V. DOWNEY.

This was a motion for a new trial. Mr. Simpson, instructed by Mr. Coonan, appeared in support of the application, and Mr. G. H. Reid, instructed by Mr. Proctor, opposed it. After hearing evidence, his Honor reserved judgment.

M'ELHONE V. BEDFORD.

To recover £15, alleged to be due as commission on the sale of the Willow Tree Inn. Mr. Burcher appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Slattery for the defence. The defence was never indebted, and a verdict for the defendant was given.

ISAACS V. WOODS.

To recover £27 for goods sold and delivered. Mr. D. L. Levy appeared for the plaintiff, and there was no appearance on the part of the defendant. Verdict for the plaintiff.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

TUESDAY.

(Before his Honor Judge DOWLING.)

Mr. P. J. Healy prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

UNLAWFULLY WOUNDING.

James Ross, a boy 16 years of age, was brought up on a charge of unlawfully and maliciously wounding another boy named Stephen Fahey. The two boys were employed at Chadwick's sawmill, Liverpool-street, and had a violent quarrel on the 5th March. The day following Fahey went up to Ross and struck him two severe blows, when Ross struck back with a small knife which he had in his hand, stabbing Fahey in the back between the spine and the shoulder-blade. The defendant offered no defence beyond submitting certificates of good character. His Honor put it to the jury to decide whether the injury was wilfully inflicted, and, if so, whether it was in self-defence. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

STEALING FROM THE PERSON.

William Clarke was charged with having, at Randwick racecourse, on the 30th March last, stolen from Eliza Male a watch, the property of Henry Male. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Gannon. The case for the prosecution was, that when Mrs. Male was on the racecourse she suddenly heard the swivel of her watch-chain click, and, looking down, noticed the prisoner pass the watch, under cover of a handkerchief, to a confederate. She seized the prisoner's hand, when he wrenched himself away, leaving the handkerchief in her hand, but he was arrested immediately afterwards. The contention for the defence was that the prosecutor was mistaken in supposing that the prisoner stole the watch simply because he happened to be near her. Evidence was given showing that the prisoner, who was a waiter, bore a very high character. The jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was remanded for sentence.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

John Wait, a young man, was arraigned on a charge of embezzlement. There were three counts in the indictment, setting forth that the defendant, who had been employed as clerk and collector in the service of Messrs. Uhde and Co., butchers, had on various dates been guilty of embezzling £3 1s., 19s., 10s., the moneys of his employers. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Gannon. The evidence against the prisoner failed to prove fraudulent intent, and on behalf of the defence it was contended that the small deficiencies mentioned in the indictment were the result of mistakes, and not of embezzlement. The jury acquitted the prisoner, and added the following rider to their verdict:—"The books were kept in such a loose manner as to furnish little or no evidence to the jury."

LARCENY.

Bernard Ryan, Wm. Daley, John Brennan, James Brennan, and Wm. Bissett were arraigned on a charge of having on the 6th February stolen 18 pier glasses and 5 bedsteads, the property of David Davis. The prisoners were charged on a second count with having feloniously received the property well knowing it to have been stolen. James Brennan and Bissett pleaded guilty, and Ryan, Daley, and John Brennan pleaded not guilty. Mr. Coonan appeared for Ryan, Mr. Fitzgerald for Daley, and Mr. Cook for John Brennan. Davis had a quantity of pier glasses and iron bedsteads in a store at Randwick. They were stolen, and were proved to have been sold to furniture dealers by James Brennan and Bissett. Ryan, the licensed driver of a furniture van, was the carter of the goods, and it was stated that the other prisoners were in the company of James Brennan and Bissett at the time the goods were sold. For the defence, it was proved that John Brennan was in Newcastle on the day that the goods were sold; and it was represented that the other two, Ryan and Daly, were merely engaged by James Brennan and Bissett, to assist in the conveyance of the goods. The jury acquitted three prisoners who had pleaded not guilty, and the other two who had pleaded guilty were remanded for sentence.

The following is a list of the cases set down for trial on Wednesday:—Herbert Henry Franklin, embezzlement; James Daly and another, stealing from the person; Lizzie Harper, larceny; William Allwood and another, stealing from the person; William Richardson, larceny.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Dillon, S.M., presided on the bench in the Charge Court yesterday.

A number of cases of drunkenness were dealt with.

William Roberts, on a charge of having been drunk, was fined 10s., and on a charge of having committed a nuisance in a railway carriage, was fined £5, or in default imprisonment for one month.

Mr. Clarke, S.M., presided on the bench in the Summons Court.

A number of breaches of the Police Act and cases of abusive words and other minor offences were dealt with.

LICENSING COURT.

Mr. Dillon (chairman), Messrs. Clarke and Macintosh, L.Ms., presided on the Bench at the Central Licensing Court yesterday.

The following transfers were granted:—From Otto Wilson, Pyrmont Arms Hotel, Pyrmont, to Patrick O'Brien; from Cornelius Hannon, Sycamore Hotel, Botany-road, to Francis Martin; from Robert Bulgin, Maitland and Morpeth Hotel, Wharf-street, to H. W. Goldfinch.

Leave of absence for two months was granted to Richard B. Goff.

A permit for music was granted to Henry Priestly, Currency Lass Hotel, Glebe, for meetings of the Buffalo Lodge, on the 10th, 17th, and 24th instant.

Henry Kane pleaded guilty to a charge of having sold liquor, he not possessing a license to do so, or acting as agent for a licensed person. He was fined £30, or in default imprisonment for three months, the liquor found in his possession to be forfeited.

A prohibition against publicans supplying her husband with drink was granted to Jane Brown.

William C. Gifford pleaded guilty to a charge of having committed a breach of the 63rd section of the Licensing Act, and was fined £1, or in default imprisonment for one month.

Archibald Ryan was charged with having been seen on Sunday afternoon leaving a licensed house with a bottle of beer in his possession. The offence having been proved, he was fined 10s.

Mary M'Inerny was also charged with having been seen leaving a licensed house with a bottle of beer in her possession. The offence having been proved against her, she was fined 10s.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Addison, S.M., presided in the Charge Court yesterday, and Mr. Buchanan, S.M., dealt with the business of the Summons Court.

Alice Agnew, 45 years, pleaded guilty to having been thrice convicted of drunkenness within the preceding 12 months, and of having been found behaving in a riotous manner in Harrington-street, and was sent to gaol for three months.

Thomas Mahar, 34 years, who had been arrested for having at a very early hour this morning damaged a fence, the property of the Union Club, was, as he appeared to be suffering from excessive indulgence in drink, remanded for a week, so that meantime he might be kept under medical treatment.

John Emmens, a seaman of H.M.S. Dart, was charged with having made use of obscene language on Circular Quay. The offence having been proved, Mr. Addison said he would impose a fine of 20s. A heavier penalty would have been imposed, but he had no doubt that the defendant would be dealt with for the same offence by the naval authorities.

Conrad Antonio, a German, for having used obscene language in Marlborough-street, was fined 40s.

William Brooks, 47 years, seaman, for having used obscene language in Woolloomooloo-street; and Timothy Driscoll, 43 years, shoemaker, for having used obscene language in Kent-street, were each fined 20s.

Thomas King, 18 years, drayman, was charged with having used indecent language in Phelps-street, and with having assaulted Constable Hely whilst in the execution of his duty. The defendant was ordered to pay two fines, amounting to £2.

Mary Kerr, for having used language of an extremely disgusting nature towards Mary Donnelly, was fined 40s. and costs.

ALLEGED BREACHES OF THE NAVIGATION ACT.

John Garde, master of the steamship Illawarra, was summoned by Inspector Donohue for that he did on the 22nd March carry on board the said steamship to sea and out of the harbour of Port Jackson, and not on an excursion between Botany and Broken Bay, a greater number of passengers than the number stated in the certificate granted by the Marine Board of New South Wales. The information was laid under the 29th section of the Navigation Act. Dr. G. J. Sly prosecuted, and Mr. J. Lowe, with Mr. M'Laughlin, appeared on behalf of the defendant. Several objections were taken by counsel with respect to the form of the information, but they were overruled by Mr. Buchanan, before whom the case was brought. The following evidence was taken:—Sub-inspector Donohue produced a document issued by the Marine Board, and authorising him to institute those proceedings. George S. Lindeman, secretary to the Marine Board, produced a copy of the sea-going certificate issued by the Marine Board on account of the steamship Illawarra; witness made out the certificate; it was signed by the president (Captain Hixson), and by witness as secretary. Constable George Marmion deposed that on the 22nd March he saw the steamship Illawarra at the Illawarra Company's Wharf, at Sydney; the defendant was master of the vessel; witness spoke to the captain, and the latter said he was the master of the vessel; witness counted the number of passengers, and when the steamer left the wharf she had 261 on board; when witness first went aboard he counted 125 passengers; that was at a quarter-past 10; witness, in company with another constable, remained at the gangway and counted 165; subsequently counted 266 passengers, and then told the captain that he had more passengers on board than he was licensed to carry; the captain said there were about 170 or 180 on board; witness said that there was more than he was licensed to carry, and when the captain disputed the number on board, witness asked him to go and count the number on board; but he said, "Oh, no, I could not think of doing it; it is quite impossible," witness had told the captain that two passengers had complained that the vessel was overcrowded; the steamer put off with 261 passengers; after witness spoke to the captain about having so many passengers on board, the gangway was hauled in ashore; there were five passengers who left the vessel by getting over the side, leaving 261 passengers, exclusive of the crew, on the vessel when she left; when witness served the summons, the captain said he did not know how many he had on board; witness counted no children. By Mr. Lowe: The vessel left the wharf at about 11 o'clock; there was a cargo gangway forward, and a passenger gangway aft, where a man was stationed to refuse to allow anybody on board who did not exhibit a ticket; there were permanent steps (gangway ladder) at the after sponsons; witness knew nothing at all of anything that took place at sea; persons could not go aboard aft and get ashore forward without witness seeing them; when the five passengers were getting ashore forward one fell overboard, and witness went and helped to rescue him; there was no gangway aft when witness went forward. The further hearing of the case was then adjourned until Friday. An information which had been lodged against William Carter, master of the steamer Morpeth, was, owing to an informality, withdrawn; and the hearing of another information for the same offence was postponed until Friday next. The hearing of three informations against C. E. Jeanneret for alleged breaches of the Navigation Act was also postponed until Friday next.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

At the Commercial Hotel, Elizabeth-street South, the City Coroner yesterday morning held an inquest on the body of a man whose name is unknown. On Sunday afternoon last the body of the deceased was found in a yard at the corner of Gipps and Parker streets by a labourer named John Johnston. Information was given to the police, and the body was taken to the South Sydney morgue. Charles George Wilson Marsden, a legally qualified medical practitioner, deposed that the cause of death was sanguineous apoplexy, and the jury returned a verdict in accordance with this testimony.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."—Clarke's World-famed Blood Mixture is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases, and sores of all kinds, its effects are marvellous. Thousands of testimonials. SYDNEY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

An ordinary meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held, at the Town Hall, yesterday, when the Mayor occupied the chair, and there was a good attendance of aldermen.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented by Alderman Fowler for a water main along Illawarra-road, Marrickville; by Alderman Kippax, for a main along Middle-street, in the same municipality; by Alderman O'Connor, for the entrances to Prince Alfred Park to be made to agree with the alignments of streets in the locality; and by Alderman Beare, from John Keshan, for compensation in consequence of the latter's premises in Duke-street having been flooded.

ANSWER TO QUESTION.

The MAYOR, in reply to Alderman Playfair, said that instructions had been issued for the repair of Kent-street North, between Argyle-street and the Corporation Wharf, and of Pottinger-street and the entrance to Parbury's Wharf.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Alderman JONES desired to draw attention to a paragraph which had appeared in the Daily Telegraph to the effect that Alderman Dean was to take the position held by John Brown, one of the Queen's personal attendants. He himself was referred to in the paragraph as having originated the idea that Alderman Dean was to occupy such a position. He believed the matter had been offensive to Alderman Dean, but he could assure that gentleman that he had nothing to do with it.

Alderman DEAN took occasion to express his regret that one section of the press had commented upon a question which Alderman J. D. Young had asked at a committee meeting of the council as to whether it was true that Alderman Dean was to take the position of the late John Brown as attendant to her Majesty the Queen. He deprecated the comments in the paper having been made, and in rather severe terms he expressed his disapproval of Alderman J. D. Young's style of joking. It was offensive, and the alderman should have respected those in authority above him as Alderman Dean had always done. He had invariably endeavoured to avoid hurting the feelings of others, and affirmed that he was glad he did not belong to a profession which had been instrumental in making widows and orphans, and in filling their gaols and asylums with inmates. Alderman Dean, in the course of his remarks, was twice called to order by the Mayor.

Alderman J. D. YOUNG said that if ever he had listened to an empty-headed old fool it was to the man who had just sat down.

Alderman BUTCHER rose to a point of order. Alderman J. D. Young had no right to call any alderman an empty-headed old fool, and he should withdraw the expression.

Alderman J. D. YOUNG said that Alderman Butcher had not called Alderman Dean to order for saying that he belonged to a profession which filled their asylums and gaols.

Alderman DEAN drew the attention of the Mayor to the fact that he had not attended to Alderman Butcher's point of order.

The MAYOR: I called you to order, and you did not attend to me, and as the council supported you and did not support me, the matter has been taken out of my hands.

Alderman J. D. YOUNG repeated that if there was an empty-headed old fool it was Alderman Dean. His actions showed it, and he had been the butt of them all. So far as concerned dealing out material that led to their gaols and asylums being filled he would guarantee that none of Alderman Dean's money had been handled by those who bought it. Alderman Dean was mean enough to walk to the Haymarket to have a drink at another man's expense, and as to the respectable position he occupied he had prayed himself into it in a hypocritical way, and as to the Queen she would not let him clean her boots.

The matter then dropped.

PRESENTATION OF BOOKS.

Alderman MOORE said that when he was in New York the local Government presented him with certain books relating to their business. These he now laid on the table, hoping they would prove useful to the Council.

HEALTH OFFICER'S REPORT.

The City Health Officer presented a report, which was as follows:—"I have the honour to report that during the past month typhoid fever, measles, and scarlatina have become more prevalent in and around the city. In regard to the first-named, a great many of the cases have occurred in those parts of Sydney where there is only surface drainage, and consequently cesspits are compelled to be used instead of—was there underground sewerage—the cleanly and far more healthy water-closet. In all these neighbourhoods the guttering should be well looked after in the way of cleansing and repairing so as to allow no filthy water or other refuse to remain in the holes worn into the sandstone, of which our guttering is principally composed. This sandstone, being of a soft and porous nature, must certainly tend to hold noxious matters in its substance, and during the heat of the day, to give off poisonous fumes to the susceptible passers by or to the children, who can daily be seen playing by the hour and amusing themselves with the filthy water collected in puddles in these surface drains. The closets in many parts of the city are obliged to be placed so close to the occupied house, owing to there not being sufficient yard-space to build it elsewhere, that the gases and stench arising night and day must necessarily be wafted, more or less, into the sleeping apartments, and unconsciously the inmates inhale the poison that causes them a severe illness that often terminates in death. Of the two other diseases there has been no epidemic for the last few years. The present season of the year is a predisposing cause of measles, and, considering that nearly all the immigrant ships lately arrived in this port have brought several cases of measles and scarlatina, it is to be feared that the infection might have been carried into a number of families. If such has been the case, an epidemic of these diseases might be expected.—G. F. DANSEY."

FINANCE.

Alderman DEAN moved,—"That the report of the finance committee, recommending the payment of sundry accounts, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to.

Alderman DEAN moved,—"That the report of the finance committee on the financial position of the City Corporation for the year 1883, in connection with the city fund, be adopted."

In connection with this motion the MAYOR explained that there had been some difficulty in regard to their obtaining their annual subsidy from the Government. The Acts relating to the matter were ambiguous, and Mr. Watson, the ex-Treasurer, and Mr. Dibbs, the Treasurer, had decided that they were unfavourable to the Council, one of them being to the effect that the Council were to have subsidies for 10 years, and that the first was to be paid in January, 1880; but that the last was to be paid in December, 1880, so that there was a chance of their being defrauded of 18 months' endowment. However, Mr. Woolcott, the town clerk, had an interview with Mr. Dibbs, the result of which was that Mr. Dibbs promised to introduce a bill which would provide for the council's receiving the full 10 years' endowment, which they could not have got under the present Act. The efforts of Mr. Woolcott would result in their obtaining about £37,000, and he thought that gentleman deserved credit for what he had done.

The motion was agreed to.

BUNKS AND JETTIES AT CIRCULAR QUAY.

Alderman MOORE moved,—"That the Government be solicited to cause the removal of the unsightly coal bunks and advertising boards recently erected on the Government jetties at the Circular Quay; and that the City Health Officer be instructed to report upon the condition of the Government jetties at the Circular Quay, upon which coal sheds have been erected, and upon the annoyance and injury to passengers from the dust arising during the unloading and loading of coal."

The motions were agreed to.

LEASING MOORE PARK.

Alderman MOORE moved,—"That tenders be invited for leasing the grazing portions of Moore Park for one or two years, at a fixed sum per annum, the lessee to keep fences in repair, and to be responsible for any losses, subject to the by-laws."

The motion was agreed to.

PENALTIES UNDER A CONTRACT.

Alderman MOORE moved,—"That, in accordance with the recommendation of the finance committee, the penalties for which Messrs. Topham, Angus, and Co., are liable under their contract for the construction of the metropolitan cattle sale yards, be enforced."

A discussion ensued upon this motion. Some aldermen feared that there might be a loophole by means of which the contractors might sue the council, and that in order to avoid litigation, the matter should be referred to arbitration or be further inquired into. The amount of the penalty was £2280, and some aldermen contended that the whole of it should be imposed, especially as the contract had been profitable to the contractors. The amount of loss to the council in consequence of the contract not having been completed in the specified time was stated by Alderman Playfair to be about £2000. It was suggested that only half of the penalty should be imposed, because there were extenuating circumstances in connection with the delay, but eventually, on the motion of Alderman Butcher, it was resolved that the application of the firm should be further considered by a committee of the whole council.

AWNINGS AND FOOTPATHS.

Alderman KIPPAX moved,—"That the city surveyor, in conjunction with city building surveyor, be instructed to prepare a by-law for the erection and regulation of awnings, and for the prohibition of the erection of signboards, &c., over footways," and "That the city solicitor and the inspector of nuisances be instructed to prepare a by-law for the better regulation and the cleansing of the footpaths throughout the city."

The motion was agreed to.

SUPPLEMENTAL ASSESSMENT.

Alderman BUTCHER moved,—"1. That the supplemental assessment books for the several wards of the city and the suburbs, as confirmed or altered on appeal by the Metropolitan District Court, be and the same are hereby adopted by this council as an assessment of all premises within the city and suburbs liable to be rated for city, sewerage, or water purposes. 2. That, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 43 Victoria, No. 3, a rate of one shilling and sixpence in the pound be made and levied on the whole of the premises included in supplemental assessment books for the several wards of the city for general city purposes for the year 1883, and that the same be made payable at the Town Hall in equal half-yearly instalments before the 30th day of April, and 30th day of September next ensuing. 3. That, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 43 Victoria, No. 3, a water rate for the year 1883 of 5s. per room be made and levied on the whole of the premises in the City of Sydney and suburbs, included in the supplemental assessment books, where watermains are laid; and that the same be made payable at the Town Hall, in equal half-yearly instalments, before the 30th day of April and 30th day of September next ensuing. And 4. That a sewerage rate of 6d. in the £ be made and levied for the year 1883 on all premises included in the supplemental ward assessment books, liable for the payment of sewerage rates; and that the said rate be made payable into the office of the city treasurer, on or before the 30th day of June next."

The motions were agreed to.

RETAINING WALL IN WINDMILL-STREET.

Alderman PLAYFAIR moved,—"That a retaining wall be erected at Central Wharf, Windmill-street, at a cost not exceeding £800, upon condition that half of that sum be contributed by owners of that property."

The motion was agreed to.

THE NEW HALL.

Alderman TAYLOR moved,—"That the plans and drawings for the erection of the great hall and 16 additional rooms in connection with the Town Hall, submitted by the finance committee, be adopted, and that the city architect be instructed to prepare the specifications for the completion of the work by contract."

The motions were agreed to.

NEW BILL.

Alderman CHAPMAN moved,—"That the draft bill for amending the Sydney Corporation Act of 1879, submitted by the finance committee, be approved and submitted to Parliament."

The motion was agreed to.

The following are the principal clauses of the bill:—

"The powers conferred by the principal Act of making bylaws and fixing penalties for offences against such bylaws shall extend to the regulation of the sale of newspapers and matches in the streets and other public places of the city, and the prohibition of children under an age to be fixed by the council for selling or offering for sale newspapers or matches in such streets or public places, and the prohibition of parents or guardians of such children from permitting them to sell or offer for sale such newspapers or matches as aforesaid.

"Notwithstanding anything in the principal Act, it shall be lawful for the council to grant leases of the Exhibition building in Prince Alfred Park for such term or terms as to the council may seem fit (such term or terms not to exceed 50 years) for any purposes whatsoever—provided that there be reserved in every such lease the best yearly rent that can be gotten, without taking anything in the nature of a fine, premium, or foregift, and that there be contained in every such lease a condition of re-entry for non-payment of the rent thereby reserved, or for non-performance of the covenants therein contained.

"Notwithstanding anything in the principal Act, it shall be lawful for the council to grant a lease or leases of the whole or part or parts of lands in George, Market, and York streets on which the Sydney Markets are erected, and of the whole or any part or parts of any other lands and hereditaments now or hereafter to be vested in the council, to any person or persons who shall improve the same by erecting or building thereon any new house, erection, or building, or shall covenant or agree so to do within two years from the date of such lease for any term or or terms of years not exceeding 50 years, and take effect in possession or within six calendar months after the date of such lease, so that there be reserved in every such lease the best yearly rent that can be reasonably gotten without taking anything in the nature of a fine, premium, or foregift, and so as there be contained in every such lease a condition of re-entry for non-payment of the rent thereby reserved, or for non-performance of the covenants therein contained.

"Notwithstanding anything in the Public Parks Act of 1854 contained, it shall be lawful for the council to enter upon and take possession of any portion of certain lands known as Phillip Park, not exceeding in the whole 2 roods, for the purpose of the erection and maintenance thereon of public baths for the use of the citizens of Sydney, and to erect and maintain the necessary buildings for such purpose, and to enclose the said portion of land, and to use and occupy the same for the purposes aforesaid. Provided that the use of such baths when so erected shall be regulated by bylaws made by the council under the powers in that behalf conferred by the principal Act.

"It shall be lawful for the Council, for the purpose of opening, altering, widening, diverting, extending or closing any public way in the city of Sydney, to purchase or take in exchange any lands, with the consent of the owner or owners thereof, and to give in exchange for lands so purchased or taken, any lands vested in the council as public ways, or portions thereof, under the provisions of the principal Act."

PLANS AND SECTIONS.

Alderman BEARE moved,—"1. That the plan, with section, submitted by J. B. Holdsworth, showing the proposed subdivision and drainage of his property in Barcom-street, be approved, in terms of the Sydney Corporation Act, as regards allotments Nos. 1 to 21, section A, Nos. 1 to 9, section B, and Nos. 1 to 4, section C, and that the necessary notice be served upon the proprietor for the proper formation and ballasting of the public ways as shown upon the said plan. 2. That the resolution of council of the 5th December last, adopting an amended plan and section showing proposed subdivision of the Barncleuth Estate, Darlinghurst, be rescinded. 3. That the revised plan, with section, submitted by Henry Moore, proprietor of Barncleuth Estate, Darlinghurst, showing the proposed subdivision and drainage of that property, be approved, in terms of the Sydney Corporation Act, and that the necessary notice be served upon the proprietor for the proper formation and ballasting of the public ways, as shown upon said revised plan and section."

The motions were agreed to.

PLUMBERS' LICENSES.

Alderman GREEN moved,—"That the report of the finance committee, recommending the issue of certain city plumbers' and drainers' licenses for the year 1883, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to.

DEVIATIONS FROM IMPROVEMENT ACT.

Alderman LEES moved,—"That, in accordance with the City Improvement Act, this Council approves of the proposed deviations from the requirements of the Act in the construction of, or additions to buildings belonging to the undermentioned parties:—J. H. Seamer, wood and iron building, Bathurst-street; F. Guy, shed and office, Blackwattle Bay; W. Farley, workshop, Blackfriars Estate; T. Moore, addition to workshop, Taylor-lane; Colonial Sugar Company, addition to iron building, Chowne-street; John Hourigan, as regards thickness of certain walls in houses, Craigend; John Mooney, stables, near Brisbane-street; C. T. Saxton, office, Ultimo; J. T. and J. Toohey, temporary enclosure of additions with iron, Elizabeth-street; J. Barlow and Co., alteration of premises, 756, George-street."

The motion was agreed to.

CESSPIT IN MARGARET-STREET.

Alderman PLAYFAIR moved,—"That the city engineer report upon the advisability and cost of building a cesspit, or advising any other plan of stopping the nuisance caused by the sewerage emptying itself into Darling Harbour from the bottom of Margaret-street."

The motion was agreed to.

RECKLESS DRIVING OF DRAYS.

Alderman PLAYFAIR moved,—"That the town clerk be instructed to call the attention of the Transit Commissioners to the reckless way in which unlicensed drays and vans ply for hire, and that it is the opinion of this council that all drays and vans plying for hire should be numbered and registered."

The motion was agreed to.

SALEYARD AT RANDWICK RACECOURSE.

Alderman PLAYFAIR moved,—"That, in pursuance of the provisions of the Sydney Corporation Act, the Randwick Racecourse be licensed as a yard for the sale of calves, lambs, pigs, milch cows, and horses."

The motion was agreed to.

LAMPS, SEWERS, WATER MAINS, AND GENERAL WORKS.

The fine iron clipper ship Juno completed another voyage from London to this port yesterday, bringing a full general cargo and several passengers. She comes to port in excellent order. Captain Corkhill, who is still in command, reports leaving London on the 31st December, but had to anchor in the Downs owing to the prevalence of strong head winds. A fresh departure was taken on the 3rd of January, and favourable weather was experienced down the Channel. Off the Lizard, however, on the 5th January, a strong gale from the south-west was encountered, and it lasted until the following day, but the ship came through it safely, and without receiving any damage whatever. Fresh gales were met with coming across the Bay of Biscay, and altogether the weather was very dirty and uninviting. After getting out of the bay moderate winds and weather were experienced up till the 15th January, when the N.E. trades were found in 28° N. lat. and 22° W. long. These winds were very indifferent, and were parted with in 6° N. and 23° W., whence the usual calms and variables were met with to 1.10 N., where the S.E. trades were got. Crossed the Equator on January 29, in 24.17 W., and carried steady trades to 22° S. and 29° W., whence light variable winds were had up to the meridian of the Cape, which was crossed on March 2 in 42° S. The easting was run down on the parallel of 44° S., light winds being had right across the Indian Ocean, with variable weather. On the 21st of March indications of bad weather began to make their appearance, and gradually accumulated until the 24th, when there was a heavy gale blowing from the S.W., accompanied by a high hollow cross sea. The waves broke on board, filled the decks with water, and amongst other damage knocked two of the men down, and injured them so severely that they were rendered unfit for duty for some time. The fore-topsail and mainsail were split, the deckhouse and the woodwork about the decks damaged, and the boats strained by being filled with water. The Leuwin was passed on the 26th March in 47° S., after which variable weather was had until rounding Tasmania on the 4th instant in 44° S. Light airs were met with along the coast until the 8th instant, when a heavy southerly gale sprang up, and carried the ship to port.

The Nicoya paid her second visit to this port yesterday, but comes under a different rig to that she had when here on the first occasion. She is now a barque. She left Portland on the 4th instant with a cargo of bark, fruit, flour, and stone, and a fair passage was had up till Sunday night, when the jibboom was carried away. There was also a hard blow on Monday from the westward, but the barque received no further damage. The Heads were entered yesterday morning, but an anchorage was not come to down the bay until about 3 p.m., when the barque was towed round to the Victoria Wharf.

The Kiama (s.) crossed the Moruya bar outwards, at 8 a.m. on the 9th instant, passed Cape St. George at 3 p.m. same day, and arrived at the company's wharf at 1 p.m. on the 10th instant. Experienced variable breezes and rain to Bush Island, and moderate westerly breeze and fine weather the remainder of the passage. Cargo: 670 cheese, 10 kegs butter, 3 cases eggs, 89 bags bark, 69 bags maize, 26 bags potatoes, 81 hides, 25 bags oysters, 3 coops fowls, 1 bundle skins, 17 bundles calfskins, 1 case honey, 1 case sold, 9 empty cases, and sundries.

The Corinna (s.) cleared Low Heads at 3 p.m. on the 7th instant, passed Gabo Island at 7 p.m. on the 8th, and arrived at Eden at 10.30 p.m.; left Eden at 9 a.m. on the 9th, passed Jervis Bay at 9.35 p.m., and arrived at Sydney at 6 a.m. on the 10th. Experienced moderate northerly winds to Gabo, thence variable winds, settling into S.W., with thick rain, to Jervis Bay, thence fine weather till arrival.

The Hunter (s.) left Bateman's Bay on the 9th instant at noon called at Ulladulla at 3.45, took in cargo, and left at 6.30 p.m., passed Cape St. George at 8.45 p.m., abreast of Wollongong at 2 a.m. on the 10th instant, entered Sydney Heads at 6.20, and moored to company's wharf at 7.20 a.m. At the commencement of the passage had heavy rain and fresh westerly wind, and during the latter part clear weather, with heavy S.E. swell. Cargo: 5800 feet timber, 350 felloes, 50 spokes, 82 shafts, 12 blocks, 16 bearers, 182 kegs butter, 48 bags oysters, 30 bags bark, 2 bales and 6 packages leather, 6 bales sheepskins, 3 cases bacon, 8 cases eggs, 2 casks wine, 4 baskets and 1 box fish, 2 horses, 1 cow, 8 calves, 40 pigs, 24 empties, 12 boxes sundries.

The Alexandra (s.), for Melbourne, Quiraing (s.), and Keilawarra (s.), for Brisbane and Northern ports, left the harbour last evening.

The ship Roslin Castle left for Newcastle last night, where she will load coals for Shanghai.

The barque Mercedes, with a cargo of shale for Buenos Ayres, cleared the Heads at noon yesterday.

The John Hunt, schooner, in ballast, for Levuka; the brig Annabell, with coal, for Kaipara, N.Z.; and the three-masted schooner Fairlie, in ballast, for Suva, cleared at the Customs yesterday afternoon, and may be expected to sail to-day.

By telegram from Ballina last night we learn that the schooner Colleen Bhaw, which recently grounded on the Richmond bar while being towed out, has broken up, and that her cargo, consisting mostly of sawn timber, is strewn along the beach.

The following telegram was posted in the Exchange yesterday afternoon:—"The manager of the Eastern and Australian Fresh Meat Company has received a telegram from Batavia announcing the arrival, on the 7th instant, of their steamer Prado, completely fitted with freezing machinery, and also having on board the machinery for the Batavia works. She leaves there in about a week for Brisbane, and, after discharging general cargo, takes her place on the line, running with frozen meat between Queensland, Batavia, and Singapore."

Messrs. G. R. Stevens and Co. have received a telegram from Hongkong saying that the Ferdie left that port on the 7th instant for Port Darwin, Thursday Island, Cooktown, Townsville, Brisbane, Sydney, and Melbourne.

The American barque Sonntag, from New York, will be berthed at Dibbs' Wharf to-day, and the Bolivian barque Chiclayo at the Circular Quay.

The Drumburton, ship, is to be towed from the Central Wharf to the stream to-day, and the Brilliant from the Circular Quay to the stream.

The Orient steamship Potosi, from London via Melbourne, is due here at an early hour to-morrow morning.

The E. and A. Company's steamer Menmuir arrived at Hongkong on the 6th instant, and will leave again on the 12th for Port Darwin, Queensland ports, and Sydney. The Catterthun (s.) leaves Sydney on Saturday for Hongkong, via Queensland ports.

A telegram from Clarence Heads, yesterday morning, states that the Australian (s.), which recently grounded on the bar, was successfully floated off the spit on Monday, and is now anchored in deep water.

The British ship Juno, which arrived yesterday, reports having spoken the Spanish sloop of war "G. R. Q. T.," in 2.30 N. lat. and 24.17 W. long., bound to Bahia, Brazil.

The City of Sydney left San Francisco on the 9th instant, for Sydney via ports, her contract date being the 7th.

The Orient liner, John Elder, sailed from Plymouth for Sydney, via Adelaide and Melbourne, on the 7th instant, with a full cargo and passenger list.

As a fitting pendant to the record of the fast passage made by the s.s. Potosi (says the Argus) the following particulars of the outward voyage of the Orient Company's steamship Sorata as far as Suez may be given. The extract from the Sorata's log was brought on here by the Potosi. The Sorata, hence to London, left Adelaide on February 11, and reached Suez on March 7. On February 24 and 25 she was at Diego Garcia. The following is a record of the days' runs from February 11 inclusive to March 6 inclusive:—250, 319, 321, 314, 316, 325, 316, 319, 306, 318, 317, 323, 305, 300, 316, 337, 326, 318, 317, 322, 305, and 300. The average speed maintained was 13·2 knots.

THE S.S. POTOSI.

This steamship ran up her numbers off Cape Otway on Saturday afternoon (says the Argus), and was snugly at anchor in the bay before 9.30 p.m. The Potosi is from London via Naples and the Suez Canal. She brings a full complement of passengers and cargo, and also a mail. The Potosi has a name for making uniformly good passages, but on this occasion she has bettered all her previous performances, and the run out is the quickest and most successful which has been accomplished for some time. The tabulated record made up from the log shows that the entire time of the trip, inclusive of stoppages and all else, was 39 days 11 hours 15 minutes, and the actual steaming time 35 days 16 hours and 50 minutes. The distance from Plymouth to Naples was overtaken in 7 days 15 minutes, out of which there was a stoppage at sea of 4 hours and 33 minutes. From Naples to Port Said the time was four days, from which has to be deducted a detention of 11 hours. From Port Said to Suez the Potosi took 3 days 5 hours and 25 minutes, but nearly the whole of this time was taken up by stoppages in port and at sea, and she was only 18 hours 15 minutes under steam. The run from Suez to Port Phillip Heads was completed in 25 days 5 hours and 35 minutes, and in this period there was a stoppage of six hours. The deduction for difference in time in longitude, 9 hours 40 minutes, thus gives the exact steaming time of the Potosi as above, namely, 35 days 16 hours and 50 minutes. The best day's work during the trip was 340 miles, and the least 292 miles. The Potosi has thus added notably to her reputation. Captain Stoddart, who excels in finding out the shortest tracks from Plymouth to Port Phillip, has command of the Potosi on this voyage. Mr. Erskine, chief engineer of the Cotopaxi, is with him in the Potosi. The Potosi has brought files of English papers to the 3rd ultimo, put on board at Suez, and these were delivered on Saturday, 35 days from date. She left Plymouth with some 390 passengers, of whom 15 in the saloon were for Naples, 14 for Melbourne, 25 for Sydney, and one for Adelaide. Of the second saloon list, 30 were for Melbourne, and 48 for Sydney. Of the 257 in the third-class and steerage, 99 were for Melbourne and 158 for Sydney. Good health prevailed on board during the voyage, and the passengers were not slow in expressing their entire gratification with the vessel and her commander and officers, and with the care and attention paid to their requirements. There is one change to note among the deck officers. Mr. Waddilove, of the company's service, having replaced Mr. Sherrard as chief. The Potosi has been fitted up with refrigerating machinery, but at present it is only used for the preservation of stores for passengers' consumption. The report of the voyage is as follows:—Left Gravesend on February 23, at 25 minutes to 10 a.m., and anchored at Plymouth at 20 minutes past 10 a.m. next day. Some requisite alterations to the freezing-machine detained the steamer at Plymouth until 20 minutes past 6 a.m. on February 27, when she proceeded on the voyage. Light N.W. breezes continued until 15 minutes past 2 p.m. on the 1st ultimo, when a thick fog came down suddenly and detained her until a quarter past 11 p.m. Cape St. Vincent was passed at 6 a.m., and Gibraltar at 10 minutes to 10 p.m. on the 2nd ultimo, and after passing Cape de Gata, fresh easterly breezes and a head sea were met with until arrival at Naples at 25 minutes to 7 a.m. on March 6. At half-past 5 same day weighed anchor, and on the 10th ultimo, at a quarter to 7 a.m., made fast to the buoys off Port Said; finished coaling at half-past 4 p.m., but owing to the number of ships then in the canal were detained by the authorities. On the 13th ultimo, at 9 a.m., cast off, and proceeded without further interruption, arriving in Suez Bay at noon; proceeded again at a quarter past 12 p.m. with light variable winds and fine weather. On the 14th ultimo, breeze varying in strength from moderate to fresh from N.W., and fine weather. On the 17th ultimo, passed Perim Island with light, variable easterly breezes and fine weather; and on the 18th ultimo, at a quarter to 10 p.m., passed Cape Guardafui with same winds and weather; from this date to midnight on the 23rd ultimo, good progress was made. At this time a strong S.W. wind with heavy rain, was experienced, and the weather continued squally to the 24th ultimo, when the S.E. trades were met. They were moderate at first, but increased to a strong breeze, with rising sea, which lasted till noon of the 29th ultimo, when the trades were lost; light airs and calms followed for 24 hours, when a westerly swell set in on the 31st ultimo, at noon; fresh winds, varying from S.E. to S.W. by S., with a heavy westerly swell, were then fallen in with. On the 3rd instant the wind fell light until noon on the 5th instant, when the wind veered to W. and N.W. There was also a heavy swell until passing Cape Otway, about 1 p.m. on the 7th, when the wind fell light.

THE BARQUE GOGOBURN.

The barque Gogoburn is an entirely new vessel, having been launched in November last from the building yard of Messrs. Barclay, Stobhouse, and Co., of Dumbarton, Scotland; but she comes to this port from Glasgow, where her owners, Messrs. Carswell and Co., reside. The Gogoburn is the first vessel of a new line which is to trade to these colonies, and this is, of course, her maiden voyage. Matters have commenced very inauspiciously for the firm, as the Gogoburn has experienced most terrific weather, and on two occasions there was every prospect of her foundering. As it was, she has received a great deal of damage one way and another, and about 20 tons of cargo had to be jettisoned. The record of her voyage shows that she left Glasgow on the 17th of December, and Greenock on the 24th, and had no sooner cleared the latter port than she met with a hurricane which lasted for nine days, and during which the sun was invisible. The wind came from the south-west, and the sea was running very high; the decks were swept constantly, and one huge wave struck her on the bows with such force that some of the rivets forward were started, causing her to leak badly. At one time the fore peak, which is shut off from the other part of the ship by a watertight bulkhead, was half full of water, and there were, in addition, two feet in the hold, which necessitated the men being kept at the pumps every two hours. In addition to this trouble the yards and trusses of the topsail yards were carried away, the tinglasses were torn out of the deck, causing the spare spars to be washed about the decks, the fiferails were smashed, and everything movable about the deck was torn from its lashings, and many articles were carried overboard. Owing to the heavy head sea, and the amount of water in the fore peak, the ship plunged heavily, and the leak gained on the pumps. On the 30th December there were some heavy squalls from the N.W., lasting for about an hour. Owing to the leak still increasing the ship was pumped every hour, which kept the water down. On this day the fore-topsail and mizen-staysail were split, being the biggest half of the sail on the ship at the time. There was no diminution in the fury of the storm on the 1st January, and the leak commenced to gain on the workers at the pumps. The stem was evidently weak, as the peak was bulging out owing to rivets having given way. At this time all hands went aft, declared to Captain M'Gowan that they were exhausted, and asked that the ship should be taken back to port, as they feared she would go down; but this request was not acceded to. At 10 p.m. on the 2nd the gale seemed to increase in violence, and there was such a tremendous sea running that the vessel's decks were swept by the waves, and the men therefore could not stand up to the pumps. One sea filled the cabin, and swept everything movable overboard. Towards the 4th of January the storm subsided somewhat, but on the following day it sprang up afresh, and raged with greater fury than ever, the wind still coming from the S.W., with a tremendous sea, in which the ship laboured and strained heavily, and her decks were swept every few minutes. Whatever there was on the decks movable was carried away, and the men were once more prevented from getting at the pumps. The storm continued with unabated violence until the 12th, when the weather gradually moderated, and continued so until the N.E. trades were found on the 16th January, in lat. 28 N. They were lost in 15° N., whence light, variable, and unsteady winds were had to 6° N., when the S.E. trades were got. The equator was crossed on January 28 in 26.53 W., and the trades were carried down to about 27° S. After that, light variable winds were experienced until the meridian of the Cape was crossed on the 4th of March in lat. 43.40 S. The easting was run down on the parallel of about 50° S., with mostly northerly winds, and very few good runs could be made. A terrible gale was experienced on March 29. The wind first came away from the N.E., but gradually hauled round to the westward, and the sky had a cyclonic appearance. At 2 a.m. heavy seas swept the decks, washing spars and all movables away; and the vessel was apparently damaged by the head, as she plunged heavily. The mizen staysail and fore lower topsail were once more blown away in a terrific gust. The barometer at this time registered 28.45. The anchors were discovered to have drifted from their lashings, but were afterwards secured, though not without difficulty. The barometer continued to fall, the wind came in heavy gusts, and the sea was from the north-east. It was feared that the ship would founder if the wind shifted, unless she was lightened forward in order to enable her to rise to the seas. It was therefore decided to jettison a portion of the cargo. At 10 o'clock on the 30th, all hands were engaged in throwing overboard pig iron from the forehold, and by noon about 20 tons had been got rid of. Soon afterwards what was expected took place, viz., the wind suddenly hauled round to the westward and blew with great fury, but fortunately the ship was able to stand up against it better owing to having been lightened forward. On the following day the weather moderated, and nothing of any note occurred afterwards until Tasmania was rounded on the 4th instant. From that time N.E. winds and drizzly weather were met with until the 8th instant, when the weather became very squally and there was a great deal of lightning. This weather continued during the following day, when there was a terrific squall from the westward. The Heads were entered at about half past 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and the barque anchored in Watson's Bay until 9 o'clock, when she got underway again, and was towed to an anchorage below Garden Island. The Gogoburn brings a full general cargo, including a quantity of blasting powder.

Extraordinary Testimonial.—"For thirty years I have tried all the various soaps that have been recommended, and I candidly state that the Albion Milk and Sulphur Soap has no equal in soothing the irritation of the skin."—J. M'Grigor Croft, M.D., M.R.C.P., late staff-surgeon to her Majesty's Royal Army Hospitals, May 1, 1880.—It is beautifully white and delicately perfumed. Sold in tablets by all chemists and perfumers.—[Advt.]

Circulars and pamphlets explanatory of its curative properties have been translated into all languages, and there is no portion of the world where Wolfe's Schnapps is not known and appreciated.—[Advt.]

The prospectus has been published of the Eastern and Australian Fresh Meat Company, Limited; capital, £30,000, in 300 shares of £100 each. The object is to supply Java, Singapore, and other places with frozen meat and such other commodities as may be considered desirable; and in so far as the company will be the means of opening up a market for the produce of these colonies, and promoting interchange of commodities between them and the populous countries to the north, it deserves the support of the producing and mercantile sections of the community. Already the bulk of the capital has been obtained from shareholders in Australia and Batavia, and operations have been commenced, some details of which will be found elsewhere. Application for shares is to be made at the company's offices, 65, Pitt-street, or to Messrs. M'Dermott, Loughnan, and Scarr.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed from to-morrow until Thursday, at 3.30 p.m., when, among other subjects, the important question of the insolvency laws is to be considered. Considerable dissatisfaction has been expressed at recent meetings of creditors with respect to these laws: and it is, therefore, to be presumed that the result of the present consideration of the question will be more than talk, which has been the beginning and the end of many meetings heretofore held.

A branch of the Australian Mercantile Union Insurance Company was opened in Sydney yesterday under the management of Mr. E. W. Moon.

At the late general meeting of the North Shore Mutual and Land Investment Association, Limited, Mr. M. M'Mahon presiding, the report for the seven months ended 31st December was adopted. Mr. B. O. Holtermann, M.L.A., was re-elected a director, and the Hon. J. P. Abbott, M.L.A., was elected a director in lieu of Mr. R. Seldon. Messrs. Dibbs and Rutledge were re-elected auditors. A vote of thanks was passed to the directors and the auditors.

In the import markets another very quiet day was passed, merchants having most of their time occupied with home correspondence. The recent failures have a decidedly depressing influence on business—an influence which is likely to be felt until the extent of the trouble is known. For flour the inquiry was not at all active; prices continue firm, as follow:—South Australian town brands, £13 10s.; country brands, £12 10s. to £12 15s.; New South Wales, £12 5s. to £12 15s.; Victorian, £11 10s. to £12. Stocks of salable wheat having become reduced, prices now rule more in accordance with the quotations in the other markets: 5s. 3d. to 5s. 5d. is the value of best samples. Some business was done in medium teas at about 50s. to 55s., though no sales of importance have transpired. The market for fish is very dull, and prices of most descriptions are easier: sardines, however, maintain late values, quarters having been sold at 4s. 10½d., and halves at 9s. 10½d. Dried fruits are in very limited request, especially raisins. Candles continue firm; imported worth fully 8d.: for the local made Sunbeam 7½d. is the quotation. Other lines of groceries and oilmen's stores exhibit no special feature. In brewers' goods we note the sale of a line of malt at 7s. 4½d. In liquor, we hear of sales of Tennent's ale on the spot at up to 9s. 6d. for quarts; Hennessy's three-star case brandy continues very scarce; 50s. asked for ordinary trade lots, a shade less taken for shipments to arrive. Fair trade sales of Bisquit Dubouche and other second-class brandy are reported: a parcel of Albert's pale brandy placed at 7s., in bond. Business reported in Meeus' Key brand geneva at 12s. 1½d., also in bond. In metals the demand for galvanised iron continues active, and spot parcels of almost all brands can be placed at prices about 2s. 6d. per ton in advance of those ruling two or three weeks ago. A temporary scarcity of sheet lead is noted, and an advance asked seems likely to be maintained until overdue ships come to hand. A parcel of an outside brand of fencing wire, No. 6 size, was placed at £12 10s. Sales of wire nails making up to 15s. 6d. for large sizes. A line of resin was placed at £8 15s., and a quantity of raw oil was done at 3s. 1d. The price of cement is well maintained, up to 17s. paid for leading brands. On the wharfs, this morning, there was only a small supply of produce forward, and there was not much business done. The quotations are:—Lucerne hay, £2 15s. to £4; Warrnambool potatoes, £3 to £3 10s.; Victorian oaten chaff, £5 10s. to £6; straw chaff, £3 10s. to £4; Melbourne onions, £4; maize, 3s. to 3s. 3d.; oats, seed, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d.—feed, 2s. 6d. to 2s. 9d.; Cape barley, 3s. 6d. to 3s. 9d.; butter, 1s. 3d.; eggs, 1s. 10d. to 2s.; cheese, 7d.; bacon, 8d. to 11d.; ham, 11d. to 1s.; lard, 6d. to 9d.; honey, 4d. to 6½d.

Messrs. Fraser and Co. will offer at auction to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, colonial sugar and groceries; and in the afternoon, clear Oregon pine.

The leather sales to-day were thinly attended, and the market very inanimate. Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited; John Bridge; Maiden, Hill, and Clark, and F. L. Barker report having cleared catalogues at the following ranges of value: Kip, 11d. to 16d.; sole, 7d. to 10d.; damaged, from 6d.; calf, 15d. to 28d.; yearling, 16d. to 21d.; tweed, 11½d. to 22d.; harness, 10d. to 13d.; bellies, 5½d.; shoulders, 6½d.; strap, 3d.; Kangaroo (Australian), 18d. to 24d.; bag, 6s. to 12s. 6d.; bridle, 6s. to 10s.; basils, 4s. to 12s. 6d.

The Gogoburn arrived to-day from Glasgow, with a general cargo valued at £36,000. The Juno also arrived from London, with a general cargo valued at £13,800.

The following table shows the declared value of the Imports and Exports at the Sydney Customs from January 1 to March 31, 1882 and 1883:—

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Victorian Mining Stock.—Duchess of Edinburgh, 13s. 1½d. to 13s. 9d.; Egerton, 25s. 6d.; Frederick the Great, 20s.; Maxwell's 31s.; St. Mungo, 14s. 9d. to 15s. 3d.; Shamrock, 10s.; South Devonshire, 18s. to 18s. 4½d.; United Devonshire, 31s. 6d.

Wheat is in good request at advanced rates, but holders are unwilling to sell in large quantities. Should the present export trade with the neighbouring colonies continue, nearly all the available surplus will be required to meet this demand. Small lots of wheat were sold at auction at 5s. 4d.; good milling bringing 5s. 4½d., and prime 5s. 5d. Some was sold privately, but holders refused these prices. A line of 10,000 bags, some of which is Victorian, was taken up at 5s. 1d. f.o.b. at a South Australian outport. The bulk of the sugar offered at auction was withdrawn for higher prices. Sales of cornsacks were effected at 6s. 3d. in bond. Woolpacks brought 2s. 3d. Importers of Schiedam candles demand 9½d. Hops sell at 3s. 9d. to 4s. 3d. At the timber sales shelving realised a further advance; clear pine has declined slightly.

WARRNAMBOOL, Tuesday.

Potatoes are quoted at from £1 17s. 6d. to £2 per ton.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Wheat is steady at 5s. 5d. to 5s. 6d. There is little offering. Superfine flour is offering at £12 10s. down to £11 7s. at Port Adelaide. There has been only a moderate business in the import market. Sugar, tea, and general groceries have been only placed in trade lots. Hops are dull. The market is weaker daily, but an improvement is expected. A small lot of kippered herrings sold at 10s. dozen; also 90 tons of wire, Nos. 8 and 10, price withheld.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1883.

In the Legislative Council, yesterday, the President took the chair at half-past 4, and, there not being a quorum of members present, the House stood adjourned until 4 o'clock p.m. the following day (Wednesday).

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday.

Ministers replied to questions respecting the report of the Royal Commission on Friendly Societies, the survey of the line from Orange to Forbes, the case of William Marr, who was injured at Orange Railway Station, the proposed erection of a passengers' footbridge facing Kite-street, Orange, the importation of white spirits, the levelling of the land in connection with the railway near Eveleigh platform, the description of timber to be used in the Mudgee railway, the issue of free railway passes, the case of the steamer Pacific, the number of females employed in the postal and telegraphic services, the surveyed portion of the goldfield near Parkes, the conservation of water, and the report of the Executive Commissioner for the Bordeaux Exhibition.

Ministers also laid on the table copies of two reports of the Representative Commissioner for Bordeaux, a return of expenditure at Eveleigh railway station, a return on the remodelling of the Real Property Index, a copy of the Index of Registrations under the Real Property Act, a return of white spirits imported, and a return of claims in connection with the outbreak of smallpox, and it was ordered that the documents be printed.

Mr. Dibbs gave notice of his intention to move to-day for leave to introduce a bill for the correction of an erroneous date in the 218th section of the Sydney Corporation Act of 1879.

It was ordered, on the motion of Mr. Garrard, that there be laid on the table copies of all papers in relation to the resumption of certain land and buildings at Circular Quay for railway purposes.

Mr. Abigail moved for the production of all documents having reference to the purchase by the Government of the roads and bridges of the Pyrmont Bridge Company, which, after a brief discussion, was agreed to.

Mr. Holtermann moved a resolution, declaring that, in the opinion of the House, £25,000 of the £150,000 voted for immigration generally should be devoted to the introduction of Germans direct from Hamburgh, under the direction and approval of the Agent-General. He remarked upon the service which Germans had done the colony as miners, and in other capacities, and said most intending German immigrants of the best classes would go direct from Hamburgh to the United States, which they could do for about £6 per head, instead of proceeding in the first instance to London to seek passages to this colony, which was by no means well known in Germany. The Agent-General could make special regulations already for one-tenth of the people being foreigners, and under this head might be included Swedes and Danes.

A debate ensued, in which testimony was borne to the industry, sobriety, honesty, and usefulness of the Germans as colonists; but it was urged that the resolution would recognise immigration of an exceptional character, and that it was sufficient to let the Agent-General admit the proportion of foreigners, inclusive of Germans, permitted under the existing regulations. Mr. LYNE, Mr. M'ELHONE, Mr. BURNS, Mr. VAUGHN, Mr. H. H. BROWN, Mr. FREMLIN, Mr. DAY, Mr. GRIFFITHS, Mr. TARGETT, Mr. SLATTERY, Mr. YOUNG, Sir HENRY PARKES, Mr. MITCHELL, Mr. HEYDON, Mr. GARRARD, Mr. CAMERON, Mr. LYNCH, Mr. POOLE, and Mr. GARRETT took part in the debate.

Mr. M'ELHONE moved that the amount be reduced to £15,000.

Mr. STUART said no one could gainsay the value of Germans as colonists, but he did not think this motion was necessary at the present time. The regulations did not go quite so far as the proposal, and the mover would better consult the object which he had at heart by withdrawing the motion at this late period of the session, when there was hardly time to alter the regulations. He was deeply impressed with the importance of this immigration, and he was sure from the feeling of the House any Government which might be in power would cause inquiry to be made through the Agent-General on the subject.

Sir HENRY PARKES also opposed any special appropriation.

Mr. HOLTERMANN proposed to withdraw his motion, which was objected to. The original motion was negatived without division, and the amendment was negatived by 31 to 21.

Mr. HOLTERMANN next moved a resolution for going into Committee of the Whole to consider the appropriation of a sum not exceeding £2000, for the purpose of procuring photographs of the most important public buildings and public works of the colony, for distribution amongst the various art galleries and the like institutions throughout Europe. After a brief debate the motion was withdrawn.

Mr. YOUNG moved a resolution declaring that in view of the large number of fast and powerful unsubsidised steamers now trading between the Australasian colonies and the various European ports, the House was of opinion no new contracts should be entered into, or any existing contracts extended whereby subsidies were granted for the conveyance of mails. He argued that there was a time when the policy of paying subsidies for mail services for the colony was justifiable, and that the Pacific mail service was established as a matter of self-defence in opposition to Victoria, but that the increase in the trade of the colony had been followed by such a fleet of unsubsidised steamers which kept almost as good time as the subsidised vessels, that subsidies were now no longer necessary. He believed that if all the subsidised steamers were stopped the mails would be carried as usual, and that the expenditure of upwards of £220,000 per annum for the Pacific service could well be saved. That service was well conducted, and its steamers kept its time, but its dates did not after all compare favourably with the dates of the other lines. He could not see that the colony would derive any advantage from entering the Postal Union, but if the House thought otherwise the Government would be better able to enter the Union if they were to give up this expensive contract. Then the expected increase of business from the Pacific service had not been experienced. The contract would end this year, and it would be unwise to make any similar contract for another seven years, during which great improvements might be expected to take place, both in the construction and speed of vessels.

On the motion of Mr. WRIGHT, who said the Government would possibly move a resolution on the subject on Wednesday or Thursday, and certainly before the close of the session, the debate was adjourned till Wednesday, the 25th instant.

Mr. GARRETT moved a resolution, directing that the House would go into Committee of the Whole on Tuesday next, to consider an address to the Governor, praying that his Excellency would be pleased to cause provision to be made on an additional surplus revenue estimate for 1883, for additions to the grants for the repair and maintenance of the main and minor roads of the colony for the present year at the following rates, viz., main and first and second class minor roads 25 per cent., third and fourth class minor roads 50 per cent., fifth and sixth class minor roads 100 per cent., besides the sum of £8000 for unclassified roads. He contended that the ordinary allowances for the roads were inadequate, and that he was taking a reasonable course in asking the House to vote the amount proposed in aid from the surplus revenue which consisted of accumulations of savings from the land fund, and which could not cause any financial embarrassment to the Government. The House had in 1877 granted a supplementary vote in the same way for the roads of the colony.

Mr. STUART hoped the House would not agree to the motion. The continued accumulation of revenue from the sale of land no longer existed, and the amount annually expended from the Consolidated Revenue on roads and bridges was much larger than it was formerly, the amount on the Estimates this year for roads and bridges being £930,000. To meet the motion of Mr. Garrett would call for an additional sum of £150,000. The time had arrived when it was necessary to introduce a system of local self-government, for the initiation of which a large portion of the surplus revenue should be retained.

After remarks from Mr. M'ELHONE in opposition to the motion under present circumstances, and from Mr. GARRETT in reply, the resolution was put and negatived on division by 32 to 21.

Mr. ABIGAIL moved that, in the opinion of the House, the Government should take immediate steps to complete the resumption of Pyrmont Bridge and the abolition of the tolls thereon.

After an animated debate, in which Mr. M'ELHONE, Mr. STUART, Mr. MERRIMAN, Mr. CAMERON, Mr. POOLE, and other hon. members took part, and in which the claims of the Pyrmont Bridge Company on the Government were criticised, the resolution was withdrawn.

Petitions in favour of the present Licensing Act were presented from Parkes, Grota, and Yass.

The motions standing in the names of Mr. H. H. BROWN and Mr. COONAN—the former respecting a bridge over the Paterson River, and the latter for a vote of £500 for compensation to be paid to Mr. James Pugh for discovering the Parkes goldfield—were withdrawn.

The Cohen Estate Bill was read a second time and committed, and its further consideration was made an order of the day for Friday week.

The Conditional Purchases Validation Bill was read a third time and passed.

On its being moved that the Criminal Law Consolidation Bill be read a third time, Mr. A. G. TAYLOR drew attention to clauses 337, 416, 419, and 420, which he contended would authorise expenditure, and that the bill was therefore out of order.

The objections were overruled by the SPEAKER.

Several clauses were then further considered and amended in committee.

On the clause authorising whipping being again proposed for reconsideration, progress was reported, and leave was given to sit again.

The House adjourned at 12.30 to 4 p.m. this day (Wednesday.)

There has been laid upon the table of the Assembly a special report by the Board of Health with respect to the late epidemic of smallpox, and this report contains what is not only of great interest as matter of record, but suggestions for future guidance in case of similar outbreaks of infectious diseases hereafter. The report is signed by Mr. HARRIS, the Mayor of Sydney; Mr. EAGAR, the Under-Secretary for the Treasury; Mr. FOSBERY, the Inspector-General of Police; and Dr. MACKELLAR, all of whom are official members of the Board; and also by Drs. ROBERTS, MACLAURIN, FORTESCUE, and WEST, who are non-official members. The medical body is fully represented on this Board, having five out of the eight members. The MAYOR is supposed to represent the citizens, whose interest he has in charge, Mr. EAGAR the general government, and Mr. FOSBERY the police administration. The Board was appointed in July, 1881, nearly two months after the disease first showed itself, and its powers were extended by an Act passed in the following December, which was hurriedly designed for a special purpose; but its provisions do not go beyond dealing with cases of infectious disease. Strictly, therefore, this Board is an Infectious Diseases Board, and a larger scope will have to be given to its operations whenever the whole question of public health is reconsidered.

The special interest attaching to this report is that it narrates what is almost a unique experience, namely, the stamping out of smallpox after it had got a substantial footing. The period during which the disease was known to exist covered 271 days, and the total number of cases reported was 154. To have got the infection under was an achievement, and therefore all the facts relating to the course of the disease, and to the remedial measures adopted, deserve to be carefully recorded.

The first known case was Mr. OH CHONG'S child, in Lower George-street, though there appears to be no absolute proof that that was really the first case. The source of infection is not traceable. The house was immediately placed in quarantine, and no further case was reported for twenty days, although from nine to thirteen days is usually considered to be the period of incubation. The disease then appeared simultaneously in four different places, namely, Surry Hills, Cumberland-street, Waterloo, and Circular Quay. Then, again, a period of twenty days elapsed before there was any further manifestation; and then during the following ten days it appeared in seven houses, each situated in a different locality. From the middle of July to the end of January, a period of 200 days, 121 cases occurred in different parts of Sydney and the suburbs. It seems proper to remark that in the panic which marked the first appearance of the disease, and the injudicious quarantining of medical men, it was impossible to get the best medical opinion of the city as to the character of the disease. Smallpox is not an unmistakable complaint. It is sometimes so much like other eruptive disorders that even skilled physicians hesitate to pronounce with certainty. The very last case that is supposed to have occurred, namely, that of the Fijian servant of Sir ARTHUR GORDON, was one which even now is admittedly obscure. It is quite possible, therefore, that some of the cases dealt with were not true smallpox, and we must make this allowance when dealing with the statistics. Taking the facts, however, as they are recorded, we have the following results:—Of the patients attacked 25·9 per cent. died. They were treated in three different ways. Some were taken to the quarantine station at the North Head, some to the Coast Hospital at Little Bay, and some were treated in their own homes. Of course, the experience was on too small a scale to allow of a very trustworthy induction, but it is worth noticing that the Little Bay Hospital shows to the greatest advantage. Thirteen out of the forty-six cases taken to the quarantine station were fatal. Part of this may have been due to the rough treatment on the passage. But then the patients who were treated in their own homes fared slightly worse, for of seventy-seven patients so treated twenty-two died. Out of thirty-one patients removed to the Coast Hospital only five died. The position of this hospital is undoubtedly as good as it can possibly be, the only drawback being its distance from town. A land journey of nine miles for a fevered patient is undoubtedly not a good thing; yet up to the present time it does not appear that any patient has suffered from the removal, and once there, the conditions are certainly very favourable to recovery.

As to infection, the following results come out:—In twenty-four cases the source of infection could not be traced. In seventy-nine cases it was made out thus: in forty-one instances the disease appeared during the progress of another case in the same house; in five cases the disease extended from an infected house adjoining; in ten the disease appeared in close proximity to an infected house; in five the patient had previously visited at an infected house, or received visitors therefrom; in seven the disease was supposed to have been contracted by persons working near to, or frequently passing infected houses; in two cases special constables watching quarantined houses were attacked, and in eight instances it appears highly probable that unreported cases had previously existed in the patient's house. After the Sanatorium was established, 137 persons were taken there, simply because they had been more or less in connection with patients. Of these, seven developed smallpox during residence. Speaking generally, it may be said that the disease principally attacked the labouring classes, amongst whom were two Chinamen, and was most virulent amongst those occupying badly drained and old houses, in neighbourhoods of which the sanitary conditions were bad.

Looked at from the point of view of vaccination, it appears that ten of the fatal cases had been vaccinated in early life, twenty-nine had never been vaccinated, and of one there is no record. Several cases are mentioned in the report of households in which the protective influence of vaccination is stated to have been very marked.

The most satisfactory part of the report is that which discloses the preparations we have now made for dealing with any fresh cases of infection. In 1881 the Government was caught all unawares, and it blundered. We wasted life, we wasted money, and we learnt the lesson that forecast is economy. We have now a well-appointed infectious hospital, and any case can be dealt with promptly and with the minimum of risk to the community and the patient. These preparations have been expensive, but they have not been so costly as would be another hurried attempt to deal with the difficulty in a panic.

Whatever may be said as to the cause of the increase in the consumption of intoxicating liquors, the increase itself can hardly fail to excite public attention. That the increase is not due to exclusively local and temporary circumstances may be inferred from the fact that it is becoming the rule in a good many parts of the world. According to the report of the National Bureau of Statistics recently issued, the consumption of liquor has very largely increased in America. "The consumption (not manufacture) of distilled spirits during the years 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, and 1882 respectively was 57,111,082, 54,278,475, 63,526,694, 70,607,081, and 73,550,036 gallons." Thus in four years the consumption increased by no less than sixteen million gallons. "For the same years," we are told, "the consumption of wines native and foreign was 19,812,067, 24,532,015, 28,484,428, 24,231,106, and 25,628,071 gallons. But the chief increase has been in malt liquors, which aggregated 310,653,253, 345,076,118, 414,771,690, 444,806,373, and 527,051,236 gallons." It will thus appear that in the United States the consumption of malt liquors has not far from doubled during the last four years. For reasons to which we shall hereafter refer, the statistics of the United Kingdom for the same period point in a different direction, but those for a longer period tend to the same conclusion. In 1865 the British Government got 37 per cent. of its taxation revenue from alcoholic liquors, in 1868 this branch of the revenue went up to 42 per cent., in 1873 it rose to 43, and in 1874 to 51 per cent. In 1860 the English drink bill amounted to £36,000,000, while in 1876 it had reached the enormous figure of £147,000,000. After that year there was a falling-off, but in 1881 the drink bill amounted to a hundred and twenty millions, so that in the fifty years it had increased by fifty millions, or at the rate of a million a year.

The aspect of the subject presented by the police statistics is a graver one. In 1881 about 175,000 persons were charged with being drunk, or drunk and disorderly, in England and Wales; in 1860 not more than about half that number were so charged. Of course the larger number of apprehensions may be due partly to greater police vigilance; the increase in the drink consumption also is to be traced partly to the growth of the population. But it will be seen that much of the increase is not to be accounted for in this way. In 1860 the drink expenditure of the United Kingdom amounted to only £2 18s. a head, while in 1876 it amounted to £4 9s. In 1831 the expenditure on intoxicating liquors averaged three pounds a head. In 1881 the expenditure was nearly four pounds a head. At present there are said to be 170,000 licenses in England and Wales, or one for every 170 of the population. There were only 50,000 licenses in 1830, or one for every 260 of the population. In some parts the increase has been much more startling than this. In Edinburgh, for example, between 1871 and 1877, the number of apprehensions of the drunk and incapable increased from 5400 to 7733, or by 33 per cent., while the population only increased 5 per cent. One of the saddest things conveyed by the drink statistics is the extraordinary increase of intemperance among women. In the city already named the number of the arrests of women for drunkenness rose from 2124 in 1871 to 3046 in 1877, an increase of 43.5 per cent. Those who attempt to explain this vast increase in the consumption of drink, will find that it has not been traceable to the absence of temperance effort, or to that of repressive laws. The fifty years during which the consumption of drink has increased so greatly have marked the rise and progress of all the great temperance organisations. Moreover they are the years during which the drink question has received the special attention of Legislatures.

What the state of the world would have been had the temperance societies never existed, and if no restrictive legislation had been attempted, cannot of course be said, but there is little evidence to the effect that rigid measures have done much to check intemperance. In England the period which followed the passing of the Act of Lord ABERDARE was one of almost unexampled prosperity for the publicans. How repressive the drink legislation of some of the United States has been we all know, and yet it is in the United States especially that the consumption of drink has increased. Not only so; the evidence at hand goes to show that it is not in the States in which legislation has been least repressive that the drinking habits of the people have given most concern. On the contrary, our American correspondent told us on Monday that any improvement in the matter of temperance "has been most marked in the States where the laws have been most liberal to liquor-dealers." Not the least bewildering of the facts in connection with the increased consumption of drink is the one which shows that during at least a part of the time in which the consumption has been on the increase the number of public-houses—especially of houses of the lower class—has been on the decrease. In the larger cities of England, hundreds of low beer-shops have been shut, and yet, while the facilities for getting drink have been fewer, the indulgence in drink has been getting greater. In some instances the means employed for lessening the consumption have enhanced it. The better the houses the larger have been the numbers attracted to them. It was proved before the House of Lords Committee that districts which had the largest number of public-houses had the smallest number of apprehensions for drunkenness, and that counties with the smaller number of public-houses were more drunken than those which had the larger number.

It is not, however, in the smallness or the largeness of the number of public-houses that we are to find the explanation of the increased consumption of drink. That explanation will be found chiefly in the increased prosperity of the classes by which especially the drinking is done. There are other causes of the increased consumption; but it will be generally agreed that this is the chief one. People can afford to drink more, and for that reason they do drink more. A reference to the commercial statistics of the last few years will show, so far at least as spirits are concerned, that as trade has got better the drink consumption has got larger, and that when there has been a diminution of prosperity there has been a diminution in the drink consumption. In 1867 the annual consumption of British and Foreign spirits for every man, woman, and child in the United Kingdom amounted to 0·99 of a gallon. The consumption was about the same in 1867, 1868, and 1869. In 1870, it rose to 1·01 gallon; in 1871, to 1·06; in 1872, to 1·15; in 1873, to 1·23; in 1874, to 1·27; in 1875, to 1·30. This was the highest point, and at this time the prosperity of trade reached its highest point. After this period, as is well known, trade declined, and after it, as the figures will show, the consumption of drink declined. In 1876 it went down to 1·27 gallon, in 1877 to 1·23, in 1878 to 1·10, in 1879 to 1·11, in 1880 to 1·09, and in 1881 to 1·08. Since 1876 the consumption of malt has decreased in a corresponding ratio. In 1882 the decline in the drink consumption continued. Part of the decline is attributed to more sobriety and greater frugality among the people. But in explanation of it, Mr. GLADSTONE said in his Budget speech last year:—"Although employment in the country is general, yet wages have not yet reached the full average level, and undoubtedly have not reached anything like the level which they reached in the years of prosperity between 1873 and 1879." It is remarkable, also, that since 1880 trade in England has slightly improved, and that in 1881 the consumption of drink was greater than in 1880.

The existence of a more than usually large number of typhoid fever cases makes it again advisable to draw attention to our sewerage arrangements, and to the sanitary condition of the city generally. The fact that typhoid often comes in with the autumn shows that climatic conditions have something to do with it, and we must not attach too much to one cause; but there seems little doubt that sewer gases and bad drainage generally predispose to the disease, and give a ready home to the germs from which it is supposed to spring. With a large proportion of the houses possessed of nothing better than common cesspits in exceedingly small yards, and the remainder connected with sewers which, until heavy rain falls, are little better than huge receptacles of stagnant filth, it is not surprising that at any time we should have in our hospitals a large number of typhoid fever cases. Even when rainstorms flush the sewers, and for a day or two cleanse them, the matter which has been accumulating in them during the dry weather is merely removed from one pestilential place to another almost equally dangerous. If we cannot hasten the carrying out of a proper system of sewerage, we may do much to improve the means at present at our command for protecting ourselves from epidemic disease. Let us see that our houses are clean, that no accumulation of drainage remains near our places of residence, that any defect in drain pipes is instantly repaired, and that closets and rubbish boxes are disinfected. These simple precautions will do much to ward off disease, and some improvements in the arrangements for the proper conduct of matters relating to the city as they rest in the hands of the City Council will do more. There is in force an Act under which buildings erected in the city should be constructed in a manner conducive to architectural completeness and healthful occupation; and we have a City Health Officer and an Inspector of Nuisances, whose duty it is to see to the due carrying out of proper sanitary arrangements. But there are many cases in which no attention whatever is paid to the manner in which drains are made, and where nuisances exist which never come to the knowledge of the City Council's officers. A little reflection will show that a city like Sydney is far too large for one health officer and one inspector of nuisances; but if a little more attention were paid to drainage, and if houses connected with the sewers could be made to keep everything about them clean and fresh, and others not connected with the sewers were compelled to adopt a liberal use of disinfectants, we should have, even with our present very defective system of management, a much fewer number of cases of typhoid fever in the city than were reported from the hospitals yesterday. One other precaution against disease might be taken with advantage. We lay the dust in our streets with salt water. Why should we not flush our sewers with salt water? We need not then wait for the rain. We should still send the contents of the sewers into the harbour, but that until we have a coast system of sewerage in operation we cannot avoid; and the great advantage of using salt water for this purpose would be that we should remove quickly from the precincts of the houses in the city that which, when allowed to remain in the vicinity of habitations, is seriously detrimental to the health of the community.

The Austral has not gone into dock, and is not likely to go in, and because at present we have not sufficient depth of water to float her in. Our highest tide the other day gave a depth on the sill of the dock just about equal to the draft of the great ship. In Melbourne there is a dock deep enough, but not long enough. In the interests of the port, and of trade generally, it is to be regretted that we have been unable to place the Austral on our stocks. It should not be necessary to send ships to Melbourne; and if the Austral must be sent to London, it will be a very serious thing. Our appliances were prepared for the shipping of the past, they are unequal to ships of the age. However large such vessels may be now, or may be in the future, we must have at command the means necessary to take them up for repairs; and must be able to effect repairs of every description. It is all in good time perhaps for some of the work which may occasionally be required; but it is very desirable that our port should be in a position to meet every emergency. Of course no one can afford to build docks as a speculation; it cannot be expected that the conveniences of the port will greatly anticipate its trade. But there must be the same connection between the two, as there was between war ships and Armstrong guns. So long as a gun could blow up any existing ship, why make a larger? And so long as a ship's sides could resist the heaviest ordnance, why make her more impenetrable? But these large steamers have now established themselves in the Australian trade, and if we are to help them we must have docks drawing a greater depth of water. The convenience or inconvenience to a great company is a matter of importance; but the matter cannot rest there. Each of these vessels is a link in a chain of traffic and commerce, and the old saying comes in that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. When one of these packets drops out of line, trade is so far dislocated, and occasionally the inconvenience is very great indeed. Perhaps the most important result is in the lessening of our colonial prestige. Our distance from the old country is great, and all along the line our trade is liable to danger. Our duty therefore is with all the more care to conduct it, so that there shall be as much safety and faith in it as if only the German Ocean had to be crossed. It appears that in Victoria a Minister recognises the necessity of making the dock equal to the requirements of the largest ocean-going steamer. It is to be hoped that the misadventure of the Austral will quicken the action of our own Government in the matter of the new and larger dock which has already been authorised.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE Queen is slowly recovering from the effects of her recent accident. Amongst other miscellaneous items of news by cable it will be seen that the River Vistula has overflowed its banks and caused great destruction to house and other property. A whole village has been destroyed by fire in Switzerland, and great distress occasioned to the inhabitants. The murderers of Herr Maglath, a Hungarian Judge, have been arrested. Lord Selborne has decided that the right to sue for penalties from a person wrongfully taking his seat and voting in the House of Commons vests in the Crown. The decision was given in an action brought by Clarke against Bradlaugh. The Imperial Government has expressed its willingness to assist pauper children to emigrate to Canada.

IT would appear that the prisoners charged with the Phœnix Park assassinations are to be arraigned one at a time. The trial of Joseph Brady commenced on Monday. This is the man who played so terrible a part in the murder of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke. The informer Carey, in giving his evidence, referred to the part which Brady took, and to a conversation he had with him at Caffrey's house the same night. The following is the evidence as reported in the papers received by the last mail in reference to what took place at the interview. Counsel was examining Carey:—Did Brady say anything to you that evening when you met him as to the way poor Lord Frederick Cavendish was killed?—I met him at 10 o'clock, when I was coming into town. What did he say about Lord Cavendish?—I asked him was it true. "Is it true," said I, "that Lord Cavendish was the strange gentleman who was with Mr. Burke? What happened?" So he described then what happened. What did Brady say happened?—I asked him why did they let Mr. Burke pass first. He said there was a car passed, and that was the cause, and when he turned round right about face he overtook him and, said he, "I laid my hand upon Mr. Burke's left shoulder and stabbed him; while doing so the other gentleman struck me with an umbrella in the face, and called me a ruffian; with that I got annoyed and excited, and I followed him; he put up his arm and I struck him in the arm; he went out on the road, and I settled him there; I looked around and I saw Tim Kelly at Mr. Burke." Mr. Murphy: Mr. Burke was on the ground at the time?—Yes, so Brady said. Did he say what Tim Kelly did?—Brady said to me, "He was at him and coming away from him, and then I went back myself and cut Mr. Burke's throat." I then said to him, "Did you wipe the knives in the grass, as Curley was telling me?" "I did," said he, "and threw them up on the car."

THE frequent use of dynamite for improper purposes in the United Kingdom has led to the introduction and passing of a bill by the Imperial Parliament specially to deal with this new species of crime. Sir William Harcourt, the Chief Secretary for the Home Department, had charge of the measure in the House of Commons. Its provisions in regard to the unlicensed possession and use of explosives are of a very stringent character, as may be inferred from the short description of one or two of its clauses in our cablegrams of this morning. Persons directly causing explosions are liable to penal servitude for life; those concerned in the production of explosive material for an unlawful purpose, or who may in any way aid the originators of an outrage, either before or after the offence, are liable to imprisonment for not less than 14 nor more than 20 years. The bill was voted urgent, and passed through both Houses in one night.

AMONGST other deaths recorded in our cablegrams are those of Major-General Pitt, for some time attached to the military staff in Australia, and Sir George Arney, late Chief Justice of New Zealand.

LOUIS VEUILLOT, journalist, whose death is recorded in our cable messages of this morning, was the son of a cooper, and was born in 1813. He was sent to a humble school (we quote from Men of the Time) near Paris, and at the age of 13 entered the office of a lawyer. He set resolutely to work to instruct himself, and with such success as to be able to gain a subsistence by his pen at the age of 19, and he held various appointments on the provincial press, where the stinging vivacity of his style involved him in several duels. Before going to Rome, in 1838, he was, he avows, almost devoid of faith, religious or political; but he returned an altered man, and in the Univers, which he was selected to edit, became the uncompromising champion of the Church, dealing blows right and left in defence of the Papacy. In 1842 M. Veuillot went to Africa as Secretary to General Bugeaud, and on his return entered the Ministry of the Interior as Chief Secretary. His polemics in the Univers, of which he again became editor in 1848, were so violent that he incurred the censure of the Archbishop of Paris, and in 1853 the Bishop of Orleans expressly forbade his clergy to read that journal. The Univers, after having been thrice warned by the Government, ceased to appear in January, 1860, and was replaced by the Monde, which was written in a more placable spirit. In April, 1867, the Univers was revived, and from that time to the present it has been the leading representative in the press of the advanced section of French Catholics.

THE meat that was taken home by the Cuzco (s.) from Sydney, and the ship Dunedin, from Port Chalmers, is reported by one of our cablegrams to have arrived in London in splendid condition. The Cuzco took away from Sydney, on February 16, 2800 carcases of mutton. The ship Dunedin left Port Chalmers on January 13, taking in her freezing chamber 8271 carcases of mutton and lamb, 20 carcases of pork, 5 carcases of beef. Nearly the whole of the Dunedin's cargo was shipped by the New Zealand and Australian Land Company.

A TELEGRAM was yesterday received by Mr. E. C. Cracknell, Superintendent of Telegraphs, explaining the cause of the recent interruptions to the cable communication. It appears that the old Banjoewangi cable became very faulty at the end of February, and on the 5th of March the repairing steamer Agnes, while grappling for the old cable, interrupted the new one. On the 7th the Port Darwin end of the new cable was joined to the Banjoewangi end of the old one in order to get the traffic through. On the 9th, the ship again interrupted both cables, but communication was restored at noon on the 16th. The ship again interrupted both cables on the evening of the 6th April. She spoke Port Darwin on the 8th, at noon, and completed repairs on Monday night, and no further interruption is likely to occur at present.

THERE was no sitting in the Legislative Council yesterday, for when the President took the chair a quorum of members was not present. That there should be no quorum on two consecutive sitting days is very unusual, especially when there is—as there was yesterday and on Thursday last—a full business paper. It was expected that the Judges' Salaries and Pensions Bill and the District Court Judges Bill would be read the third time yesterday, and that the Land Boilers Bill would pass the second reading; but these matters now stand over for consideration to-day.

THERE was no motion for the adjournment of the Assembly in the Legislative Assembly yesterday to obstruct public business, consequently the House at once got to work, and managed to deal with a fair quantity of motions. The first was by Mr. Holtermann, for the appropriation of £25,000 of the Immigration vote for the purpose of bringing out German immigrants. An amendment by Mr. M'Elhone to reduce the amount to £15,000 was agreed to; but the amended motion was negatived. A second motion, by Mr. Holtermann, for sending to all the principal cities of Europe photographs of the principal public works of the colony, was withdrawn. Mr. Young moved his resolution for the discontinuance of ocean mail subsidies, but the discussion was postponed, with the understanding that the Government are about to deal with the matter. Mr. Garrett's motion for increasing the roads votes was negatived on a division of 32 to 21. Mr. Abigail moved his resolution for the abolition of the tolls on the Pyrmont Bridge, but after discussion the motion was withdrawn. The Cohen's Estate Bill was read the second time, and taken into committee pro forma. The third reading of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill was moved by Mr. Abbott, whereupon several frivolous points were raised by Mr. A. G. Taylor that the bill was not properly before the House, Mr. Speaker ruled against all the points. Subsequently the bill was recommitted, and several clauses were amended. A debate ensued upon a proposed amendment to the whipping clause, which was adjourned. To-day, if possible, the Government propose to finally deal with the bill, and afterwards to proceed with the Licensing Bill.

BY a return laid upon the table of the Assembly yesterday, it was shown that in the year 1880, 17,666 gallons of white spirit had been imported to this colony; in the year 1881, 30,154 gallons; and in the year 1882, 19,583 gallons.

A RETURN was yesterday laid on the table of the Assembly, showing the amount paid on account of claims arising out of the late smallpox visitation other than compensation up to the 17th March, 1883. The amount up to that date was £72,317 10s. 1d. It also showed the amount paid for compensation in connection with the visitation to be up to the 17th March, 1883, for detention in quarantine, £9912 11s. 5d., and for property destroyed, £1913 5s. 10d.

WE learn that the P. and O. Company have contracted for two new steamers of 5000 tons each, which will develope a much higher rate of speed than those now running, and in many respects be a still further improvement on their already magnificent fleet.

THE Attorney-General has declined to file a bill against Francis Smith, who was committed last February by the bench of magistrates, at Boat Harbour, for trial at the next Sydney gaol delivery, on a charge of rape.

OUR correspondent at Rome reviews the past and present positions of the Vatican and Germany. The determined action of Prince Bismarck in relation to the Roman Catholic clergy of the German empire, who were in antagonism to the State, and which led to the passing of the May laws, estranged Pope Pius and the Vatican authorities from the Government of the Emperor William; but latterly efforts have been made at a rapprochement on the part of the latter, and the present Pope, Leo XIII., has also made a step in that direction, but there seems no present prospect of arrangement. Although his Majesty appears disposed to accede to some revision of existing ecclesiastical legislation, his Holiness requires that measures may also be taken to mitigate the regulations impeding the exercise of clerical duties and the training of the clergy on the purely ecclesiastical system of the Church of Rome. That system admits of no temporal interference, and this is really the point at issue, which is likely to remain for some time at least undecided.

YESTERDAY the weather continued fine, but there was a strong southerly breeze blowing throughout the day, and anticipations that it would result in a further downpour of rain seemed at a late hour last night likely to be verified. Up till midnight, however, no rain had fallen, but the sky had a somewhat threatening appearance.

AN ordinary meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held at the Town Hall yesterday. The Mayor occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of aldermen. Before business was proceeded with a "scene" occurred between Alderman Dean and Alderman J. D. Young. It appeared that at a committee meeting, and in a joking way, the latter had made some reference to Alderman Dean assuming the position held by the late John Brown, one of the Queen's personal attendants, and that one of the Sydney newspapers had commented upon it. The reference and the comments were regarded as offensive by Alderman Dean, and he not only poured forth his censure on Alderman Young and the paper involved, but he insinuated that Alderman Young belonged to a trade which made widows and orphans, and filled the gaols and asylums with its victims. This led to retaliation on the part of Alderman Young, who referred to his opponent as an empty-headed old fool, and also indulged in other allusions of a most objectionable character in regard to him, one of which, at least, was unfit for publication. Both gentlemen were called to order by the Mayor, but did not respond to the call, and as the council did not uphold the authority of the chair, his Worship said that the matter had been taken out of his hands. The matter dropped eventually, and the business which the aldermen had met to perform was proceeded with. It will be found in detail in another column.

AT last the City Municipal Council have adopted plans for the great hall in connection with the Town Hall, and specifications for the erection of the building are now to be prepared by the city architect. The plans are on view at the Town Hall, and they will amply repay an inspection, for they are beautifully executed, and reflect credit not only upon Mr. Sapsford, who designed them, but upon Mr. J. F. Hennessey, who drew them.

WE understand that the final meeting of the sub-committee of the Wharfage Improvement Association, appointed to consider the competitive designs for improved wharfage accommodation, will be held on Friday afternoon, when a report will doubtless be drawn up. It is anticipated that the results of the competition will be made known to the public, and plans exhibited a few days later.

IN a report received from Mr. Bonnard, the secretary for New South Wales at the Bordeaux Wine Exhibition, through the Agent-General, he states:—"I beg to be allowed to say at once that the conclusion I am arriving at is that the generous initiative taken by the Government of the colony and the exhibitors in submitting the colonial wines to the Bordeaux jury, has had, to my mind, and to all those who have closely and intelligently watched the exhibition, a result such as should give a great impulse to the cultivation of the vine in Australia. In a very few years it will prove a great benefit to the colonies at large, and a certain source of very great profits to the colonists, who will start at once extensive plantations; and if the Governments, the agricultural societies, and the colonists will join together in properly organising and favouring the creation and cultivation of vineyards, either small or large, of nurseries in charge of well-selected men in two or three parts of the territory, and by keeping well spread the knowledge and progress of all that refers to vine culture, I humbly but firmly believe that in 20 years hence, the vine-growing and wine-making industries of Austria must rival successfully in importance with wool-growing, however prosperous, even without necessarily producing superior fine wines, but simply good ordinary wines for general use, the demand for such being constantly and importantly increasing. As it is, at this present time some of our colonial wines can hold their own very successfully against most of the exotic wines and many of the European and even French wines. No doubt the great majority of our exhibits were not first-class wines; but the opinions I have been able to collect, generally acknowledge a certain superiority in the New South Wales wines or those of neighbouring colonies, more especially for business purposes." He further states:—"The general results to the colony are, that out of 188 samples—of which 91 were of red wines and 97 of white wines—we have obtained:—9 first classification, all for red wines; 20 second classification, of which 16 were for red, and 4 for white; 42 third classification, of which 23 were for red, and 19 for white; 60 fourth classification, of which 24 were for red, and 36 for white; 36 fifth classification, of which 14 were for red and 22 for white; 20 sixth classification, of which four were for red and 16 for white. The exhibits, as a whole, remained sound and unaltered in casks, with two exceptions, one of these being white wines sent in small barrels." It should be mentioned that, should any colonial wine merchant send his wines for sale to France, the shipment should be made direct, the Customs duty on entering France being 4·50 francs—about 3s. 6d. per hectolitre of 22 gallons on wines of not over 15° French, viz., 26° Sykes; but in case of a sample transhipment in London or elsewhere, the wines, on reaching France pay a duty of 80·60 francs, and such a trade should be started under some sort of syndicate.

THE pioneer steamer Fiado, chartered by the Eastern and Australian Fresh Meat Company for the frozen meat trade between Australia and Java, has arrived at Batavia. This vessel, we understand, is the first of a line of steamers to run between Queensland, Netherlands-India, Singapore, and British India. The Fiado has been fitted up by the Eastern and Australian Fresh Meat Company with freezing machinery and chambers under the personal superintendence of Mr. Coleman, of Messrs. Bell, Coleman, and Co., the successful refrigerating machinery makers, of Glasgow, and has been pronounced by them the most complete they have yet turned out of their establishment. She lands the machinery for the Batavia refrigerating rooms, and then comes on to Brisbane with a general cargo, after the discharge of which she will be ready to commence the service for which she has been fitted. The company have a contract with the Australian Company at Bowen for a large portion of their supply of beef and mutton ready frozen, and put alongside the vessel. They have purchased a sailing vessel in England, which is now on the way out to Singapore. She has also been fitted with freezing machinery under the same superintendence (Coleman's), and is intended for a hulk at Singapore, for the purpose of keeping the meat in a frozen state. She has a steam tender, fitted with freezing machinery, for supplying town and shipping, and has room for about 500 tons of meat. The Fiado will run between Queensland, Batavia, and Singapore. It is calculated she will make the round in six weeks, keeping up the supply at both ports and the trade will be extended as soon as machinery can be got ready.

THE recently organised City Band rehearsed yesterday afternoon at Little's Base Hotel, Pitt and Market streets, in the presence of several members of the committee and a few other gentlemen, including one or two bandmasters. A number of difficult selections were played with such precision and expression that the band will, if it maintain its present standard, certainly take the leading position among the organisations of the kind which exist in Sydney. Of the 32 members which compose it many are soloists—one of them being that rarity in the colonies, a good trombone soloist—and all pay such attention to the baton of Mr. Sebastian Hodge that the general effect is eminently satisfactory. The band will very shortly give a recital in presence of his Worship the Mayor, who will then formally inaugurate it.

IT is likely that the bazaar, now being held at Tattersall's-buildings, Castlereagh and Hunter streets, in aid of the funds of St. Joseph's Providence, will be a success, for the goods offered for sale represent good value for the prices asked, and the attendance has been very large up to the present. Yesterday a brisk business was done, and during the afternoon and evening the Imperial Band performed. In addition to this, an amateur concert, under the direction of Herr Hugo Alpen, was given at night. To-day, the Artillery Band will perform.

MESSRS. ANDERSON AND CO.'S illustrated catalogue for 1883 is to hand. It contains exhaustive lists of seeds and plants adapted either for the kitchen garden or ornamental purposes, with valuable hints as to planting and management.

ONE of the trams running to Newtown last night was delayed on the journey for some considerable time through a mishap to the motor. At King-street it was put at a standstill for nearly half-an-hour, and at Pitt-street (Belmore) where a new motor was obtained the tram was compelled to wait for a further length of time, much to the inconvenience and discomfort of the passengers. In consequence of the mishap the line was blocked for traffic until a new motor was substituted for the disabled one, so as to take the tram on to its destination.

National Library of Australia http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-page1416210

A NUMBER of alleged breaches of the Navigation Act were to have been dealt with at the Water Police Court yesterday, but the ordinary business of the Court occupied the whole of the morning sitting. A case of alleged overcrowding of a steamer was commenced at 2 o'clock, but upwards of an hour was taken up in discussing points of a minor character. At 4 o'clock, the further hearing of the case, as well as the hearing of four other charges, was postponed until Friday next.

AT about half-past 11 o'clock on Monday morning the dead body of a man was found in a paddock at Cook's River, by a 'bus driver named Henry West. The deceased was seen alive about three hours previous to the discovery sitting on the verandah of the Rainbow Hotel, Cook's River. He was a stranger in the locality, and up to the present he has not been identified. The body was removed to the South Sydney morgue. This morning an inquest will be held on it by the City Coroner, at the Commercial Hotel. With a view to aid in the identification of the deceased we append the following description :—The body is that of a man about 60 years of age, stoutly built, 5 feet [illegible] inches high, with grey hair, beard, whiskers, and moustache, fair complexion, no teeth, and grey eyes. There is a small mole on the side of the throat. The body was dressed in a brown sac coat, light tweed trousers and vest, crimean shirt, light soft felt hat, blucher boots, with a white handkerchief round the neck, and a leather belt with pouch about the waist.

A DETERMINED attempt at suicide was made yesterday by a young man named Frederick Farrar, 19 or 20 years of age, only a short time in the colony, and who has lately been residing at the house of Mr. William Storm, 96, Bowman-street, Pyrmont. It appears that for some time past he has been in a despondent condition, and acting in a strange manner; and Mr. Fawcett, a homœopathic practitioner, gave it as his opinion that he was suffering from sunstroke. Yesterday afternoon between 6 and 7 o'clock, he went into the kitchen and fastened the door, and as he remained some time there, Mrs. Storm, who seems to have been apprehensive of his intentions, became alarmed and with the aid of some neighbours effected an entrance, when the unfortunate young man was found lying in a pool of blood with his throat cut. Near him was the blade of a razor, with which the deed had evidently been committed. Sergeant Roden arrived almost immediately afterwards, and the patient was placed in a cart and taken to the Sydney Hospital. On arrival there he was extremely pale and faint with the pulse low and flickering, having lost a great quantity of blood. The wound in his throat was three inches in length, exposing the thyroid cartilage, which was cut in three places, opening the larynx; it was the deepest on the left hand side, and the superior thyroid artery on that side was severed. Owing to the excessive hemorrhage which had taken place, and to the severe shock, the patient's condition was very critical, and remained so up to a late hour last night.

YESTERDAY one of the labourers employed at Fowler's wharf, a man named James Day, residing in Kent-street, slipped from a girder about 4 feet above the ground, and fell, breaking both bones of his right leg a little above the ankle. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital and admitted.

THE following clipping from the Hawkesbury Chronicle will doubtless interest many of our readers. It will be remembered that the lady mentioned was injured in the sad accident at Windsor during the progress of the late Volunteer encampment, on which occasion Mr. Alfred Parsons lost his life :—"We are happy to state that Miss Wilson, who was so badly injured by falling from the railway bridge in Macquarie-street, was, through the skilful treatment of Dr. Fiaschi, and the kind and attentive nursing of Mrs. Howley, so far convalescent as to be enabled to return home with her sister by the afternoon train on Wednesday last. Mr. Prosper J. Wilson, her brother, came up on Tuesday evening, and made arrangements for going away on Wednesday morning, but on account of some bungling, the conveyance that was ordered was not forthcoming, so that Mr. Wilson was compelled to lose a day's valuable time, and his sister—in the delicate state she is now in—considerably annoyed in consequence. Mr. Wilson, before leaving, expressed himself very warmly at the kind feeling of sympathy which had been manifested towards his sister during the time she has been here; he thinks it a most fortunate occurrence that such an excellent institution was at hand to receive her when in her maimed and shattered condition; and also feels deeply grateful for the kindness extended to himself and his other sisters by the superintendent and his wife."

THE Bombala Times reports that a meeting of sheep-owners was held at Millington's Hotel on Wednesday, for the purpose of adopting some means for the prevention of sheep-stealing in the district. Mr. H. M. Joseph, J.P., occupied the chair. Mr. Cruickshank thought they should offer some reward for information that would lead to a conviction, the information to be strictly confidential. In Cooma they had a person employed as a detective, but he did not think that it was necessary at this end to employ any one regularly. It was agreed that rewards should be offered to any person coming forward and giving information that would lead to a conviction, but only on conviction of parties stealing sheep from members of the association. After one or two proposals, varying in amount, had been discussed, it was finally decided to offer a reward of £25 for information leading to a committal, and if afterwards a conviction is gained, the sum of £75 to be added to the first amount, thus making a reward of £100 upon conviction.

MISS KNIGHT, who received one of Sir Thomas Elder's prizes for physiology at the Adelaide University, contemplates (says the S. A. Advertiser) entering the medical profession, and is pursuing studies with that end in view. This young lady, who is a daughter of the well-known Wesleyan minister, the Rev. Samuel Knight, contemplates an early visit to London, where she proposes to pass through the London University course of medical education, and in the usual way qualify herself for the practice of the profession.

A MEMBER of the Reform Club, Mr. Thornton Hoskins, has (says St. James' Gazette) published a letter which some other members of the club must feel rather trying. He starts with the statement that "the manner in which Ireland is misgoverned by an assemblage of what Irishmen consider alien and repulsive foreigners" is shocking. Falling foul of another member of the club, he "deplores the malignity of Mr. Forster's aspersions on the fair fame of constitutionalists as honourable as himself"—meaning Mr. Parnell and Mr. Sheridan, obviously. And he winds up with the suggestion that the laws against duelling ought to be suspended, in order that the Irish members, one after the other, might call out Mr. Forster till he was "stretched," and Lord Randolph Churchill too.

THE Electro-Technical Association has (says the Berlin correspondent of the London Telegraph) telegraphed to Professor Lemstroem, at Helsingfors, congratulating him on his important investigation of polar lights, and expressing a warm interest in his further experiments. M. Lemstroem commenced his research in Spitsbergen, where he observed rays of polar light at a lower elevation than the clouds. He had later produced similar phenomena on a small scale in his laboratory. The mountains upon which he made his last experiments were conical, and respectively 800 and 1100 metres high. The copper framework was erected between two and three metres above the mountain top, isolated in the usual way, and conducted to the bottom of the hill by means of an insulated wire. The latter was connected with the damp subsoil by a zinc plate. The copper framework terminated in hundreds of metal points. No sooner was the wire connected with the earth than positive currents were remarked, and a white light was observed above the metal points, which, subjected to the spectrum, distinctly showed the well-known line of the aurora borealis. Unfortunately the ice crystallised so rapidly around the wire as to damage and break it by its weight. There was full time, however, to observe the formation of a ray of polar light about 120 metres in length.

WHEN once people begin questioning the humanity of sport (observes the Pall Mall Gazette) it is hard to say where they will stop. Pigeon-shooting is clearly doomed, but then pigeon-shooting has long been felt to be in a peculiarly precarious situation. Hunting holds, no doubt, a very different position on account of its superior manliness, and not even the most ardent humanitarian can depreciate the qualities, both physical and moral, that it develops. But, with respect to cruelty, plain people find it difficult to see how hunting is much better than pigeon-shooting, and there can be no doubt that the former will soon have to face very serious attacks from the humanitarians—an unpleasant prospect, as the humanitarians have an awkward habit of winning in the end. The columns of the Standard have lately borne witness to the growing feeling on the subject. First it was only tame stag hunting which was assailed, but a "Country Clergyman" boldly takes the bull by the horns and wants to know the difference in substantial cruelty between this degenerate form of the sport and the more general and time-honoured chase of the fox. When even country clergymen begin to go over from the side of the gentleman to the side of the foxes, matters are plainly becoming serious.

THE writer of "City Notes" in a London evening journal says :—"Some striking facts relative to the increased consumption of Indian tea in this country are given in Messrs. Gow and Wilson's report for the past season. They state, for example, that during the year 1878, out of every 100lb. of all descriptions of tea consumed in this country, 23, or one in about four-and-a third, was Indian tea. Last year the proportion was 31 per cent., or nearly one in three. The deliveries of China tea have receded from 125,000,000lb. in 1879 to 113,000,000lb. in 1882, while the home consumption of Indian tea has increased from 35,000,000lb. to 51,000,000lb. in the corresponding years."

RESPECTING the demand of the British Government for the extradition of Sheridan, who is in the United States, the Law Times in an article points out that a proviso excluding perpetrators of political crimes from extradition does not occur in the Ashburton Treaty. The treaty, it says, does include murder, and by decisions rendered in New York the crime of murder includes being accessary thereto. The question is a strictly legal one. The Law Times says the utmost charge that can be brought against Sheridan is conspiracy to murder, and his crime, therefore, is not within the strict terms of the treaty; but the United States has the discretionary power in the matter. The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune writes :—"Those here who have given the matter attention believe that the delay in moving against Sheridan means that the British Government has abandoned the idea of prosecuting him. One interesting point is suggested—whether, if the proceedings should be bad, and his extradition should be granted by the courts, the State Department would not refuse it on the ground that the Crimes Act had changed the law under which it was supposed accused persons would be tried when the treaty was made. The law then contemplated a trial only by jury, while the Crimes Act has substituted, in such cases as this, a trial by judges or commissioners. It does not seem likely that the case will ever reach that point, but there is reason for saying that this view will be urged upon the department."

THE Dublin Express says :—"Mr. Burke really was in no danger till the Freeman published its indiscreet article. The 'Invincible' assassins had resolved on the destruction first of Mr. Forster and then of Lord Cowper. They were thinking nothing of Mr. Burke until the Freeman took on itself to describe him as a 'pernicious subordinate,' and the more outspoken United Ireland as one of the rats in the Castle cellars. Then they resolved that he should be 'removed'—the very word they used was borrowed from the Freeman, and Lord Frederick Cavendish was involved in his fate. We say then, without hesitation, that one of the causes of the awful events of last year has been unscrupulous journalism."

THE Jewish World, the organ of the Reformed Jews in England, pronounces in most unmistakable language against all projects for a restoration to Palestine, or for setting-up a Jewish State there. It maintains that the project is impracticable, the Jews being separated in language, in ideas, and in habits; and undesirable, inasmuch as the Jews have a mission, "that of propagating a sensible view of life, and its duties," which can be best performed by their remaining a cosmopolitan people, with seven millions of people dispersed all over the world. "The yearning for a restoration of the Kingdom of Israel is no portion of the ideal of the Jewish religion. It is only an abnormal growth of the delirious hopes of ages of persecution."

ON Chilian and Peruvian affairs, the New York correspondent of the Standard, telegraphs on February 22 :—"A complication has arisen out of the action of the Ministers of England, France, Italy, and the United States at Lima, in recommending to their Governments to insist upon the Chilian Government concluding a treaty of peace with Peru on the basis of cession of Tarapaca, in order to avert the resumption of hostilities. The German Minister declined to join in this action, and the motives for this abstention form the subject of much comment in Washington at the present time. The American Minister seems also to have acted in the matter without any special authority, whether at the instigation of the Washington authorities or not is uncertain: but it has transpired that the American Minister has asked leave of absence, and is now returning. Senator Vanwyck intends to propose in the Senate that an inquiry should be instituted into the circumstances of the projected joint diplomatic action."

THE Scotsman of the 18th February makes the following reference to the newly-appointed bishop for the colony of Tasmania :—"The appointment of the Rev. Dr. Sandford, of St. John's Episcopal Church, Edinburg, to be Lord Bishop of Tasmania, has already been announced; and we understand that the rev. doctor has resigned his incumbency, and will take his departure in May next. One of the ablest and best known of the Episcopal clergy in Einburgh, and occupying a prominent place among the popular preachers of the city, Dr. Sandford will be greatly missed, not only by the members of his own church and communion, but by the wider circle who on Sunday evenings were attracted to St. John's by his eloquent and practical discourses. In many schemes of social amelioration, Dr. Sandford also took a lively interest, and and as a member of the School Board he has borne his part in the educational work of the city. He will carry with him to the new and important sphere in which he has elected henceforth to labour the warmest wishes of his friends for future success."

THE Rev. J. Kavanagh writes to the Dublin Freeman's Journal, proposing that the Irish people should reply to Mr. Forster's attack on Mr. Parnell by presenting the member for Cork with a testimonial. He opens a subscription list for the purpose, and heads it with a donation of £5. This is a practical comment, (says the Dublin correspondent of the Times) upon the doleful accounts of famine which are published from day to day, but which have elicited no response from the rev. gentleman and others, who are ready enough to contribute to testimonials to Mr. Parnell, Mr. Sexton, Mr. Patrick Egan, Mr. Healy, the Rev. Harold Rylett, and other agitators, for whom considerable sums have been raised. It is understood to be the privilege and duty of the English public and the English garrison in Ireland to give liberally for purely charitable objects, while Irish patriots, who reproach them for their want of sympathy and neglect of duty, subscribe only to testimonials for the benefit of popular agitators or to funds for the defence of persons charged with criminal offences.

THE New South Wales Artillery Band, under the conductorship of Bandmaster A. Hermes, will perform this afternoon in the Botanic Gardens, from 3.15 until 5 p.m., the following programme of music :—March, "Woodland," R. Smith; valse, "Soldaten Lieder," Gung'l; selection, "Lily of Killarney," Benedict; polka, "Leontine," Arnaud; selection, "Stifellio," Verdi; valse, "Madame Favart," Zotti; selection, "Robert le Diable," Meyerbeer; "God Save the Queen."

IN Sir Alfred Stephen's letter published yesterday in reference to the whipping clauses of the Criminal Law Amendment Bill, the following sentence was marred by a typographical error :—"Seventhly, it can only be ordered by a public officer of experience and judgment, selected for those qualities, and directly responsible for their careful exercise—and this, without the delay which tends to defeat justice, or the exposure involved in an inquiry before a more prominent tribunal."

LAUNCH OF THE STEAMER PORT JACKSON.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

William Shepherd, captain and leader of the Melbourne branch of the Salvation Army, was fined £5, with £5 5s. costs, to-day, for marching with his followers through the streets singing, and thereby causing annoyance to the citizens. The Police Magistrate remarked that if this decision failed to put a stop to the nuisance other and more effectual steps would be taken.

Mr. Leonard, solicitor, has been elected unopposed to fill the vacancy in the representation of Smith Ward, in the metropolitan City Council.

The Grand Council of the Loyal Orange Institution of Australia commenced its sittings this morning in the Protestant Hall. The following delegates representing the various grand lodges were present :—Victoria : Rev. Dr. Gilchrist, president; Rev. J. T. Kearns, J. W. Waugh. New South Wales : H. Hicks, vice-president, R. L. Murray, M.L.A., N. J. M'Kenzie. Queensland : Rev. J. Carson, Peter M'Lean, M.L.A., and Rev. W. Bradley. South Australia, Rev. J. W. Bamber, secretary. It was decided to form a Grand Council of Australasia, and the preparation of a constitution for its government was then proceeded with. The conference meet every three years; the next meeting will be held at Brisbane in March, 1885.

Mr. Greene, Engineer of Existing Lines, whilst giving evidence at the Hawthorn collision inquiry, before the Board to-day, referred to the appointment of Mr. Pointing as inspector, which had been made in opposition to his recommendation. When Mr. Bent, the late Minister for Railways, made this appointment, witness warned him that he, Mr. Greene, would not be responsible for any accidents occurring while Mr. Pointing undertook to do two men's work. Mr. Pointing, he said, exercised undue influence over the Minister, which seriously interfered with railway discipline, but the proper remedy had been since applied by Mr. Gillies, the present Minister.

Before the tariff commission to-day further evidence was taken in regard to the duties on colonial and imported spirits. The manager of the Scotch Distillery Company, at Sandridge, stated he employed three men, to whom he paid £400 per annum as wages; but it was elicited from him that the difference between the excise duty on colonial whisky and the duty on the same quantity of imported whisky was £7000 per annum. Mr. Hammond, of the Excise Department, stated that the total loss to the revenue since 1862 by the difference between the excise and import duties was £402,877. There were at present seven distilleries in operation in Victoria, this industry employing only about 40 men at present.

The level of the Yan Yean Reservoir is four feet lower than the minimum gauge for many months. The Wallaby Creek works will shortly be taken over by the Government, when an additional supply of water will be thus obtained.

A monster codfish, 6 feet long, and weighing 140lb. at least, has been caught in the King River, at Wangaratta.

The Charlton railway will be opened on the 20th instant.

A disgraceful disturbance took place at Carlton this evening. A constable, who had arrested a well-known thief for larceny, was followed by a mob of 50 larrikins, who stoned him and forced him to drag his prisoner into an hotel in order to obtain shelter. The doors of the hotel were at once closed, but the crowd, which had rapidly increased, burst them open again, and threw road metal into the building. The constable, having handcuffed his prisoner, made another effort to reach the watchhouse, when the crowd again set upon him. A police-sergeant went to his assistance, and arrested the ringleader of the mob. This sergeant was also immediately assailed by stones, and his helmet was knocked off and used as a football. Another constable who came upon the scene sustained some bruises from heavy pieces of road metal which were flying about in all directions, and he received, in addition, a severe kick in the groin. Ultimately both prisoners were lodged in the lockup.

The conference between the Chambers of Commerce and of the manufacturers on the question of immigration is concluded. The Conference have adopted a series of resolutions affirming the desirability of the State assistance being given to immigration, because the present scarcity of labour retarded the individual progress of the colony, and would, if continued, cause it to fall into an inferior position in the Australian group. The resolution carried also set forth that the deliberate determination of those colonies which had adopted State immigration continued to prevail; and this, as well as the high rates of wages ruling there, had proved that the objections urged against the immigration system were fallacious. It was resolved that copies of these resolutions should be sent to the Government and to the respective Chambers.

The Orient steamer Potosi sailed to-day for Sydney.

ADELAIDE, TUESDAY.

A coronial inquiry into the cause of the explosion of the gasometer about a fortnight ago at Bowden took place to-day. The principal witness examined was the manager of the company. The inquiry was ultimately adjourned to allow of an examination by experts of a plate in the gasholder, which, being inflected inwards, suggested the idea that dynamite had been placed on the top of the holder and there exploded, conveying thus ignition to the gas and the foul air inside the holder.

At the Criminal sittings to-day John Cameron was charged with obstructing the Adelaide and Terowie railway by placing a waggon and team of horses across the line. He was acquitted.

It was fully expected, when the Amending Land Act was passed last session, that while conferring a benefit on many deserving selectors it would give advantages to many whose claims were unworthy of special legislation. A selector who had purchased at £2 0s. 6d. per acre surrendered his agreement, expecting to select at £1 per acre, but unfortunately for him competition ran up the price to £2, at which price the would-be sharper repurchased.

The Springhill Mines Company in the Northern Territory have just divided £1000 amongst the shareholders.

A series of burglaries, or attempts at burglary, were made at Yongala last night. A storekeeper's cellar was entered, but the thieves being frightened fled and left their booty. They then tried to force an entrance into the Town and Country Bank, but the manager heard the noise they made, and the burglars again decamped.

The Cabinet has endorsed the opinion of the Attorney-General that the second instalment of interest should be reckoned only up to the date of the surrender, and not for the full term of three years.

During Monday night, three lads escaped from the reformatory hulk Fitzjames, lying off the Semaphore. They got through a window of the dormitory, and climbed to the deck, then they launched a boat. Two of them were arrested next day.

Tenders are to be called for the erection of an institute at North Adelaide, to cost £2000.

On Monday a girl, aged 4 years, fell into a tub of scalding water, prepared for cleaning a pig. The child being severely burned, is dying.

Owing to the large demand for private wires, and the delay through waiting for material from England, the opening of the Telephone Exchange has been delayed, but will be opened early in May.

The Investigator arrived to-day, and it is believed will proceed to Champion Bay.

Mr. Maitland Brown has despatched a draft of highly-bred mares and fillies to Kimberley, where they will be on sale separately or as a lot.

Mr. Brown has resigned his seat for Geraldton, as he can no longer sit in the Council as a supporter of the present constitution. It is not known yet whether he will seek re-election at Geraldton, or will accept the offer of a seat made to him from the Gascoyne.

The press urges that the usual winter session should not be postponed in consequence of the uncertainty of the movements of the new Governor.

THE VICTORIAN PARLIAMENT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

In the Legislative Council, to-day, leave of absence was granted to Messrs. Hamilton and M'Bain for this session.

The Hon. R. S. Anderson, Minister of Justice, in reply to a question, stated the Government were of opinion that the present Rabbit Destruction Act was inoperative owing to the neglect of the Shire Councils. It was the intention of the Government, during the ensuing session, to pass an amending measure, which, he hoped, would effectually deal with this pest.

The University Act Amendment Bill was read a second time, but as there seemed to be great want of unanimity amongst members with regard to the measure, Mr. Anderson withdrew it.

The Railway Loan Application Bill was passed through all its stages, after which the House adjourned.

In the Legislative Assembly a petition was presented from the Tramway and Omnibus Company, praying that their bill for the construction of tramways be placed in the same position as prior to the termination of last session, and that the promoters be relieved from the payment of fees incurred prior to the consideration of the report of the select committee.

Mr. Service has notified his intention to introduce a bill to amend the Harbour Trust Act. The object of the bill was simply to give the trust power to raise a loan of £250,000 in London, instead of obtaining the money from a local bank, to which the Trust would have to pay a very high rate of interest.

Mr. M'Intyre complained of the conduct of the Premier in thus proposing to deal with only a part of the Harbour trust question, instead of submitting a comprehensive measure, and remarked that an understanding appeared to have been arrived at that the present session should terminate in a few days, but he contended the Government should place sufficient business on the notice paper to keep the House employed for a month, so that the Premier's original promise might be kept. The Mallee Land Bill, the Stock Tax Bill, and various other measures might easily be passed during the present session. He hoped the Government would make an effort to push on the business.

Major Smith warmly attacked Mr. M'Intyre for the attitude he had assumed towards the Ministry, and characterised him "as a breaker down of Governments," and insinuated that his support of the late Government was purchased by the appointment of his son as secretary of the Education Commission.

A bill to appropriate £850,000 from the £4,000,000 loan, including £500,000 for rolling stock, construction of lines, &c., and the remainder for surveys and workshops, was introduced by Mr. Gillies, and passed through all its stages. The Minister explained that £250,000 of the amount was required for payments immediately becoming due in London under a contract entered into by Mr. Bent. During the discussion in committee Mr. Service mentioned that he was negotiating with the associated banks for floating a redemption loan, and hoped in a couple of days to lay the agreement on the table. The balance of the £4,000,000 loan with the £2,000,000 to be floated in July, would be about sufficient to meet the debentures maturing in October. The Estimates of the late Government were further considered, and the whole list disposed of before the rising of the House. The total vote amounts to rather more than £1,000,000. Additional Estimates to the amount of £134,818 were submitted by the Treasurer during the evening. The principal item was £216,750 for the working expenses of the railways. The list also includes an item of £6015, being the half cost of the bridge across the Murray at Wahgunyah, the other moiety being paid by New South Wales; and £26,500 for the land reclamation works at North Melbourne Swamp and along the bank of the river Yarra.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE RAILWAY WORKS NEAR YOUNG.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

YOUNG, TUESDAY.

A fatal accident occurred this morning on the railway works, within three miles of the town. A young man named Chas. Luxom was in the act of jumping on a passing truck, when he missed his foothold and fell. At the same moment three or four trucks laden with earth were passing, the wheels of which went over his legs, crushing them terribly. Drs. Healy and Hutchings were quickly in attendance, and the unfortunate young man was promptly removed to the hospital, where he died shortly after his admission.

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW ORGAN FOR ALL-SAINTS' CHURCH, WOOLLAHRA.

On Saturday last a choral festival was held in this church at 4 p.m., in aid of the new organ fund. Full choral evening service was rendered by a choir of about 80 voices (men and boys), assisted by a few ladies. The psalms specially chosen for the occasion were the 122nd, 132nd, and 150th, the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis being sung to Arnold in A. The processional hymns at the opening and close of the service were "Through the night of doubt and sorrow," and "Onward, Christian soldiers." The Rev. Dr. Ellis officiated as precentor, the Revs. H. W. Mort and Canon Stephen reading the special lessons. Mr. Montagu Younger accompanied the service on the organ, Mr. Hughes playing the voluntaries and hymns. The anthems were "Thou didst not leave his soul in hell," sung by the Rev. Dr. Ellis, followed by the chorus "Lift up your heads;" and after the address, which was given by the Rev. Canon Selwyn, of Newcastle, the "Hallelujah," from the "Messiah" was rendered. Next to the Cathedral, the new organ is said to be the grandest in the diocese. It may interest organists and others to learn that the instrument has been built at a cost of £1250 by Messrs. Foster and Andrews, of Hull, England, from specifications prepared by the late organist of All Saints, Mr. Thomas Sharp. The work was supervised and tested by Dr. Hopkins, organist of the Temple Church, London, who, in a letter to Mr. Sharp, says :—"I am pleased to be able to say that all the conditions of the contract have been carried out by Messrs. Foster and Andrews in a faithful and workmanlike manner. Let me now congratulate you upon having so capital and complete an organ at which to preside, and to express a hope that you may be spared for very very many years to exhibit its beauties." The exterior of the organ presents a rich and noble appearance. There are two fronts, one in the chancel and one facing the north aisle, illuminated in gold and colours, the lower part of the case being of clear pine varnished. The manuals are located in the choir, a manifest advantage to both organist and choir. Appended is a list of the registers and pipes :—Great organ, 10 registers, 812 pipes; swell organ, 11 registers, 800 pipes; choir organ, 5 registers, 290 pipes; pedal organ, 4 registers, 120 pipes; couplers, 7 registers; total, 37 registers, 2022 pipes. The organ has been erected by Mr. Layton, who came out expressly for the purpose, and intends to settle in Sydney.

COUNTRY NEWS.

NEWCASTLE, TUESDAY.

Early yesterday morning a fire was discovered in the first left-hand heading, through the big fault in No. 1 district, at No. 2 pit, belonging to the A. A. Company. The management, on being informed of the fire, proceeded to the spot, and the necessary instructions were given to arrest its progress. A wall of stone and brick was quickly run across the mouth of the board, and also the heading, to check ventilation and thus extinguish the fire. The work in the pit has not been hindered in the least, the fire being confined to an old working, which had long been abandoned.

A branch of the Sydney Salvation Army pitched its tent at the bottom of Newcomen-street and commenced singing hymns and preaching, this evening, at about 8 o'clock. The crowd soon increased to such a degree as to block up Hunter-street, the main thoroughfare in the city. Inspector Thorpe accordingly gave orders for their dispersion. The army dispersed quietly.

A man named Byrnes had his leg broken at the Co-operative colliery yesterday.

Another mining accident is reported at the Glebe pit.

The weather is fine and clear.

CARCOAR, TUESDAY.

At Burnt Yards to-day, a miner named Bob Rutherford was badly injured in an accident. Whilst driving a charge of powder with an iron crowbar the blast suddenly went off. Rutherford who was down the pit was brought up 15 feet from the drive, and then was pulled up the main shaft by being tied to a rope. He was then brought to the hospital and placed under the care of Dr. Smith. The sufferer was found to have sustained a compound fracture of the thigh, and a compound fracture of the elbow, besides various other contusions on his face. An operation was found necessary to save his life. He lies in a precarious condition.

Since the loop-line of railway, Blayney to Murrumburrah, was approved of by Parliament in March, 1881, 418 selections, embracing 39,000 acres, have been taken up at the Carcoar Lands Office; and at the Cowra Lands Office, during the same period, selections exceeding 80,000 acres have been taken up, in many cases owing to the loop-line having been approved by Parliament.

The crops during the past season are giving a splendid average. There are nine steam threshers now at work in this district, which have already put through over 120,000 bushels of grain.

TRUNKEY CREEK, TUESDAY.

The weather is cold and dusty.

BOURKE, TUESDAY.

The last report received from the Government water-boring party at No. 1 bore, 18 miles from here, on Fort Bourke, is to the effect that they are down 194 feet 4 inches; through the last 21 feet it was quite dry, going through stiff blue clay. The work which had been temporarily suspended for a few days through a breakage to part of the gear, is now being proceeded with. No. 2 bore at Goonery, 30 miles west of Warrego, cannot be gone on with until the receipt of tubing from Sydney. The bore is now down 34 feet 6 inches. Muddy fresh water drift rises up 5 feet in the bore as fast as emptied. There are numerous mud springs round.

The continuation of the survey on the direct road from Goonery to Wanaaring, on the Paroo, will be shortly proceeded with.

There is now splendid grass and plenty of water in the vicinity of both boring camps. Great interest attaches to the operations at No. 1 bore, as hitherto salt water was always struck.

A half-acre of land, unimproved, in Mitchell-street, has just been sold for £2300 to Mr. T. Huggins of Louth, who intends building thereon the largest family hotel in northern Riverina. Five years ago this same land was valued at about £300.

A buggy accident, which nearly terminated fatally, occurred here to-day, solely through the punt approaches being in bad condition. The horses tried to jump over a muddy space between the punt and the land, and in so doing broke the king bolt, running away with the forepart of the carriage. The two occupants of the vehicle were thrown out; the buggy was smashed to pieces. The horses were both thrown down violently, but were not injured seriously. It was indeed a narrow escape for all concerned.

The West Bourke bridge, which has cost over £50,000, is at last ready for traffic. No date has yet been fixed for the official opening.

The Central Australian Pastoral Association have issued a liberal schedule of prizes for their show on the 11th July next.

Another newspaper is shortly to be started here—making three.

TEMORA, TUESDAY.

The nomination meeting for the Progress Committee was held last night at Ward's Victoria Theatre. There was a fair attendance. The report of the outgoing committee for the past year was read and unanimously adopted. 31 candidates were nominated, and the polling fixed for Saturday next.

CARCOAR, TUESDAY.

Clements and Barlow have just finished a crushing of 30 tons of quartz from their claim, situated at Galley Swamp, realising 18oz. 15dwt. gold for seven weeks' work for two men. The reef in some parts is 6 feet thick.

The newly formed Melbourne Company's claim, situated at Newton's Paddock, Forest Reefs, started crushing last week, having ready a large quantity at grass. The stone looks well.

TRUNKEY CREEK, TUESDAY.

Thirty-seven tons of quartz from Willis and party's claim, Golden Point, realised over 41 ounces of melted gold.

TEMORA, TUESDAY.

Foley and party, of the Upper Town, recently washed 233 loads, which gave an average yield of 5dwt. 13gr. per load.

The following telegram received from the warden's clerk at Parkes by the Under-Secretary for Mines has been handed to us for publication :—"Thirty-one tons of stone from Coulson's Reef in Macgregor's Paddock yielded 166oz. 3dwt., or an average of 5oz. 3dwt. per ton. This is the prospecting claim."

The mining manager of the Hidden Treasure Gold-mining Company reports on the 7th instant :—"During the past week the main shaft has been sunk a further depth of 6 feet; total from No. 4 level 18 feet, and from surface 407 feet. Reef about 2 feet thick, showing payable gold. The north stope bottom of No. 4 level continues about the same, reef averaging 1 foot 6 inches thick, and showing good. Cleaned up on 3rd instant, from about 200 tons, 234oz. 18dwt. of retorted gold, and have about 45 tons of quartz on the surface."

The mining manager of the Nymagee Copper-mining Company, Limited, reports for the month ending March 31, as follows :—"Barton's Shaft : The north end in the 40-fathom level has been extended a further distance of 14 feet 6 inches, making a total of 95 feet 6 inches from shaft. I am pleased to note that the lode has improved considerably here, and the sulphuret ore in the present end is, I believe, quite as good as that now being raised in the level above. Forty-fathom Level : The winze in section 14 has been sunk a further depth of 17 feet, making in all 65 feet below the level, and which is deep enough to communicate with the 52-fathom level when sufficiently advanced. The ore in the bottom of this winze is quite equal in quality to any sulphurets raised hitherto in the mine. The stope in back of this level, section 14, has been relet for one month, the lode being fully 13 feet wide of good ore. In section 15 the lode is not quite so thick where the men have to stope during the coming month. Grey Ore Lode : No change has occurred here during the month, and good ore is still being raised in the back of the 20-fathom level, sections 16 and 17. Dawes' winze, in the bottom of this level, has been sunk further depth of 11 feet, and holed to the 40-fathom level. Pope's Shaft : No. 12 stope, in the back of the 70-feet level, is without any change, and is still yielding good carbonate ore. The prospecting shaft in section 8 has been sunk a further depth of 17 feet, making in all 108 feet from the surface. During the month about 8 feet of fair grey ore has been sunk through here, commencing about 95 feet down. This being the case, I shall proceed to open out, and extend drives north and south in the best ore, as soon as the shaft is properly timbered, and which will be done in nine or 10 days from date. A good lode here will enhance the value of the mine considerably, it being from 400 to 500 feet south of any other underground workings. I have also commenced sinking a prospecting shaft about 100 feet north-east of Harcourt's shaft, on a little outcrop of blue carbonate ore, and which is worthy of being developed. Machinery : The machinery and jigger have worked well during the month, and are still in good order, the latter making from 70 to 80 tons monthly of from 15 to 18 per cent. ore, obtained from stuff that would be otherwise perfectly useless. Ore raised for month 663 tons, and smelted for same period 626 tons, producing equal to 110 tons fine copper, 358 tons refined copper have been made, and despatched 312½ tons."

The following is a return of copper received at Darling Harbour station for the week ended 31st March :—From Vale of Clwydd, 3 tons 19cwt. 2qr.; Nevertire, 91 tons 13cwt. 1qr.; Narromine, 60 tons 13cwt. 3qr.; Orange, 3 tons 0cwt. 1qr.; total, 158 tons 17cwt. 2qr.

COURSING.

A special meeting of the committee of the New South Wales Coursing Club was held yesterday afternoon at Tattersall's rooms, to make the preliminary arrangements for the meeting of the club, which is fixed to take place on the estate of Mr. R. L. Tooth, at Bowral, on May 24th, 25th, and 26th. Mr. Andrew Town occupied the chair. A letter was read from Mr. T. S. Clibborn, Secretary to the Sydney Amateur Turf Club, pointing out that the Birthday meeting of the Sydney Turf Club had been previously fixed for the 24th of May, and suggesting the advisability of altering the dates of the coursing meeting for May 25th, 26th, and 28th, so that the patrons of coursing who would attend the race gathering might have an opportunity of being present on the three days of the coursing. Many of the gentlemen present, while agreeing that it would be well to fall in with Mr. Clibborn's suggestion were sensible of many difficulties in the way of such a step being taken. After some discussion it was decided to postpone the consideration of Mr. Clibborn's letter till next Tuesday. A letter was received from Mr. W. Pitt, stating that as he had consented to act as honorary judge for the meetings of the Australian Coursing Club in Victoria he would be willing to act in a similar capacity for the New South Wales club in the event of Mr. E. Gatenby, the appointed judge of the latter club being at any time incapacitated through illness or accident. The secretary was instructed to accept Mr. Pitt's offer, and to convey the thanks of the club to that gentleman for the same. After the passing of a few accounts the meeting closed.

CRICKET.

A match was played between the Orontes C. C. and the Windsor C. C., on the Windsor ground, Moore Park, resulting in a win for the former by 16 runs, much to the surprise and discomfiture of the latter. The bowling of F. Waller and P. Mitchelson for the victors was very effective; the former securing five wickets for 14 runs, the latter four for 12. The batting of C. Mitchelson and C. Brooks for the winning team was very good, as was also that of Webb for the losers.

The Essex easily defeated the Young Derwent C. C. on Moore Park, on Saturday, by one innings and 2 runs.

The Young Carltons versus Masquerades resulted in a draw in favour of the latter.

A match was played on Saturday last at Moore Park, between Redfern Albert C. C. and Wentworth C. C., resulting in a victory for the former by one run. The highest scores for the victors being—Gunning 10, O'Brien 8, Buzza 5, and Darum 2 not out; the bowling of Wagg and Gunning being very effective. The highest scores for the losers were—Scott 7, and Eden 6.

A match took place on Saturday last, between the Windsor C. C. and the second eleven of the Belvidere C. C., and resulted in a victory for the former by 19 runs and 4 wickets. The Belvidere went first to the wickets, and were all out for 46 runs, M'Laughlin, with 15, being the only one to reach double figures. The Windsor obtained 65 with the loss of 6 wickets—M'Grade 17, Doherty 15 (not out), and Newcombe 14, being the principal contributors. Mallarky and Grant bowled for the victors, the former's average being 5 wickets for 37 runs, and the latter's 4 wickets for 9 runs.

A cricket match was played on Saturday last between a team of La Perouse blacks and the Invincible C.C., of Botany, on the Hancock Gardens Estate cricket ground at Botany. The Invincible won by 11 runs after a very pleasant game. The only double figure scored was by King, one of the aboriginals, who made a baker's dozen. The bowling and fielding of the natives was worthy of the highest praise, especially the wicket-keeping of King.

The Surry Avoca and Alert met at Redmyre on Saturday, when the former won by 60 runs. The scores were—Surry Avoca, 96; and Alert, 36. For the winners the batting of White with 29, P. M'Pherson 18 not out, A. Deloherty 32 not out, and Bettenage 9, was very good. A. Deloherty bowled splendidly, taking seven wickets for 11 runs. For the defeated side L. Rohu played well for 10, and W. Quodling took five wickets for 33 runs.

The Alexandria and Australian elevens met at Double Bay on Saturday last, the result showing that the defeat of the former by the Australians in the cup match was not a true test of the relative merits of the respective teams. The Australians went first to the wickets, and put together a total of 55, Bird contributing 12, Russell 10, and Stokes 11. The Alexandrias had lost eight wickets for 54, of which Ellis made 17, when the captain of the Australians abruptly stopped the game, and called his men off the field, on the plea of time, notwithstanding an arrangement that, in the event of a close contest the game was to be played out. It must be stated, in justice to the other members of the team, that they all desired to proceed with the game, but were overruled by their captain, whose uncricket-like conduct was strongly commented upon by the spectators. Ellis and M'Dowell trundled in good form for the local team. Bird and J. Smedley were most successful for the Australians, W. Smedley being severely punished.

GLEBE ROWING CLUB.

The annual meeting of members of the above club was held last night at the Glebe Town Hall, Mr. G. W. Tate, one of the vice-presidents, in the chair. About 30 members were present. The annual report was laid before the meeting and adopted. It was as follows:—"Your committee have much pleasure in submitting to you this evening their fourth annual report, together with the treasurer's balance sheet for the past year, and trust it will meet with general approval. The number of members on the roll is about 70 active and 20 honorary members. The annual ball held last June in the Sydney Town Hall was a great success, and called forth the highest encomiums from the Sydney press. During the ball occasion was taken to present to the late hon. secretary, Mr. S. J. Bull, a silver tea and coffee service, as a mark of the members' appreciation of his services since the formation of the club. Owing to the increase of the club's property, the insurance policy has been increased from £300 to £500. A special general meeting of members was held in September last for the purpose of amending and classifying the club's rules. The annual regatta of the club took place last December, and passed off most satisfactorily. The thanks of the committee are due to the following for their continued liberal support to the club, viz.:—Mrs. Horn, the Hon. Sir G. Wigram Allen, M.L.A.; Messrs. W. Cary, G. W. Tate, W. Bull, C. Bull, J. B. Holdsworth, P. Punch, and T. Punch. Contests have been held during the year for the purpose of fostering the interests and attendance of members, and also as a means of bringing out new scullers and oarsmen. The club has been most successful during the past season, winning most of the races in which it has competed, notably the junior fours at the Association and Balmain regattas, Messrs. R. Shute, A. Ickerson, G. Robertson, and E. J. Haslingden; and the maiden fours, at the Association, Double Bay, and Balmain regattas, Messrs. R. P. Smith, R. Fairweather, H. R. Cox, and G. W. Durrell; and your committee might state that Mr. G. Robertson has been selected to row in the forthcoming intercolonial eight-oar race. The following is a list of the club races for the year:—April 29.—Trial Fours, in outriggers: Prize presented by Mr. G. W. Tate, vice-president; six entries; won by R. Fairweather, H. R. Cox, G. W. Durrell, and G. M'Diarmid. June 23.—Senior Sculls, in club skiffs: Club's prize; three entries; won by J. Degotardi. September 9.—Pair-oar Race, in club skiffs, for prize presented by Mr. T. Punch; four entries; won by R. P. Smith and R. Fairweather. Regatta, December 9, 1882.—Junior Double Sculls: Trophies presented by Mr. P. Punch; three entries; won by G. Robertson and E. J. Haslingden. Maiden Fours, in outrigger gigs: Prizes presented by the President, Sir G. Allen, M.L.A.; four entries; won by J. Barnet, M. Mitchell, R. Sander, and J. Hagan. Senior Sculls: Prize presented by Mr. J. B. Holdsworth; three entries; won by C. Williams. Maiden Sculls: Prize presented by Messrs. W. and C. Bull; four entries; won by G. J. Robertson. Scratch Fours in gigs: Prizes presented by the Vice-Presidents, Messrs. W. Cary, J.P., and G. W. Tate; four entries; won by R. Fairweather, A. Ickerson, F. Ickerson, and H. G. Curnow." The balance-sheet and financial statement were also received, the latter being as follows:—Dr.: To amount of liabilities, nil. Cr.: By assets estimated, £560; outstanding subscriptions, £20; balance at N. S. W. Bank, £1 13s. 2d.: total, £61 13s. 2d. The election of office-bearers was next proceeded with. The president, Sir G. Wigram Allen, M.L.A., and vice-presidents, Messrs. Wm. Cary, T. J. Chapman, John Young, and G. W. Tate were re-elected. Mr. A. Ickerson was chosen captain; Mr. R. Shute, hon. secretary; and Mr. F. C. Williams, hon. treasurer. Before the election of members of committee was entered upon, a good deal of time was taken up by a discussion as to the construction to be placed upon the 8th rule—"No office-bearer of this club should be an office-bearer of any other rowing club." This question arose in consequence of the absence from the ballot papers of the name of one of the nominees, which the secretary explained he had omitted because the gentleman in question was on the committee of another rowing club. It was eventually decided that the word "office-bearers" referred only to the captain, secretary, and treasurer, and that the fact of any member being a committeeman in another club would not act as a bar to his election to a similar post in the Glebe club. A ballot was then taken, and the following committee was elected:—Messrs. F. J. Bull, S. J. Bull, H. R. Cox, T. A. Daly, R. Fairweather, F. J. Haslingden, E. F. Mayes, G. J. Robertson, and R. Sanders. The captain, secretary, and Mr. H. R. Cox were appointed delegates to the Rowing Association; and the captain, Mr. F. J. Bull, and Mr. R. Fairweather were chosen to form the selection committee. It was resolved that the annual ball be held some time in June next, and a committee was appointed to make all arrangements. The meeting terminated with the usual vote of thanks to the retiring officers and chairman.

THE EIGHTEEN COLTS v. PICKED ELEVEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Seeing in this day's issue of our valuable journal a list of 26 colts who are to practice for the match against the picked eleven, I am somewhat surprised at finding the names of Downes and Cleeve included therein and I hope you will allow me space enough to express my dissatisfaction. In the first place, I find, on reference to records of intercolonial matches, that both Downes and Cleeve have taken part in these contests, and if they were allowed to play colts, why should not A. Gregory, S. Jones, and one or two others also be picked?—at least, they have as great a claim as the previously named players. Have the association any right to dictate to the selection committee who shall be considered juniors and who shall be considered seniors? If the association have not sufficient confidence in the committee to pick a correct team, why did they elect them? It gave me very great pleasure to read "Censor's" remarks in last week's issue of the Sydney Mail about Mr. Ironside; and I am sure that all the cricketers of New South Wales ought to be thankful to Mr. Ironside for the interest he takes in developing our junior cricketers; and I also think that he is the only person who could pick a correct team to represent the colts.

Apologising, Sir, for trespassing on your valuable space

FAIR PLAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reference to the eleven and colts cricket match which is about to come off shortly, I think that if the Cricketing Association could make it practicable for the above teams to play three days' successive match, it would greatly add to the convenience of the colts, and it would also be very lucrative to the association funds. Some of the colts who are about to take part in the approaching contest will find themselves in a nice fix if they should be called upon to compete for the Furness Junior Cup; and I am sure that most of the colts who are about to compete for the forthcoming contest would rather uphold the honour of their own club than take part in a mere scratch match. Hoping that I have not encroached too much on your valuable space,

I am, &c.,

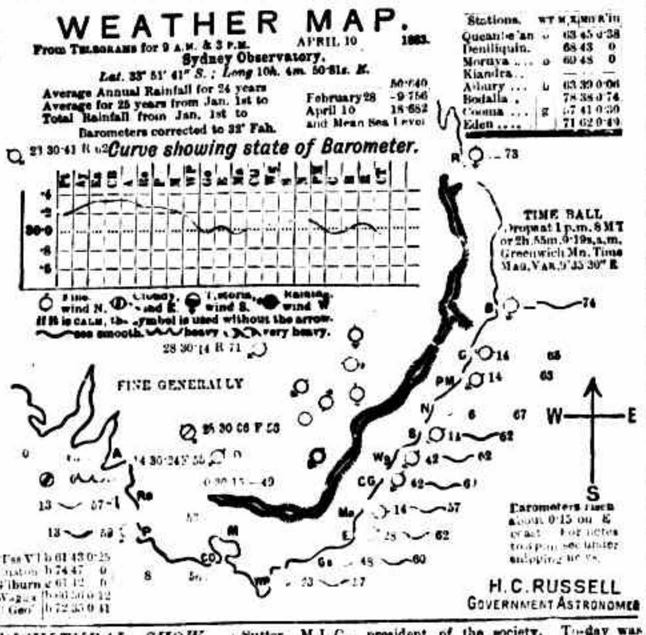

April 10. A SELECTED PRACTICE COLT.

BOROUGH COUNCILS.

ALEXANDRIA.—Meeting held on March 7. Present: The Mayor, with Aldermen Taylor, Jesson, Harden, Hannan, and Halverson. Minutes of preceding meeting read and confirmed. Letters: From the Department of Mines, intimating that the Secretary for Mines had referred to the application by Mr. J. R. Duguid to mine under part of the recreation ground at Waterloo. Received. From A. R. Fremlin, M.L.A., stating that he had interviewed the Under Secretary for Lands, who had promised to see Duguid, the applicant for mining permission, also advising council in mean time to lodge protest with the Minister. Received. From the Colonial Secretary's office, stating that the petition for dividing the borough into wards had been duly published, and that three months must elapse before proclamation can be made. Received. From the Under Secretary, Colonial Secretary's Office, asking to be furnished with a return showing the revenue for municipal rates from 7th of February, 1882, to 5th February, 1883; amount of revenue outstanding for same period on improved property, and on unimproved property; also, the amount accumulated and outstanding since the incorporation of the borough. Received, and the required information to be furnished. From the Secretary General Post Office, intimating this council of the benefit to be derived from an unofficial post-office. Moved by Alderman Taylor,—"That this council is of opinion that a public meeting should be called to take into consideration postal arrangements in connection with this borough." Seconded by Alderman Halverson, and carried. From Mr. J. Osborne, requesting information as to the name of the person who reported that he had emptied and buried contents of a closet on his property. Received. The chairman of the finance committee submitted a report recommending the payment of sundry accounts amounting to £62 5s., which was ordered to be paid. The fortnightly report of the inspector of nuisances was read and received. The bill for the protection of life and property from fire was considered, after which Alderman Jesson moved,—"That this council does not approve of the bill, and is therefore of opinion that the measure should not be passed into law." Seconded by Alderman Taylor, and carried. The balance-sheet for the half-year ended 5th February was adopted, and ordered to be published as usual. The auditors' report was read, after which Alderman Jesson moved,—"That the report be adopted, and the thanks of this council be and are hereby accorded to the auditors, Messrs. Foskett and Rose, for the able and efficient manner in which they have audited the accounts of the borough for the past half-year." Seconded by Alderman Harden, and carried.—JAS. JONES, Council Clerk and Treasurer.

VICTORIA.—Meeting held on April 2. Present—The Mayor (Mr. W. Waterhouse), and Aldermen Charlton, Smith, Matthews, Harding, Munro, and M'Mahon. Minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Letters received from Gas Company in reference to lamp at corner of Union and Eureka streets, and the painting of names of streets on lamps. From council clerk, Manly, in reference to the treatment of this council by the Government with respect to Blue's Point-road. From council clerk, North Willoughby, on same subject. From Department of Lands, respecting the reclamations in Lavender Bay. From Mr. Lukin, requesting extra services in the removal of house rubbish. It was ordered that this letter be referred to improvement committee with a view to establish some regulation. From Alderman Holtermann, requesting the council to reconsider the subject of reclamations in Lavender Bay. It was ordered that this matter be placed on the business paper for consideration at the next meeting of council. From Mr. J. Thomas requesting attention to the condition of south side of Parker-street. From Mr. J. W. Cliff, in reference to George-street. The last two mentioned letters were referred to improvement committee. From Mr. Thomas Overell, complaining of offensive smells in Mount-street. Inspector of Nuisances instructed to attend to this matter. A report from finance committee, recommending payment of accounts amounting to £141 8s. 6d., was adopted on motion by Alderman M'Mahon, seconded by Alderman Munro. With reference to a claim from Mr. W. Trickett for settlement of account for contract it was moved by Alderman Munro, and seconded by Alderman Matthews,—"That improvement committee view and report upon Mr. W. Trickett's work." Carried. A motion, standing on the business paper in Alderman Matthew's name, in reference to Eureka-lane was withdrawn. Moved by Alderman Charlton, and seconded by by Alderman Matthews,—"That an estimate be made for kerbing and guttering west side of Bank-street." Carried. Moved by Alderman Munro, and seconded by Alderman Harding,—"That legal proceedings be taken for recovery of outstanding rates remaining unpaid after giving each person 14 days' notice, without any respect to persons." Carried.—WALTER G. WILLINGTON, Council Clerk.

BATHURST AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

BATHURST, TUESDAY.

The twenty-first annual gathering held in connection with the Bathurst Agricultural, Horticultural, and Pastoral Society was commenced to-day. The show, with regard to the number and the quality of the exhibits, is a great success. The exhibit of sheep and horses was the leading feature of the show.

In the draught classes the entries were not only numerous but the quality was unsurpassed. Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor were accorded first prizes for their well-known imported draught stallion "Jack's the Lad," there being no other exhibited in the same class. The competition in the colonial-bred stallions was keen. Mr J. A. Anderson was awarded leading honours with "Heather Jock," by Victor, imported. A horse belonging to Mr. Andrew Hamer obtained second place. There were five entries for active farm stallions. A smart looking horse, owned by Mr. Patrick Neil, secured the blue ribbon. Mr. M. M'Grath's exhibit came in for second honours.

A splendid description of draught mares were paraded for leading honours in the imported class. By the public generally they were much admired. The judging at this point was anything but rapid, the relative merits of the importations being almost level. After full deliberation on the part of the judges, the first prize was awarded to a beautiful, symmetrical, and compact mare belonging to Mr. W. Kite. Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor's exhibit was awarded second place. There were five entries in the above class. Eight colonial draught mares were paraded for leading honours in their class; they likewise showed considerable merit. Two of Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor's exhibits were respectively awarded first and second prize.

Mr. J. Smith, of Roody Creek, was awarded leading honours for a three-year-old draught colt by Bismarck (imp.), a fine upstanding horse, showing plenty of bone. The second prize in the same class went to Messrs. G. and H. Suttor's symmetrical colt. Two three-year-old draught fillies paraded for leading honours in their class. A compact-looking animal, owned by Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor, secured the leading position, and Mr. F. M'Garry, with a promising filly, obtained a second place. There were three entries on the list for draught colts of two years old. Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor were again the successful exhibitors, Mr. R. Burden taking second place with an animal that, in a year or two, will likely gain plenty of showground popularity. A long list of imposing-looking draught fillies of two years old, each possessing plenty of quality, came under the notice of the judges. Mr. W. Kite's exhibit was unanimously awarded a leading place, some doubts existing as to which horse was entitled to the second position. Messrs. M'Intosh and Oakes, and Messrs. W. S. and H. Suttor were awarded first and second prizes respectively for their yearling colt exhibits. Quite an array of yearling draught fillies, ten in all, paraded for the blue ribbon, and no greater compliment could be paid to the Bathurst district with regard to its importance in the production of serviceable draught stock. Mr. W. Dowling, with a promising youngster, obtained a first prize. Messrs. Sullivan Brothers secured second place with a very shapely-looking filly.

The blood sections showed plenty of quality, but the exhibits were not numerous. In the aged class there were two entries. Mr. W. Kite, with his well-known and popular horse, Gemma di Vergy, was awarded the blue ribbon. Mr. J. Rutherford, with a good representative horse, secured second place. Five blood mares were subjected to the critical eye of the judges. Mr. George Lee's superior-looking mare Feu de Artifice showed the most merit. Mr. W. Kite's Inverness was placed second. Blood colts, over two and under three years, were represented by two entries. Messrs. W. and J. Lee's Kinglike carried off the ribbon; a horse of Mr. Kite's took second place. In the yearling blood colts, the first prize was awarded to Messrs. W. and J. Lee's Youngster, by Gemma di Vergy, from Avalanche; Mr. Kite showing a promising colt by Reprieve.

The coaching and trotting horses formed no unimportant feature in to-day's exhibition; a fine coacher, Yorkshire Hero, owned by Messrs. W. and H. Suttor, taking the leading award in his class. Two of his progeny obtained a first and second prize as three-year-old coaching colts; they were respectively Messrs. G. and H. Suttor's Yorkminster, and an unnamed horse belonging to Messrs. W. and H. Suttor. Two trotting stallions were exhibited—Mr. James Rutherford's President Grant, by Patchen (imported), was awarded first prize. Dr. Cortis, with Hereford, by President Grant, obtained second prize. Five coaching mares were exhibited. They were principally owned by Mr. Rutherford, who was awarded a first and second prize.

There was keen competition with the buggy horses. The number exhibited was seven, which were sent dashing round a somewhat limited enclosure. The principal award was secured by Dr. Spencer, the second place being allotted to Mr. E. H. Lane. There was a good display of both ladies' and gentlemen's hackneys. In the latter, the first prize was awarded to Mr. A. Coulson; Dr. Cortis' horse being second. In the former, Dr. Cortis' exhibit was first, and Mr. Le Bidulph was second.

The sheep sections, although poorly filled, showed excellent quality. This was principally owing to a few merinos shown by Mr. F. B. Suttor, who obtained first prize. The merino ram he exhibited also obtained first prize; and he took second for the best ewe, as well as first prize for the best three ewes exhibited, under two years old. The prize animal was bred by Mr. James Gibson, of Tasmania, and it possesses all the qualifications in full for which the island stock are so noted. The prize ewe has a splendid covering of fine lustrous wool. The second prize ewe, likewise owned by Mr. F. B. Suttor, in Bathurst, showed as imposing an appearance as her imported neighbour. Messrs. G. and H. Suttor competed for the ram prize with a well-bred Tasmanian sheep, showing considerable density and a fair quality of wool. They were awarded second prize. There was a good display of Lincoln, Leicester, Shropshire, and Southdown sheep. Messrs. M'Phillamy, Kite, John Palmer, John Ford, and Thompson Brothers were the principal exhibitors. The latter exhibited in cross herds a good class of farmers' sheep.

The cattle section was weak, with the exception of some housed cattle, the others showed a somewhat low condition. Messrs. W. and J. Lee headed the list with a Durham of good quality, Generva by Count Generva, imported. Mr. George Lee, with a proportionate animal, secured second honours. For a Durham bull of over two and under three years, Messrs. W. and J. Lee came first, with Messrs. Sullivan Brothers second. In the yearling bull class, Messrs. Sullivan Brothers obtained leading honours; Messrs. W. and J. Lee obtained second place. For a Durham cow, Messrs. W. and J. Lee were awarded first prize, Mr. G. A. Lee secured second place.

In the heifer class, the prizes were secured by Messrs. W. and J. Lee, George Lee, and Sullivan Brothers. Herefords were indifferently represented, Mr. John M'Phillam being the only exhibitor and prizetaker. The Devons remained unrepresented, while the Ayrshire class brought forward two fairly selected animals.

A special prize of £20, offered by Messrs. E. Webb and Co. for the best wheat sample, caused keen competition. The first prize was awarded to Mr. J. Grist for a beautifully clean prime sample, weighing 65½lb. to the imperial bushel. Some good samples of oaten and wheaten hay are shown.

Garden produce is well represented. Potatoes of a good quality are on view.

The pavilion is tastefully laid out with the lighter products of the district, such as apples, grapes, and other wholesome fruits. Many of the industrial features of the town and district are likewise shown. A good sample of slate from the new Bangor quarry is on view near the main entrance.

The display of agricultural implements is very meagre, Messrs. Webb and Co. being the only exhibitors of any importance, with a small assortment of English articles.

The exhibition was formally opened by the Hon. W. H. Suttor, M.L.C., president of the society. To-day was beautifully fine. The attendance was a good one.

To-morrow has been announced as a public holiday, when the exhibition will be continued.

THE CLARENCE AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GRAFTON, TUESDAY.

The Clarence Pastoral and Agricultural Society's show opened to-day. The weather was everything that could be desired. The show of draught horses is exceedingly good, and the merit of many classes will require very careful judging to discriminate. The blood classes also contain many fine animals, but the quality there is not so even. Farm produce is exhibited in large quantities, and is of excellent quality. Some very good and well-grown sugar-cane is exhibited, but it is all grown on farms within a radius of a few miles of Grafton. The awards have been made to-day in the horse section, but a few classes yet remain to be judged; and in draught stock the champion awards were not decided. The blood stock section was below the average in nearly all classes, but a few exhibits showed good quality. Hackneys were very numerous in both heavy and light classes, and many of them were superior animals. Carriage horses and light horses generally were weak classes. Ponies, on the other hand, were exceptionally good and in great force, being the best show ever seen here. Draught horses formed a grand show, with many magnificent arrivals. Young stock showed that the breeding of this class of horses is receiving very careful attention at the hands of the farmers of this district. The blood stock judges were, Messrs. E. W. S. Hayles, W. Penrose, and A. Stuart. Arab stallion—T. Shannon's Hodge Buba. Colonial blood stallion, 4 years and over—M. Rush's Fieldfare; W. Noud's Clarendon, second. Two-year-old—J. Brown's Eatonswill. One year—M. Rush's colt, by Maribyrnong; C. O'Sullivan's Qui-vive second. Colt foal at side of dam—W. J. Hawthorne's Caramana; J. Landrigan's Huntsman, second. Mare, 4 years and over—T. O. Hewitt's Nina; J. Watts' Vignette, second. 3 years—M. Rush's Rosemary; J. F. Small and Son's Midnight, second. 2 years—M. Rush's Onica; W. J. Hawthorne's Argandab, second. 1 year—W. Penrose's filly by Cantivator; W. J. Hawthorne's Pale Gem, second. Filly foal at side of dam—J. Watts' by Cantivator; Messrs. Hawthorne and Hewitt divided for second. Hunter—H. Smith's Jack; Miss Kerrigan's Tarragon, second. Hackney, to carry 12 stone—L. Barnier's Novice; J. M'Millan's Grandmaster, second. Hackney, 10 stone—J. Lee's Greyhound; J. F. Small and Son's Music, second. Lady's Hackney—H. Asbery. Coaching Mare—W. J. Hawthorne. Pair Buggy horses—J. Laird. Buggy horse—F. W. Wilcox. Trotting horse—J. Ford. Galloway—W. J. Hawthorne's Fitz-Yattendon; J. Cowen's Whitefoot second. Pony stallions, 13 hands or under—T. G. Hewitt's Prince; A. E. Greaves's King Pippin second. Pony mare, 13 hands, T. M. Hewitt's Dolly; J. Brown's Juno second. Pony gelding—J. Wills' Gamecock; T. G. Hewitt's Robin second. Pair of carriage ponies—J. Brown. Champion prizes: Best blood stallion—M. Rush's Fieldfare. Blood mare—M. Rush's Rosemary. Blood stallion, fit for stock for general purposes—J. J. Hough's Booyung (imported). Draught stallion, four years—Wemall's, jun., Oaklands; J. M'Millan's Modern Type, highly commended. Colonial-bred stallion, 4 years and over—P. Walker's Noble; W. J. Hawthorne's Guntaway Lad, second. 3 years.—T. Ford's Iron Duke; R. and F. M'Aulay's Prince Douglas, second. 2 years.—H. Gerrard's Young Plantation; J. Short's George Douglas, second. Yearling.—J. Ford's, sen., Duke; J. Morehead's Young Plantation, second. Colt Foal at side of dam—D. Mackay's Young Plantation; G. Lynch's Imperial Duke, second. Mare, 4 years and over.—A. Eggin's Doll; T. Ford's Smiles, second. 3 years.—J. Ford's, jun., Beauty; J. F. Small and Sons Maori, second. 2 years.—W. Johnson's Daisy; J. Ford's, sen., Darling, second. Yearling.—J. F. Small and Sons' Maiden. Filly Foal at side of dam.—R. Ellem's Blossom; Yager's Muir Lass, second. Pair of plough horses.—J. Ford, sen. Plough horse.—W. Baltitude; John F. Ford, second. Dray horse: F. Woonan; Smith, second. Spring-cart horse: A. Ford; T. J. M'Kildrick, second. In most of the foregoing classes there were numerous awards of highly commended and commended for other superior exhibits. Draught Mares' Produce Stakes, sweepstakes of £1 each—Colts: C. Carlton's Prince of Wales, prize; and J. Asbury, second. A protest was lodged in this case, on the ground that the acceptance was made subsequent to the closing of the stakes. Fillies: R. Ellem's Blossom; C. Yager's Muir Lass, second; J. Ford's, senior, Dolly Varden, third. Special prize of £5 each, by Mr. W. Small—Plantation and Prince Imperial. Draught stallions—Colts: D. M'Kay's Young Plantation. Fillies—R. Ellem's Blossom. Poultry—Messrs. Barnier, J. and A. Battersley, T. C. Woods, T. Ashberry, and Ford were the principal prize-takers. Dogs were moderately well represented with fair animals in sporting classes. In farm produce and horticultural products the classes were well filled. Messrs. G. Crispin, A. and J. Battersley, W. Ford, J. Barnier, A. Eggins, J. Eggins, R. Ellem, Adrian, and Volckers were the principal prize-takers; and in sugar cane Messrs. A. and J. Battersley, T. Ashberry, W. Leeson, and J. Hadfield, who all exhibited fine healthy well-grown cane. Judging by the growth of the exhibits, the present season seems to have suited this plant very well. Cattle will be exhibited as well to-morrow, but will not be very numerous. The arrangements, on the whole, have worked well and smoothly, and a great advantage in the increased area, obtained by the recent extension of the ground, has been experienced. The judges for draught stock were Messrs. T. P. Smith, D. Campbell, and W. Davis. The attendance of the public to-day was about the average for the first day, but a very large attendance is anticipated to-morrow. The weather remains beautifully fine, and no accidents whatever have occurred to interfere in any way with the show. The sale by public auction will take place on Thursday, and the society's dinner is to be held to-morrow evening.

ARABI BEY AND HIS BROTHER EXILES.—A Ceylon paper publishes the following items concerning the Egyptian exiles:—"Arabi is the most cheerful of the party, always trying to soothe and comfort his friends when they are sorrowful or pensive. They all enjoy good health except Toulbah Pasha, who is suffering from asthma. It is an old complaint of Toulbah's which had left him for a time, but now seems to have come back again. Dr. White is attending him. Arabi and his companions are whiling away their weary days of idleness in endeavours to unravel the mysteries of the English alphabet, and are succeeding far better than might have been expected from men of their age; but they have their hearts in the work, and Arabi declares that the debt of gratitude he owes to England is a sufficient inducement to him to endeavour to have it in his power some day to express his thanks in the English language. The sons of Mahomud Ali Fehmy attend the Government Normal school daily in the English class, and as soon as arrangements can be made they will become regular boarders. His daughters will shortly receive instruction in their own houses; but some of them, Mahomed Sami amongst them, have left their families in Egypt, as they felt it would be impossible to maintain them here on the Government allowance of a pound a day. One or two of them have expressed themselves very strongly on the confiscation of their ancestral properties, especially as in more than one instance the Egyptian authorities have seized and sold houses and lands devoted to the support of aged, faithful retainers who had grown gray and some of them blind in their service, and who are now turned out homeless and penniless, without the means of support. They ask, with much earnestness, why these aged and infirm servants should be made to suffer for their masters' political conduct; and they feel confident that the British Government was no party to these confiscations, which must have been brought about by their personal enemies."

EXPERIENCE TEACHES, or ought to do so, and those who have thus learned are doubly to blame if they do not profit by the lesson.
If you want a reliable article choose one that has stood the test of years; and in many cases you also have the advantage of getting the improvements which all articles of mechanism are subject to as time proves the advantage or disadvantage of any particular part.
These remarks apply with great force to the WILLCOX and GIBBS AUTOMATIC SILENT SEWING-MACHINE, with its recent wonderful improvement of the Self-regulating Tension.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT SALE.

THE PICK OF WAGGA WAGGA.

MILLS and PILE (in conjunction with Messrs. L. A. Fosbery and Co., of Wagga Wagga), have been instructed by A. G. Jones, Esq., to sell by public auction, at an early date, at Wagga Wagga,
Those magnificent properties, situate in and near Wagga Wagga, as follows:—

No. 1. THE AUSTRALIAN HOTEL PROPERTY.
This splendid site, occupying the highest and best position in the town, has a frontage of 126 feet to Fitzmaurice-street by a depth of 264 feet, and is situated in the very centre of the business portion of the city. Immediately opposite are the post and telegraph offices, the court-house, and new Commercial Bank buildings. On one side are the principal business houses of the town, the other being occupied by the site for the new Union Bank.

The Australian Hotel, which is admittedly one of the best between Sydney and Melbourne, is a brick structure, and contains 50 rooms besides billiard-room, coaching offices, two stock and station agents' offices, and the commodious premises occupied by the Union Bank.

A splendid range of brick stables has been lately erected at a cost of £1700, with accommodation for 34 horses, added to which are buggy houses, and ample shed room for the coaches, omnibuses, and vehicles that leave the establishment.

No. 2. THE GREEN VALE AND LIGHTHOUSE ESTATE AND HOMESTEAD.
This fine property embraces an area of 1450 acres, and is situate between Junee and Wagga Wagga, distant from the latter about 11 miles. It is in close proximity to the Great Southern line of railway, and is almost equi-distant from Melbourne and Sydney.

THE LAND, a large proportion of which has been cleared and cultivated, is immediately available for the agriculturalist.

THE SOIL is of the best description for wheat-growing, being of the same character as that of the famous Junee Flats, now so much sought after, and every acre of the estate is available for that purpose.

At Green Vale there is a good homestead, fruit and flower garden, with a splendid dam of permanent water; and on Lighthouse 5 tanks, giving never-failing water supply in various well-selected places.

The entire property is well and securely fenced, sheep-proof with post, rail, and wire, and is subdivided into several paddocks.

No. 3. THE BAILLIE PADDOCK.
This paddock, with an area of about 137 acres, within 2½ miles of the town, is almost entirely cleared, and consists of the richest agricultural and pasturage land. It is securely fenced by substantial post and rail, and is well watered by a large tank; and a paddock of about 20 acres, cleared and securely fenced, ready for cultivation.

No. 4. THE COTTAGE, TRAILL-STREET.
This property has a frontage to Traill-street of 66 feet by 330 feet in depth. Comfortable cottage of four rooms, detached kitchen, stable, coachhouse, outoffices; well of soft water.
An additional building has lately been erected with two lofty rooms, French lights, verandah (two sides).
Gas laid on throughout both buildings.

No. 5.
Portion of allotment No. 3 of sec. 33, South Wagga Wagga with a frontage to Gurwood-street of 66 feet, by depth of 83 feet.
Portion of allotment 3 of sec. 33, with a frontage to Fitzmaurice-street of 66 feet, by a depth of 83 feet.
These two allotments are contiguous.

Full particulars in a future issue.
For further information, apply to the auctioneers, MILLS and PILE, Sydney.

BATHURST PLAINS, BATHURST.

The magnificent estate BLACKDOWN is now for POSITIVE SALE.

CLEMENTS and M'CARTHY have received instructions from the Trustees of the Estate of the late HENRY ROTTON, Esq., to sell by auction, on WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25 (prox) at 2.30 p.m., at the Royal Hotel,
The above really VALUABLE PROPERTY, which, without comparison, has been the most profitable of all of equal extent on the unrivalled BATHURST PLAINS.

BLACKDOWN consists of 1800 ACRES 1800 (more or less), of SPECIALLY RICH SOIL, nearly half of which is of the celebrated MACQUARIE RIVER FLATS, possibly richer, and certainly more valuable, than the far-famed BANKS OF THE NILE.

Five crops of LUCERNE may be cut in a season, by which a return of about £40 per acre may be obtained, at present (and past) season's rates. The number of long-woolled sheep these flats have fattened in each season, if mere heresay, might well be deemed incredible.

The upland portion of BLACKDOWN is very rich red and chocolate soil, with deep ferruginous subsoil—the BEST WHEAT LAND—much of which has been cultivated during the past fifty years, and yielded wonderful crops.

BLACKDOWN is only separated from the City and Municipal Boundaries thereof by the ever-flowing River Macquarie, to which it has an extensive frontage.

The Property is securely enclosed, and divided into fifteen paddocks, and situated between Cengowra—the residence and estate of the Hon. W. H. Suttor, M.L.C.—and Hereford, the homestead estate of Jas. Rutherford, Esq.

BLACKDOWN HOUSE is extensive and complete, with all out-office requisites.

EXTENSIVE STABLING, Entires and other boxes.

For a thoroughly practical stud-breeder, a wholesale dealer in fat stock, or gentleman of family, whom he wishes to see grow strong and enjoy themselves, it would be hard to find an Elysium equal to BLACKDOWN.

To particularise would be but waste of time. The Auctioneers simply request particular inspection, as the SALE IS IMPERATIVE, in accordance with the conditions of the will of the late H. ROTTON, Esq.

Lot 2.—FONTHILL, 61 ACRES, adjoining Blackdown and fronting Peel-road. This land is unexcelled for its wheat crops, and is but four miles from Bathurst (every inch good).
Lot 3.—WOODSIDE, 504 ACRES, lightly timbered, at present used for grazing; is about three miles north of Blackdown, and adjacent to Kelloshiel, Saltram, and Mount Ranken.
Lot 4.—GRABINE, 1113 ACRES, situated on Abercrombie River, near its junction with the Burrowa, which there unite, and form the Lachlan. This estate is well known as a sheep and cattle station more than 50 years. There are 2050 acres of pre-emptive leased land, all fine, sound sheep country, with some rich flats suitable for lucerne and other crops.
Lot 5.—GRABINE NORTH, 1020 ACRES, similar country to Grabine, and has 1600 acres of pre-lease. These properties are leased at £45 per annum each until 1st January, 1884.
Lot 6.—BLACKSLAND SWAMP, 200 ACRES, at Cox's River, now let until 1st September, 1883, to Mr. Richard Bryant.
Lot 7.—YETHOLME, 100 ACRES, lately occupied by J. Field.
Lot 8.—FARMER'S CREEK, 100 ACRES, at Magpie Hollow, near Bowenfels.
Lot 9.—100 ACRES, Bassett's free selection—valuable lot; let to William Barton.
Lot 10.—GREEN SWAMP, 100 ACRES, near Green Swamp, formerly rented by Mr. D. Davison.
Lot 11.—STONEY CREEK, 86 ACRES, occupied by Mr. A. Piper.
Lot 12.—WALMER, 40 ACRES, adjacent to the mansions of the Hon. John Smith, Hon. F. Suttor, T. J. Hawkins, and Whittingdale Johnson, Esq., Mrs. Mount Rankin, and J. H. Stewart's. This is a delightful site for a gentleman's country residence in choice society—one very seldom offered in this delightful locality with its charming surroundings.
Lots 13.—HAZEL'S CROSSINGS, 14 ACRES rich Lucerne Land only separated from the city of Bathurst by the Macquarie River, and is worth £3 per annum.
Lot 14.—EUSDALE, 40 ACRES, on Dixon's Creek, adjoining Messrs. Moore's fine estate, Meadow Flat.
Lot 15.—CATARACT, 30 ACRES, near Yetholme (the old Frying-pan) grazing property, abundance of grass and water in all seasons.
Lot 16.—At RYDAL, 10 ACRES, with House, formerly a public-house.
Lot 17.—BRICKYARD at KELSO, 6 Acres 1 rood, let to J. Robertson at £30 per annum.
Lot 18.—Ditto, let to John Dawson at £15 per annum.
Lot 19.—2 ACRES at KELSO, let to A. E. Piper at — per annum.
Lot 20.—SWALLOW'S NEST, 4 ACRES at Swallow's Nest, Gold Reef

CITY OF BATHURST.

Lot 21.—1a. 32p. on Macquarie River, north-eastern portion of the city.
Lot 22.—1a. 1r. 13p., Allotment 3 of Section 53.
Lot 23.—HALF AN-ACRE, Allotment 3 of Section 39.
Lot 24.—Ditto ditto, ditto 2 ditto 39.
Lot 25.—Ditto ditto, ditto 15 ditto 19.
Lot 26.—Ditto ditto, ditto 14 ditto 19.
Lot 27.—Ditto ditto, ditto 13 ditto 19.
Lot 28.—Ditto ditto, ditto 3 ditto 19.
Lot 29.—Ditto ditto, ditto 2 ditto 19.
Lot 30.—Ditto ditto, ditto 12 ditto 32.
Lot 31.—Ditto ditto, ditto 5 ditto 27.
Lot 32.—Ditto ditto, ditto 12 ditto 18, with Cottage.
Lot 33.—Ditto ditto, ditto 11 ditto 18.
Lot 34.—Ditto ditto, ditto 10 ditto 18.
Lot 35.—Ditto ditto, ditto 16 ditto 69.
Lot 36.—5 ACRES Suburban, western boundary of Llanarth. A choice spot for building or orchard.
Lot 53.—OAKEY CREEK, 33 Acres near Grabine; a special prize; auction purchase.

For all particulars apply to CLEMENTS and M'CARTHY, Stock, Station, Estate Agents, and Auctioneers, William-street, Bathurst.

CHARLES C. READ, Plaintiff's Attorney, Sydney.

IMPORTANT SALE of FIRST-CLASS PROPERTIES by PUBLIC AUCTION.

WILKINSON, GRAVES, and LAVENDER, Sydney, in conjunction with HEPBURN and [illegible], Ballarat, have received instructions to offer at the EXCHANGE ROOMS, MELBOURNE, on THURSDAY, 12th April, at [illegible] p.m. sharp,
THE MARNOO and YORK PLAINS ESTATES, in the East Wimmera district of Victoria, containing an area of 12,278 acres of freehold land, as originally purchased from the Crown.

MARNOO was first taken up by the late Martin Shanahan, Esq., nearly 40 years ago, and was continuously occupied by him till his death last year, and is now being offered by the executors under the terms of his will.

The land is unsurpassed in Victoria for pastoral and agricultural purposes, and is splendidly watered by the Richardson and Avon Rivers and the Wallaloo Creek, also by lagoons, tanks, dams, and wells; and is subdivided by substantial post and wire fencing into convenient paddocks.

The homestead improvements consist of large and commodious dwelling-house, and the requisite out-offices; also woolshed, drafting yards, and other improvements of the most substantial character, and the estate is within easy reach of the Ballarat and other first-class markets, being only about 8 miles from [illegible] (to which place it is proposed to extend the railway), and about 25 miles from St. Arnaud or Glenorchy.

With the estate will be sold 9057 sheep of the following specification, viz.:—

SHEEP.

EWES:
1232 2-tooth rising 4, selected
1910 4-tooth „ 6 „
591 full mouth.
3733 will lamb in May.
127 2-tooth second selection
90 over full mouthed.
Total 3950		3950
WETHERS:
847 2-tooth rising 4
1709 4-tooth „ 6
569 6-tooth and full mouth.
Total 3125		3125
WEANERS or HOGGETTS.
1868		1868
RAMS.
114		114
		Total, 9057

Also a small dairy herd of cattle and a few working horses.

The Marnoo sheep are noted in Victoria both for their wool and carcase, and have been carefully bred on the station for years.

Terms very liberal, being one-fourth cash, balance at 1, 2, and 3 years, bearing interest at 6 per cent.

Also
IN CONJUNCTION WITH F. BACON and CO., At the EXCHANGE ROOMS, MELBOURNE, on THURSDAY, 12th April, at 2.30 p.m. sharp.
ULAMAMBRI,
in the Bligh and Liverpool Plains districts of New South Wales, with about 15,500 acres freehold land and 15,000 acres pre-emptive leases, and the adjoining pastoral runs, comprising an additional estimated area of 100,000 acres, or a total area of 130,000 acres.

The Ulamambri property consists of five blocks of country as follows:—ULAMAMBRI, URABRIBLE, YAMINGABAH, DANDRY, DANOBOLLIE.

The two first-named runs are in the Bligh district, and are intersected by the Castlereagh River, which at this part of its course contains its most permanent and never-failing waterholes, and are also well watered by the Baby Creek, the Guntiaba Creek, Bonan and King's Creeks, and other watercourses.

The alluvial plains and flats comprise 15,000 acres of the richest agricultural soil, and secure the whole of the pre-emptive leasehold of about 15,000 acres additional, which are highly improved by ringbarking, &c.; and are also further watered by 10 wells and numerous tanks and dams in convenient localities all over the paddocks.

The adjoining Run of Yamingabah is partly fenced, and well watered by the Yamingabah Creek.

The Dandry and Danobollie blocks are also well watered, but are not yet fenced in, and are almost unstocked.

There are at present 10 paddocks, and the fencing is all quite new and of the most substantial and permanent character; and no expense has been spared on the improvements.

There is also a large and commodious wool-shed, also drafting yards, steam washing plant, homestead buildings, and out-offices, the whole forming a compact and valuable property, capable of carrying double the present number of sheep, and is situated within about 60 miles of the railway station at Gunnedah.

With the property will be sold 26,778 SHEEP as under:—

BREEDING EWES—
1,886 maiden ewes
7,024 full-mouthed ewes
8,910 in lamb
3,800 2-tooth ewes, dry
7,629 2 ditto wethers
1,439 4 ditto ditto
4,700 mixed weaners or hoggets
300 cox-bred rams

Total ... 26,778 more or less.
Station horses, working plant, &c., &c.

Terms: One-third cash, balance at 1, 2, and 3 years at [illegible] per cent. per annum.

IMPORTANT SALE.

Breaking-up of one of the most Extensive Dairies in the South.

Dairymen, Heads of Families, Breeders, and Others.

195 Superior Milch COWS
68 ditto HEIFERS
4 ditto BULLS.
Carts, Dishes, Cans, Coolers, Vats
Horses, Pigs, &c.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from J. J. O. Atkinson, Esq., J.P., to sell by auction, at Oldbury, near Moss Vale, on TUESDAY, the 17th April, 1883, at 11 o'clock,
The whole of his very superior dairy herd, comprising
195 magnificent cows, about 90 now in full milk, and a large number near calving
68 superior heifers, 1 to 2½ years old
4 very highly bred bulls.

The foregoing will be sold at time and place above mentioned, as Mr. Atkinson is giving up the milk supply in consequence of being unable to obtain suitable labour. The herd of dairy cattle are a very superior lot, the proprietor years ago having bought largely from the famous Glen Lee herd, and by great care, expense, and experience bred quite up to the high standard he began upon.

Dairymen should attend to secure profitable cows.

Private families may here obtain such animals as are seldom sold.

And breeders may purchase cattle of a strain now becoming popular and profitable.

Also,
2 spring-carts and harness
4 horses
2 pigs
10 milk-cans, 24 to 12 gals. each
80 milk dishes
Churns; 2 cheese tubs, 100 and 150 gals. each; cheese vat
1 Lawrence milk cooler, milk receiver, &c., &c.

INTENDING PURCHASERS may leave Sydney 4.25 p.m. or 8.30 p.m. on MONDAY; leave Moss Vale on WEDNESDAY, [illegible] a.m. or 12.50 p.m.
LUNCHEON will be provided.
TERMS AT SALE.
CATALOGUES and further particulars on application to PITT, SON, and BADGERY, Auctioneers, PASTORAL CHAMBERS, SYDNEY.

PRELIMINARY ADVERTISEMENT.

COMBADELLO and MINNA MINNANE STATION, Gwydir District.

For Unreserved Sale, to Close Partnership Accounts.

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have received instructions from Messrs. A. F. and J. R. Smart to sell by auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, May 23, at half-past 2 o'clock,
The above well and favourably known fattening station, situated on the Mehi River, between Moree and [illegible], and comprising an area of about 120,000 acres of as fine fattening saltbush country as is to be found in New South Wales.

A very large portion of the run is secured, there being upwards of 15,000 acres of freehold, and a large number of substantial improvements; the whole of the run being fenced and subdivided, and a number of fine dams and tanks.

The run has for years past carried upwards of 10,000 cattle and 10,000 sheep, and has stood the severest droughts better than any station in the district. The whole of the herd of cattle has been sold, and delivery just completed, with a view of stocking up with sheep, and the purchaser can step in to a large and magnificent sheep country, highly improved, and, comparatively speaking, unstocked.

With the station will be sold but 20,000 sheep, nearly all in lamb, horses, working plant, &c.

Terms will be one-third cash, the balance in four equal yearly payments, with interest at 6 per cent.

Further particulars may be had on application to PITT, SON, and BADGERY.

NOTE.—We would impress on buyers the fact that this sale will be ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT RESERVE.

MONDAY, APRIL 23.

TASMANIA.

THE BRISBANE HOTEL, LAUNCESTON.

W. T. BELL has been instructed by Mr. J. W. Simmons (who is desirous of relinquishing business) to submit for sale by public auction, on MONDAY, April 23, at 3 o'clock,
THE BRISBANE HOTEL,
which during the last 25 years has maintained a favourable repute throughout the whole of the Australian colonies and New Zealand.

The Premises have a frontage of 70 feet, with a depth of [illegible] feet, in the very best business part and side of Brisbane-street, the principal thoroughfare in Launceston. The hotel contains dining, commercial, private, sitting rooms, parlours, and bar, in all 26 apartments, including the splendid billiard-room 30 by 23 and 14 feet high. There is also laundry, scullery, store, and other buildings; gas and water are laid on throughout. The whole is in excellent repair, the business is full working and doing a trade second to none.

By a not considerable outlay the accommodation could be nearly doubled, and the frontage modernised (plans of which can be shown).

Thus far as for a hotel; but it cannot be overlooked that it is certainly one of the few large sites remaining in the very best part of Launceston for public offices, a bank, insurance company, or other premises requiring space; and it is not asserting too much to say that there is not a more rising town or city in the Australian colonies, nor one in which a more stable or durable prosperity can be reliably looked for. Possession not later than 17th May.

Terms—£1000 on fall of hammer, £3600 to remain on mortgage at 6 per cent. for four years; balance, cash, on completion of purchase, or half cash, and remainder by acceptances at three and six months, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent., secured on the property, or the purchaser may pay the whole of the purchase money in o

IN CONSEQUENCE of the DISSOLUTION of the SYNDICATE.

HARDIE and GORMAN have received instructions to sell by public auction at their Rooms, 133, Pitt-street, at 11.30 o'clock, THIS DAY, 11th April.
THE CARANGERA COPPER MINE.
The Syndicate is being dissolved in consequence of the departure of some of the members for Europe, and offers an opportunity to mining speculators to secure a valuable property in which a large amount of available work has been done.
The present permanent shaft is 190 feet deep, timbered to within 10 feet of the bottom.
A short crosscut from this will reach at a low level the celebrated Carangera lodes.
The leasehold is 90 acres in extent, and royalty payable the owner is 5 per cent., which royalty gives the use of the smelting works erected at a heavy cost.
The plant is extensive, as per inventory, and the work can be resumed at 24 hours' notice.
The Carangera Copper Mine, so celebrated for its rich ores, is so well known that comment is needless.
Mr. W. SAMUELS, at the township of Byng, is in charge, and will show intending purchasers over the property.
Inventory of plant, tools, &c., may be inspected at the Rooms.

IRON STORE, occupied by Mrs. Eliza Tinley, at £50.
TOTAL RENTS, £1298 PER ANNUM.

THE WHOLE PROPERTY TO BE SOLD IN ONE LINE.

The POSITION of this property is undeniably one of the VERY FIRST in the CITY, being within a stone's throw of the EXCHANGE, close to the site purchased by Messrs. TANGYE, of BIRMINGHAM, for the erection of their MAMMOTH PREMISES, the NEW BUILDINGS in course of erection for G. LEE LORD, Esq., Messrs. DANGAR, GEDYE, and CO.'S premises, the NEW ZEALAND LOAN and MERCANTILE CO.'S property, and on the direct line of traffic from the Circular Quay to the CITY.—In addition to which it is pretty well understood that the site at present occupied by the Commissariat Stores, opposite the Manly steamer's jetty, is to be the site of THE GREAT TERMINAL STATION
for the
NORTHERN, SOUTHERN, and WESTERN RAILWAY LINES.

It is but seldom that such EXTENSIVE FRONTAGES in PITT-STREET are obtainable, and every year witnesses their increased value and greater scarcity. As a SITE for a WOOL WAREHOUSE, or for a GRAND BLOCK of MERCANTILE BUILDINGS, this property is INVALUABLE, and cannot be repeated in any quarter of the city.

THE TITLE IS FREEHOLD AND PERFECT.

WOLLONGONG.

CHOICE SUBURBAN LANDS.

MOUNT OUSLEY ESTATE.

44 ALLOTMENTS AND SMALL FARMS.

THIS DAY, APRIL 11,
at 2 o'clock.

TITLE UNEXCEPTIONABLE.

Terms: Cash deposit of 10 per cent. of purchase money; balance by 18 equal monthly instalments, bearing interest at 6 per cent. per annum, with liberty to pay up at any time within 18 months.

JOHN BIGGAR has received instructions from Messrs. Lamb and Hartson, of Sydney, the Attorneys of the Estate of the late William Henry Kerr, to sell by public auction (to close estate accounts), in the Hall of the School of Arts, Wollongong, on the above date,
All the residue of the well-known picturesque and delightfully situated ESTATE of MOUNT OUSLEY, containing 165 ACRES, distant only half a mile from the northern boundary of the town of Wollongong. Bounded on the North by Gibbons' property, on the west by Captain Osborne, on the south by Elliott, Owen, Musgrave, and Lynch's properties, and on the east by the Main South Coast Road, leading from Wollongong to Bulli and Sydney.
THE ILLAWARRA RAILWAY LINE, as now trenched and staked out, PASSES THROUGH part of the property to be sold. The Estate has been carefully surveyed, subdivided, and laid out by Mr. Licensed Surveyor Bishop, of Sydney, in the following desirable and convenient lots, viz.:—
LOTS 1 to 18, containing half-acre each, with frontage of one chain to the West side of the main South Coast-road leading from Wollongong to Bulli and Sydney.
LOT 26 comprises the HOMESTEAD, LAWN, with STATELY TREES, GARDEN, Kitchen, and Outbuildings, and 12 acres of CAPITAL LAND, having 10 chains frontage to Ousley-road, one chain wide.
The remaining 24 LOTS are laid out IN SMALL FARMS of from 4 to 6 ACRES in area, with large frontages to OUSLEY-ROAD, which is one chain wide, FIT AND PASSABLE FOR VEHICLE TRAFFIC, and leads into the Main South Coast-road.
Also, LOT 25 of the subdivision of Connor Bolan's 200-acre grant, having an area of 4 ACRES and 9 PERCHES, more or less, situated opposite MT. OUSLEY LOTS, with frontage of 3 chains to the east side of the Main South Coast-road. THE ILLAWARRA RAILWAY IS TRENCHED AND STAKED OUT through this Lot, and will add considerably to its value.

The FINEST, most DELIGHTFUL, and CHARMING VIEWS of OCEAN and MOUNTAIN SCENERY are obtained from this property. Its close proximity to WOLLONGONG, POST OFFICES, SCHOOLS, and CHURCHES; its FERTILE SOIL, surrounded by CAPITAL ROADS, and EASY TERMS of payment places the acquisition of these Lots within the reach of all who desire to secure small farms whereon to settle their families in an IMPROVING NEIGHBOURHOOD.

The CERTAINTY that the locality will shortly be connected with Sydney and Kiama by railroad PRE-EMINENTLY MARKS THIS SALE as the REAL OPENING of the "GARDEN of NEW SOUTH WALES" to SYDNEY FOLKS who require a retreat for their families in the most HEALTHY, SALUBRIOUS, and PROLIFIC DISTRICT in the colony, within two HOURS' JOURNEY FROM the METROPOLIS by rail now in construction from the metropolis.

Further particulars can be obtained from the Auctioneer, Wollongong, and from E. O. Smith, Esq., J.P., 55, Pitt-street, Sydney, or from the Solicitor for the Estate, Messrs. Norton and Smith, 12, Spring-street, Sydney.

Lithographic plans of the property can be obtained from either of the above, and are on view at all the business places in the district.

PALMER, THOMPSON, and DENNY have been instructed to sell by auction at their Rooms, 115, Pitt-street, on THURSDAY, 26th April, at 12 o'clock,
The undermentioned SHARES forfeited under the 8th clause of the No-liability Act. 44 Vic. No. 23:—
